How Much Will State Taxes Go Up?

By BOB GUENTHER,
Star Staff Writer

For the first time in six years, Nebraskans are facing the prospect of having to dig deeper into their pockets to pay more state sales tax.

To some fiscal observers, the question no longer is will the state sales and income taxes go up for 1976, but how much will they rise.

The State Board of Equalization may have to raise the sales tax from the present 2½% level to 3% as well as boost the income tax to a level near its historic high of 15%.

Once the rates are set, troubles are not over.

The question then becomes, will a tax increase effective Jan. 1 generate sufficient revenue in time to meet the heavy payments due in the first quarter of 1976?

Trouble Meeting Bills?

Even with a tax increase, officials fear the state may have trouble meeting its bills for March.

The State Board of Equalization — Gov. J. James Exon (chairman), State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters, Treasurer Frank Marsh, Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson and Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann — is charged with setting tax rates.

As yet, a meeting date has not been scheduled. By law, however, the board must meet to set next year's tax rates by Nov. 15.

Exon, who has repeatedly warned state senators to cut spending or face major tax increases, has been meeting with Peters over the last two weeks discussing revenue projections and the board's alternatives.

Exon declined Tuesday to say what rates he felt the state could get by with for 1976.

'Cash Flow Critical'

"The situation is critical, just as I warned the Legislature," Exon said. "Cash flow is critical."

In projecting revenues and expenditures, Exon has relied on a cash flow computer model adopted by the State Revenue Department last spring. Revenue Department officials reportedly are pleased with its track record thus far.

Deputy State Treasurer Ruth Danekas said Tuesday the state's general fund balance is $21 million; however, some suggest the unobligated balance is considerably lower.

The cash flow problem could develop during the first three months of next year when the state must pay out $65 million in school aid, property tax exemptions, refunds and political subdivision assistance.

'Depends On Handling'

Asked if the state will be able to meet its obligations, Exon said, "I don't know. It depends on the handling of the money by the state treasurer."

He added, "If taxes have to be raised because the Legislawture appropriated too much and wouldn't give the board the power to set them as needed, the rates might have to be raised dramatically."

Exon was referring to the 1975 Legislature's refusal to allow the board to hike the state income tax past the 12% level for calender 1975. Exon favored a 13% income tax rate.

"By playing yo-yo with the tax rates, the Legislature has put the state in a critical situation," the governor said. "Traditionally, the Legislature has been unrealistic about appropriations and tax rates."

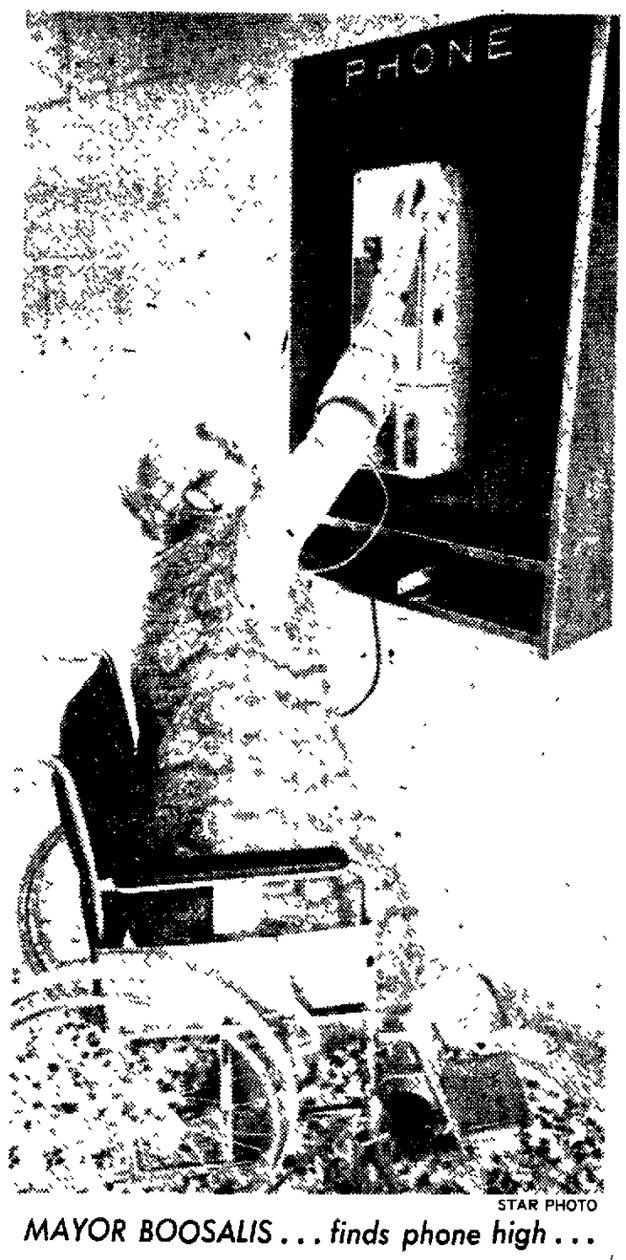

Exon said he's also worried that the tax rates needed to get the state by its financial crunch might make more money available than needed later in the year.

That might tempt the Legislature to increase spending when it opens its session in January, he said.

Exon reiterated his belief that the Legislature should be the body to set tax rates.

President Gerald Ford's proposed tax cut for next year could force the state income tax rate even higher, because Nebraska's individual income tax is based on a percentage of the federal income tax a person pays.

State law requires that half of the revenue for the general fund must come from the sales tax and half from the income tax. In the recent past, the state has been able to meet its obligations by juggling the income tax without touching the sales tax. However, due to changes in revenue growth patterns, it appears the sales tax will have to rise if more money is needed.

Wheelchair Difficulties Examined

City Council Chairman Max Denney pushed Mayor Helen Boosalis around Tuesday afternoon.

And, the mayor announced, "That will be the first and last time this will happen."

The remarks were made in jest as Denney helped Mrs. Boosalis get around in a wheelchair as she and other city officials observed National Employ the Handicap Week.

For more than an hour the mayor, Public Works Director Bob Obering and Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith wheeled with some difficulty around the County-City Building.

They found out firsthand what handicapped people have been saying all along. It's not easy to get around in that public building.

The mayor discovered it takes a lot of muscle to get in and out of the bathroom. She also found out that most bathroom stalls are 28 inches wide. A wheelchair is usually 30 inches wide.

Colette Malolepsky, chairperson of the Mayor's Committee on Opportunities for the Disabled, pointed out other problems. They include getting on and off elevators, going down a steep ramp, opening a heavy door to the south parking lot and using the drinking fountains and pay telephones.

Ms. Malolepsky said there are some 8,500 disabled people living in Lincoln.

"You don't see many of them," she said.

"Many of them are in 30-inch wheelchairs sitting behind 28-inch doors. There's not many places they can go."

Ms. Malolepsky invited Lincolnites to experience similar difficulties in traveling by wheelchair Saturday. An obstacle course will be set up at the old Kresge Building, 12th and O.

Committee OKs Sinai Monitors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a resolution late Tuesday to send 200 American technicians to surveillance posts in the Sinai to help monitor the interim agreement between Israel and Egypt.

The 10 to 2 vote clears the way for probable final authorization by Congress by the end of the week. This, in turn, would lead to implementation of the accord negotiated in August by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The resolution passed by the committee contains a disclaimer stipulating that Congress is not bound by any of the collateral understandings Kissinger reached with the two states during his shuttle diplomacy. The House version, carrying the same provision, is due for a floor vote on Wednesday.

Kissinger told Congress there is nothing in the understandings that commits U.S. armed forces to Israel's defense, even if the Soviet Union threatens to intervene in the Middle East.

However, he said the United States would view "with great gravity" introduction of Soviet forces into the Middle East.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee before its vote, Kissinger said that except for oil guarantees to Israel, the U.S. understandings were "basically good-faith statements of intent."

However, he acknowledged that "some provisions do have legally binding character," describing them as "binding statements of American diplomatic practice." He did not disclose publicly which provisions these were. A secret memorandum identifying them was given to the committee.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said he would offer three amendments on the Senate floor to disclaim congressional approval of any other agreements, to declassify the State Department memoranda identifying binding provisions and to officially declassify four agreements previously leaked to the press and later made public by the committee

New York Default 'Absolute Certainty'

New York (UPI) — Default by New York City on its debt is an "absolute certainty" and will spark civil disorder, a municipal bond expert told the nation's bankers Tuesday.

State and city officials appealed to the bankers for help.

Brenton W. Harries, president of Standard & Poor's, a corporate and municipal bond rating service, startled the bankers attending the convention of the American Bankers Association with the prediction of certain default and his grim assessment of the consequences.

Later, Gov. Hugh L. Carey and members of a special board created by the state to oversee the city's finances told the bankers that even the most drastic emergency measures may not be enough to keep the city from default.

"The dike is crumbling and we are running out of fingers," said Felix G. Rohatyn, chairman of the board of the Municipal Assistance Corp.

Carey said the city's financial problems have "contaminated" state agency debt issues that otherwise have sound fiscal backing. He warned that if the city defaults, some of these state agencies also would default, closing down billions of dollars in construction projects.

Carey urged the bankers to assist the city and state in restoring investor confidence in reopening money markets.

Harries called for massive federal loans to New York State to bail out the city. "As unpalatable as the specter of federal intervention is, the social and economic consequences of default of the proportion we're facing clearly make it the lesser of two evils," he said.

Default by the city "is an absolute certainty" in the very near future, perhaps within a month, he added.

Harries said that in default, city workers, including police and firemen, would not be paid, "and when you skip a payroll in New York City, you have job action." Harries said default would bring city services to an end, resulting in civil unrest and "revolt against the city establishment." The city's banks would be threatened by smokebombs, he said.

Harries, who planned to present his federal loan proposal in Washington, told newsmen following his speech he expected a negative reaction.

"But it's a new idea and it's the right one," he said.

Citizen Investigation May Never Start

A special citizen committee which was to investigate the shooting death of two black Lincoln men may itself die before the nine members are even appointed.

And the facts surrounding the Sept. 24 shooting death of Sherdell Lewis will probably be released by County Atty. Ron Lahners late this week.

Lahners, who Tuesday renewed the local investigation in to the Lewis incident, said he may have a decision on filing criminal charges later this week and will probably release information on his investigation at the same time.

Lewis, 25, was shot to death by Sheriff's Deputy Rod Loos during the initial stages of a drug search of the Lewis home.

Lewis, Childers Deaths

The City Council, mayor, and County Board Monday approved creation of a special citizen committee to investigate the facts surrounding the deaths of two black men shot by police this year — Lewis and Elijah Childers, shot by city police Feb. 1.

But the vote was hardly counted before criticisms began to pour in.

Black community members meeting Monday night did not like the community committee approach and felt it was another delaying tactic, said Donna Polk, who attended the meeting.

The committee, which was to be appointed Friday, has also been labeled unworkable because it would have neither the powers nor expertise to conduct a full investigation.

Several public officials privately admitted Tuesday that the committee idea appeared headed for the drain.

Lahners Cosponsor

County Atty. Lahners, cosponsor of the committee proposal, said the whole idea of citizen participation was to bring more credibility to the investigation. But if the black community doesn't like the idea, then it probably shouldn't be done, he said.

The other sponsor, Mayor Helen Boosalis, didn't deny that the nine-member panel may be abolished before the week is out, but said she is still accepting names for the committee.

The mayor said there is "a great deal of interest among people in the community to serve on the committee."

Even Omaha State Sen. Ernest Chambers is circulating petitions asking that he be named to the panel, Ms. Polk said.

While not confirming that officials may dismantle the committee proposal before it is even set up, Mrs. Boosalis admitted, "We're looking at alternatives."

And the entire committee controversy may be moot if Lahners himself releases information on his investigation yet this week.

The FBI investigation in to the shooting incident is being wrapped up and a report, several hundred pages long, will probably be completed within the next few days, said U.S. Atty. Dan Wherry Tuesday afternoon.

But Wherry cautioned that any decision on possible federal criminal charges will probably not be made until next week and that the FBI report will not be made public on a "wholesale basis" because of privacy laws and Justice Department rules.

The actual investigation into possible civil rights violations has taken about twice as long as expected Wherry said, because "I asked them to do a very complete job."

Acknowledging some pressure from the emotional community situation, Wherry said, "I will not be intimidated by rash allegations and threats of violence to give short shrift to my review of the report."

The report has been given top priority and there has been no delay in the investigation, Wherry said.

An investigation of possible civil rights violations in the shooting incident does not necessarily have anything to do with race, creed or color, Wherry explains. The investigation centers around whether Lewis' constitutional rights were violated during the incident.

Officers Interviewed

In related developments, Lahners spent most of Tuesday afternoon talking individually with police officers involved in the search warrant party.

Lahners also said the FBI will be giving him the only written statement made by Deputy Loos. "I'll be reading that report before I make any decision on whether or not to file any charges.

Because of community unrest following the Lewis shooting, trouble shooters for the Justice Department community relations division in Kansas City have spent two days in Lincoln during the past two weeks.

John Perez, director of the regional office, and another staff member were in Lincoln Monday and talked with both black community members and city and county officials.

Mediation Group

Perez said the independent agency, which helps mediate race related situations, was asked to come to Lincoln by a "private citizen," not a public official.

He said Monday's visit would probably not be the last by his staff as they try to assess the local situation and offer conciliation services.

Vacationing County Sheriff Merle Karnop said Thesday he would "welcome any kind of an investigation into my department," adding that he had "nothing to hide.

Karnopp, who has been on vacation for about three weeks, was contacted by phone in Bend, Ore.

Corporate Taxes Less Than Half Standard Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average effective income tax rate paid by 142 major corporations in 1974 was 22.6%, less than half the standard corporate tax rate, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, said Tuesday.

Vanik, a House Ways and Means subcommittee chairman, said eight companies paid no taxes and 18 more paid at a rate of 10% or less. The standard rate is 48%.

The companies, whose aggregate income was $46 billion, were able to reduce their tax liabilities "through entirely legal means," Vanik said in a speech for the House floor.

"If U.S. corporations are already paying little or nothing in federal income taxes, it makes no sense to give them tax relief in an effort to stimulate investment capital," he said.

"Real tax reform must be congressional and public priority," he added.

President Ford cited the need to encourage the buildup of capital as a reason for the $7 billion in corporate tax reductions he proposed Monday, part of an overall $28 billion tax cut package which Ford said must be matched by equivalent reductions in government spending.

Vanik's presentation was the fourth in a series of annual tax studies he has compiled. He said the figures are approximate "and may reflect tendencies by companies to overstate or understate their tax statistics" but that the figurs "and the computed effective tax rates are very kind to the corporations."

He listed eight companies that he said paid no federal income taxes for 1974, primarily because of tax credits, losses and other items carried forward or backward from other years. Vanik listed the companies and their 1974 adjusted net incomes as:

Ford Motor Co., $351.9 million; Lockheed Aircraft Corp., $29.8 million; Honeywell, $98.8 million; U.S. Industries, Inc., $17.9 million; American Airlines, $26.7 million; Eastern Airlines, $17.6 million; American Electric Power Co., $163.7 million and Allstate Insurance Co., including subsidiaries, $137.3 million.

The companies which Vanik said paid at an effective rate of 10% or less included Consolidated Edison, LTV Corp., Occidental Petroleum Corp.; Chase Manhattan Corp.; Texaco, Inc.; Continental-Illinois Corp.; Bankers Trust New York Corp.; Northwest Airlines, Inc.; Mobil Oil Corp, Texasgulf; Pennzoil Co.; American Metal Climax, Inc.; American Motors Corp.; UAL, Inc.; Delta Airlines, Inc.; McDonnell Douglas Corp.; Bank America Corp., and Commonwealth Edison.

Presumably many of the corporations, especially oil companies, will pay somewhat higher effective rates in the future because of the recently enacted law that eliminated the oil depletion allowance for major producers and tightened the allowances for taxes paid foreign governments.

Vanik said his studies disclose that "while the 142 companies paid more than $14.4 billion in taxes and other fees to foreign governments, they paid only $10.8 billion to the U.S. Treasury in federal income taxes."

The companies which Vanik said paid at an effective rate of 10% or less included Consolidated Edison, LTV Corp., Occidental Petroleum Corp.; Chase Manhattan Corp.; Texaco, Inc.; Continental-Illinois Corp.; Bankers Trust New York Corp.; Northwest Airlines, Inc.; Mobil Oil Corp, Texasgulf; Pennzoil Co.; American Metal Climax, Inc.; American Motors Corp.; UAL, Inc.; Delta Airlines, Inc.; McDonnell Douglas Corp.; Bank America Corp., and Commonwealth Edison.

Presumably many of the corporations, especially oil companies, will pay somewhat higher effective rates in the future because of the recently enacted law that eliminated the oil depletion allowance for major producers and tightened the allowances for taxes paid foreign governments.

Vanik said his studies disclose that "while the 142 companies paid more than $14.4 billion in taxes and other fees to foreign governments, they paid only $10.3 billion to the U.S. Treasury in federal income taxes."

School Lunch Bill Enacted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and Senate enacted on Tuesday a $2.75 billion child nutrition bill that President Ford vetoed four days earlier as too costly.

It was the seventh time in the 14-month Ford presidency that the heavily Democratic Congress mustered the two-thirds vote needed to override a presidential veto.

In all, Ford has vetoed 39 bills, 12 this year.

In the House, the tally was a lopsided 397 to 18 against the President, a massive 120 votes more than two-thirds.

In the Senate, the vote was 79 to 13, 17 more than two-thirds.

The action extends a school breakfast program which feeds 1.8 million low income children daily and expands the school lunch program by requiring schools to offer 20-cent lunches to students whose parents earn between the poverty level of $5,010 and $9,770.

It also continues and expands programs that provide nutritional meals to low-income mothers, pregnant women and infants.

Ford said in casting his 12th veto of the current Congress last Friday that the bill would add $1.2 billion to his budget, adding "I cannot accept such fiscal irresponsibility."

The President called the measure "worse than the programs we now have" and contended it extended nutrition programs to non-needy children.

In Knoxville, Tenn., Ford said the override: "I honestly don't think that the taxpayers as a whole should subsidize free lunches for children of families that have $9,500 a year.

In Tuesday's House debate, Chairman Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., of the House Education and Labor Committee said the facts don't bear that out.

And in the Senate, Chairman Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., of the Agriculture Committee accused the President of using "grossly misleading" statistics in his veto message.

"Mr Ford is again playing the number game with Congress and the American people," Talmadge said, noting that the President said he was willing to accept extension of existing programs at a cost of close to $1 million over his budget.

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., led the fight to sustain Ford's veto, contending that the measure not only surpasses the President's budget but is $216 million more than the level for the programs in the congressional budget.

And he criticized the provision that requires states to give 20-cent lunches to children above the poverty level, declaring that provided a federal subsidy "for a good many families able to pay it for themselves."

Actual funds to pay for the programs in the bill will be included in separate appropriations legislation. However, Tuesday's action was the key towards determining the level at which they will be funded.

The Senate vote came after George McGovern, D-S.D., chairman of the Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, said the presidential veto "makes no sense on economic or political grounds," adding that increases in the bill barely cover price rises due to inflation.

The action marked the third time in recent weeks that Congress had overriden a presidential veto in the social welfare area. In July, it enacted a series of health programs Ford had vetoed and last month it overrode his veto of a money bill providing more funds for education than the President wanted.

Earlier in the year, Ford won battles with Congress when the House sustained his vetoes of farm, jobs, housing and strip mine measures.

The seven Ford vetoes overriden so far are the largest number of defeats suffered by any President since Congress overrode 12 vetoes by President Harry S. Truman — but over an eight year period.

President Ford did not get much comfort from Republicans on Tuesday's veto vote. In the House, 123 GOP members voted to override. Fourteen sided with Ford and eight did not vote. Only four Democrats voted to sustain.

In the Senate, 20 Republicans voted with the Democrats to override, while 13 voted to sustain the veto. No Democrats sided with Ford in the Senate.

State Congressmen Vote With Majority

Washington (UPI) — Nebraska's three-member congressional delegation joined with the majority Tuesday in overriding President Ford's veto of the school lunch act on a 397 to 18 vote.

Reps. John Y. McCollister, Charles Thone and Virginia Smith were among 123 Republicans joining 274 Democrats in the overwhelming override.

Senators In Minority

Washington (UPI) — Republican Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska of Nebraska both voted with the minority Tuesday when the Senate voted 79-13 to override the veto of the school lunch bill.

Regiment Mutinies, Runs Up Red Flag

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A heavily armed artillery regiment in Oporto mutinied Tuesday and ran a red banner up the flagpole, demanding dismissal of the northern region's new military commander and an end to what the rebels call purges of leftists from the barracks.

The 800 mutineers of the Serra do Pilar regiment — encamped on a bluff across the deep Douro River gorge from Portugal's second largest city and equipped with heavy artillery — said they would hold out until their demands were met.

The northern region commander, Gen. Antonio Pires Veloso, first said he would bomb the camp if the men didn't submit, then withdrew the threat. All other units in the north were put on strict alert and confined to barracks.

Oporto is 175 miles north of Lisbon.

The regiment's revolt was seen as the most serious challenge yet to the government's aim of shaping up the undisciplined, Communist-infiltrated military.

In Portugal's Azores islands, 1,000 miles west of here, a radio broadcast from Santa Maria said the Azores Liberation Front had informed Lisbon it wants a referendum on independence. The group said it will declare independence in 8 days if Lisbon fails to reply.

On Madeira island, 600 miles southwest of Lisbon, a radio station was occupied for several hours by former employes demanding that five Communists be purged from the staff. The radio's office in Lisbon said police ousted the intruders but an evening television newscast said the occupiers were still in control.

The mutiny followed announcement by the 1st Light Artillery Regiment (RALLIS) in Lisbon on Monday that it would resist President Francisco da Costa Gomes' call for military discipline. It highlighted the dangerous political polarization that has put opposing parts of the army on a civil war footing.

Military sources said the Oporto unit controls an arsenal of 700 tons of light arms and ammunition which could be distributed to civilians backing the revolt.

The mutiny was linked to the disbandment last Saturday of a military driver training center in Oporto which had fallen under the sway of leftist political activists. Gen. Pires Veloso sent armed men into the center to shut it down. The artillery unit demanded his dismissal and that the center be reopened.

Late Tuesday, metal workers taking part in a nationwide strike marched past the driving center and shouted for it to be reopened. Military security forces inside threw grenades at them after they refused to move on, eyewitnesses reported.

Ford's Tax Proposal Declared 'Impossible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress cannot pledge to meet President Ford's request for a $28 billion tax cut tied to an equal reduction on spending until it sees the administration's new budget, the House's chief tax writer said Tuesday.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said Ford's plan is "an impossible one." Ford proposed enactment of $28 billion in permanent tax cuts for 1976 if Congress agrees to cut spending by an identical amount, setting a $395 billion spending ceiling for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, 1976.

The $28 billion total for 1976, which Ford called "the biggest single tax cut in our history," includes the 1975 tax cuts totaling $22.9 billion which the President wants to extend. Ford's plan does not contain any provision for rebates, but individual taxpayers would get about $2.6 billion more in tax reductions in 1976 than in 1975.

White House tax tables show that if Ford's individual tax reductions are enacted, a family of four with income of $15,000 would be able to reduce taxes by $287 more in 1976 than it can this year. The saving for the same size family with an income of $20,000 would be $310.

The tables show a single person with an income of $10,000 would be able to reduce his taxes by $249 more in 1976 than he can this year. It would be $264 for a single person earning $20,000.

As the tax-writing committee began work on an assortment of tax revision legislation, including Ford's plan, Ullman said that "if the President wants a $395 billion budget, why doesn't he submit a $395 billion budget?"

Addressing Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, a witness before the committee, Ullman asked: "Are you sitting there with a straight face and saying that Congress can be expected to put a ceiling on a budget it hasn't seen, without knowing what priorities would be set — to blindly strike out with no information on the budget ... and put a tax cut in place by January?"

Simon argued that Congress could pledge itself to a $395 billion spending ceiling and leave the details to be worked out in talks with the Ford administration.

Simon emphasized that Ford will veto any tax reduction plan — including a simple extension of the tax cuts enacted in 1975 — unless it is accompanied by a spending ceiling.

Ullman said there is a need for "an accommodation with the President so we will not face a (tax) crunch in January, and so the House can work responsibly on budget procedures." The tax cuts enacted this year expire Dec. 31. Ford must submit his new budget to Congress in January.

Simon said Congress has budget-making machinery through newly created committees and added: "We would be delighted to work with them and show what the executive plans to do."

Ullman said Congress would be happy to work with the administration responsibly, "but to expect us to strike out blindly and put on a $395 billion ceiling without a budget strikes me as totally preposterous. I must say I am rather shocked that the administration would propose such a thing."

House Speaker Carl Albert said he agrees with Ullman.

Ford told Republican leaders at the White House on Tuesday that "if he has to veto 100 bills to hold down spending, he'll do it," said Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill.

Proposal Illustrated

Washington (AP) — Here is a table of tax liabilities for a family of four, filing joint with itemized deductions of 16% of adjusted gross income. If standard deduction exceeds itemized deduction, family uses standard deduction.

Column A is the tax liability under 1972-74 law. Column B is tax liability under 1975 law and Column C would be the tax liability under President Ford's recommendations for 1976. Column D shows how much the Ford proposals would reduce income tax liability compared to 1972-1974 taxes and Column E shows how those proposals would cut taxes compared to 1975.

Ford Tells Demos: 'Be Imaginative'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Ford declared Tuesday that despite protests from Democratic congressional leaders his proposed tax and spending cuts can be achieved "if they put their noses to the grindstone and show a little imagination and strength."

Unless his proposed budget lid of $395 billion for next fiscal year is enacted, said Ford, the government will face a two-year deficit of about $140 billion.

If Congress goes along with his plan, said Ford, he would expect a deficit of $40 to $45 billion in the next bookkeeping year.

Intelligence Fails To Predict Coup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refusing to talk about U.S. covert activities in Portugal, U.S. intelligence officials said Tuesday they failed to predict either the coup there last year or the emergence of Portugal's leftist government.

Officials of three U.S. intelligence agencies told the Select House Intelligence Committee that they did not predict the coup partly because they were not paying great attention to Portugal.

Further, Director William Hyland said it was not clear to his State Department Bureau of Intelligence and Research until last March that Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves, since thrown out, had taken control.

Intelligence analysis is being upgraded after failures in Portugal, Cyprus and the Mideast, CIA analyst Keith Clark testified. But he said: "I cannot guarantee against all surprises."

The officials refused to make any comment whatever when the committee's senior Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, began asking if there are U.S. covert activities in Portugal to counter Soviet covert efforts there.

"You mean you can't even say in open session if we have covert operations going on?" McClory asked.

"I would ask you not to press that question," replied Lt. Gen. Samuel V. Wilson, who was in charge of the Defense Intelligence Agency's military attache system at the time.

However, when McClory asked later if counteracting Soviet KGB operations was not one of the CIA's functions, Clark replied: "I believe it is."

All three officials said U.S. intelligence provided accurate assessments before the spread of Army discontent and conditions that became factors in the coup.

But Hyland testified "there was no specific warning of the coup of April 25, 1974, in Portugal."

Ford's Tax Proposal Declared 'Impossible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress cannot pledge to meet President Ford's request for a $28 billion tax cut tied to an equal reduction on spending until it sees the administration's new budget, the House's chief tax writer said Tuesday.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said Ford's plan is "an impossible one." Ford proposed enactment of $28 billion in permanent tax cuts for 1976 if Congress agrees to cut spending by an identical amount, setting a $395 billion spending ceiling for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, 1976.

The $28 billion total for 1976, which Ford called "the biggest single tax cut in our history," includes the 1975 tax cuts totaling $22.9 billion which the President wants to extend. Ford's plan does not contain any provision for rebates, but individual taxpayers would get about $2.6 billion more in tax reductions in 1976 than in 1975.

White House tax tables show that if Ford's individual tax reductions are enacted, a family of four with income of $15,000 would be able to reduce taxes by $287 more in 1976 than it can this year. The saving for the same size family with an income of $20,000 would be $310.

The tables show a single person with an income of $10,000 would be able to reduce his taxes by $249 more in 1976 than he can this year. It would be $264 for a single person earning $20,000.

As the tax-writing committee began work on an assortment of tax revision legislation, including Ford's plan, Ullman said that "if the President wants a $395 billion budget, why doesn't he submit a $395 billion budget?"

Addressing Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, a witness before the committee, Ullman asked: "Are you sitting there with a straight face and saying that Congress can be expected to put a ceiling on a budget it hasn't seen, without knowing what priorities would be set — to blindly strike out with no information on the budget ... and put a tax cut in place by January?"

Simon argued that Congress could pledge itself to a $395 billion spending ceiling and leave the details to be worked out in talks with the Ford administration.

Simon emphasized that Ford will veto any tax reduction plan — including a simple extension of the tax cuts enacted in 1975 — unless it is accompanied by a spending ceiling.

Ullman said there is a need for "an accommodation with the President so we will not face a (tax) crunch in January, and so the House can work responsibly on budget procedures." The tax cuts enacted this year expire Dec. 31. Ford must submit his new budget to Congress in January.

Simon said Congress has budget-making machinery through newly created committees and added: "We would be delighted to work with them and show what the executive plans to do."

Ullman said Congress would be happy to work with the administration responsibly, "but to expect us to strike out blindly and put on a $395 billion ceiling without a budget strikes me as totally preposterous. I must say I am rather shocked that the administration would propose such a thing."

House Speaker Carl Albert said he agrees with Ullman.

Ford told Republican leaders at the White House on Tuesday that "if he has to veto 100 bills to hold down spending, he'll do it," said Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill.

Proposal Illustrated

Washington (AP) — Here is a table of tax liabilities for a family of four, filing joint with itemized deductions of 16% of adjusted gross income. If standard deduction exceeds itemized deduction, family uses standard deduction.

Column A is the tax liability under 1972-74 law. Column B is tax liability under 1975 law and Column C would be the tax liability under President Ford's recommendations for 1976. Column D shows how much the Ford proposals would reduce income tax liability compared to 1972-1974 taxes and Column E shows how those proposals would cut taxes compared to 1975.

5,000	98	0	0	98	0
7,000	402	186	60	342	126

Ford Tells Demos: 'Be Imaginative'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Ford declared Tuesday that despite protests from Democratic congressional leaders his proposed tax and spending cuts can be achieved "if they put their noses to the grindstone and show a little imagination and strength."

Unless his proposed budget lid of $395 billion for next fiscal year is enacted, said Ford, the government will face a two-year deficit of about $140 billion.

If Congress goes along with his plan, said Ford, he would expect a deficit of $40 to $45 billion in the next bookkeeping year.

New York Times News Summary

Brezhnev Urges Persistence

Moscow — The Soviet Academy of Sciences launched its belated 250th anniversary jubilee Tuesday with party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev urging Soviet scientists to work "more persistently" in the service of the Soviet Union and its Communist ideology.

Compromise Sought

Washington — A House-Senate conference committee began meeting Tuesday in an effort to resolve the differences between bills passed by the House and Senate dealing with oil prices and energy conservation.

Court Appearance Delayed

San Francisco — Patricia Hearst's next court appearance was tentatively delayed for two weeks Tuesday as her attorneys and prosecutors received a secret preliminary report of psychiatrists' opinions about her mental state.

Leftovers Shipped Out

Bangkok, Thailand — Huge quantities of civilian and military goods left behind in South Vietnam by the United States are being shipped out of the port of Saigon to North Vietnam, according to western officials and refugees recently arrived from Saigon.

Guild Continues Work

Washington — Members of the Newspaper Guild at The Washington Post voted narrowly Tuesday night — by a margin of only 19 votes — to continue working during a walkout of printing pressmen that is now in its sixth day. But two additional craft unions at the nation's seventh largest newspaper — the mailers and the photo-engravers — formally went on strike Tuesday and their action, coupled with rising turmoil in the Guild, raised the prospect of a long and costly walkout.

Loans To N.Y. Proposed

Washington — Rep. Henry S. Reuss, chairman of the House Committee on Banking, Currency and Housing, proposed legislation to provide $7 billion in federal loans and loan guarantees to New York State to ease the city's fiscal crisis.

Students To Leave Early

Palo Alto, Calif. — Starting this year, all 16- and 17-year-old students in California will be eligible to leave high school early and legally if they pass a special new test to prove they are literate.

Teacher Agreement Rejected

New York — The Emergency Financial Control Board rejected the agreement that ended last month's five-day teacher strike because of "excessive costs." Gov. Hugh Carey says the contract will be sent back to the parties for "whatever needs to be done" to make the agreement conform to the budget.

Vasectomy Reversed

New York — A University of California urologist, Dr. Sherman J. Silber, has developed a microscopic surgical technique which thus far has proved completely effective in reversing a vasectomy, a means of male sterilization that is ordinarily regarded as permanent.

Finance Plan Re-Examined

Washington — A tight fund-raising situation compounded by the threat of competition from Ronald Reagan has forced President Ford's political finance advisers to reexamine their plan for financing his 1976 primary campaign.

Hirohito In Illinois

Visiting a 750-acre Illinois farm to see how the corn and soybeans imported by Japan are grown and mechanically harvested, Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako topped off a day spent mainly in Chicago with Mayor Richard J. Daley as their guide and luncheon host.

Intelligence Fails To Predict Coup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refusing to talk about U.S. covert activities in Portugal, U.S. intelligence officials said Tuesday they failed to predict either the coup there last year or the emergence of Portugal's leftist government.

Officials of three U.S. intelligence agencies told the Select House Intelligence Committee that they did not predict the coup partly because they were not paying great attention to Portugal.

Further, Director William Hyland said it was not clear to his State Department Bureau of Intelligence and Research until last March that Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves, since thrown out, had taken control.

Intelligence analysis is being upgraded after failures in Portugal, Cyprus and the Mideast, CIA analyst Keith Clark testified. But he said: "I cannot guarantee against all surprises."

The officials refused to make any comment whatever when the committee's senior Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, began asking if there are U.S. covert activities in Portugal to counter Soviet covert efforts there.

"You mean you can't even say in open session if we have covert operations going on?". McClory asked.

"I would ask you not to press that question," replied Lt. Gen. Samuel V. Wilson, who was in charge of the Defense Intelligence Agency's military attache system at the time.

However, when McClory asked later if counteracting Soviet KGB operations was not one of the CIA's functions, Clark replied: "I believe it is."

All three officials said U.S. intelligence provided accurate assessments before the spread of Army discontent and conditions that became factors in the coup.

But Hyland testified "there was no specific warning of the coup of April 25, 1974, in Portugal."

Of Course It's Political

President Ford's proposed tax cut and spending ceiling is not only unrealistic, say the Democrats, but political as well. Democrats accusing the Republican president of playing politics with the tax cut is just as political, as anybody who cares one way or another can readily see.

It would be politically stupid for any candidate for election to propose ending the temporary tax relief measure at the end of this year. It is a matter of survival for candidates in next year's elections to come up with a program that extends that relief for at least another fiscal year. Both President and Congress, thus, were bound to have tax cut proposals.

President Ford's suggestion is to make the tax cut permanent by raising exemptions and deductions and lowering the rates for individuals and corporations to fashion revenue decreases in a total amount of $28 billion. Three-fourths of the tax savings would benefit individual taxpayers. But tied to the cut would be a ceiling on government expenditures. Ford said he would veto any tax reduction bill unless Congress agrees to the ceiling, and he said he would continue to veto what he believes to be excessive spending measures.

Ford's is a pretty neat package, easy for anyone to comprehend: We'll cut taxes because we'll cut expenditures and you folks will have more money to spend on things you need or to save if you can, he is saying.

And he will get a lot of support from people for the idea of decreasing spending, or at least, like in the war against crime, for the idea of slowing down the rate of increase.

But the President talked in general terms to the public when he announced his tax cut-spending ceiling proposal. To make a better judgment on the merits of Ford's package, people will have to wait until his budget is presented so they may get a glimpse of those areas in which Ford himself wants to cut. We can imagine which they are, but a check of the next budget and a statement of specifics by the President will be helpful.

What it will boil down to, we imagine, is the same old spending argument. Those in the administration and Congress who are friends of the military-industrial sector who mindlessly believe that the Pentagon has never wasted a nickel and who believe that spending on social programs encourages immorality will be arguing with those domestic liberal types who believe, equally mindlessly, that to spend is to cure in the social area but that expenditures for defense are immoral. To effect cuts in expenditures there will have to be some give and take and it remains to be seen if Ford and the Congress will engage in any.

Lewis Case Incredible

The case of a deputy sheriff shooting Sherdell Lewis becomes more incredible every day. Can you believe, for instance, the statement attributed to County Attorney Ron Lahners that he has no report from Rod Loos, the deputy sheriff who killed Lewis?

Can you believe the county attorney would say one time that police reported Lewis had a gun in his hands at the time of the shooting and then reporting a week later that one policeman said Lewis had no gun? And can you believe the appointment of a citizens committee to investigate the shooting?

At issue is the guilt or innocence of Deputy Loos in the killing of Lewis. Are we henceforth to have such matters decided by a citizens committee?

Where in the world does that fit in the judicial system? How on earth is this committee supposed to be qualified to judge the actions of Deputy Loos? It is not fair to Loos and it is not fair to the community.

And how about the county attorney bad mouthing both a grand jury and a coroner's jury? The grand jury, he reminded us, is "secret" so that would not get the facts out to the public.

The coroner's jury, he said, is "antiquated." Even if Lahners is right on both counts, what alternative is there?

Well, there is an alternative and the only thing we can say is that it becomes incumbent upon Lahners to use it. That alternative is for the county attorney to conduct his own investigation and decide whether or not any charges are warranted in the shooting.

No way can Lahners absolve himself of that responsibility through the work of a citizens committee or even the work of the FBI and the civil rights division of the federal government. We believe a citizens committee is warranted in this case for a number of reasons, but none of those reasons is the determination of the propriety of the action by Loos.

Lahners has not yet made a complete fiasco of this case but he is moving rapidly in that direction. Nor are we enthralled with Mayor Helen Boosalis' recommendation, with Lahners, for the investigating committee and the approval of that recommendation by a majority of city and county officials.

What has taken place to date in the Lewis case has done nothing to warrant the confidence of the public in the legal processes of the county.

"IT SAYS HERE THERE ARE SOME LOOPHOLES IN THE GUN CONTROL LAWS"

KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

Gun Control And Punishment

WASHINGTON — A prediction: After two attempts to shoot the President, the upcoming legislative debate over gun control is likely to produce some congressional action, just as the previous federal gun control law — weak legislation principally focused on mail order sales — was enacted in the furor after the 1968 assassinations of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

A suggestion: There may be a rare opportunity for constructive ideological compromise. Conservatives should give some ground and (at minimum) accept 1) prohibitions against sale of "Saturday night specials" and 2) requirements that handgun-buyers personally identify themselves and wait 14 days for delivery. After all, British, Australian, German and French conservatives accept strong firearms control (and yearly gun homicide rates in those nations range from 0.1 to 0.6 per 100,000 population, while ours is a bloody 6.2).

Meanwhile, liberals must begin accepting strict punishment and sentencing of criminals instead of repeating tired excuses and pleas for policy to focus on poverty, sociology and rehabilitation. Budgets for endless welfare, social work and new experimental prisons simply do not exist. But beyond the problem of shrinking public funds, there is growing realization, even in academic circles, that "soft" theories haven't worked, and that the answer is: toughness and punishment.

Linda Singer, executive director of the Center for Correctional Justice, told a September conference on crime that the thrust in her field has shifted from grandiose ideas of rehabilitation and changing criminals to seeking mainly to handle prisoners without making them worse. Harvard Prof. James Q. Wilson, author of a new book on crime says rehabilitation has failed, and "as a result, experts are turning their attention once again to protective and punitive functions of prisons."

Turning to prevention, Prof. Wilson argues that "in those states where the certainty of punishment is the highest, the crime rate is lowest." Several other socio-economic researchers have arrived at similar results. Isaac Ehrlich of the University of Chicago has produced statistics showing that states with better police protection, higher certainty of conviction and longer prison sentences have lower crime rates than more permissive states. Using a distillation of 1933-69 data published in the July 1975 American Economic Review, Ehrlich argues that there is a statistical trade-off between execution and murder: Each execution prevents 17 murders. Prof. Gordon Tullock of Virginia Polytechnic Institute (VPI) says "There is no question any longer. Economists in the U.S., Canada and England have shown that punishment does cut down on crime."

Moreover, the entire programmatic and rhetorical thrust of the 1960s — feeding unfulfillable expectations — may itself have been a major crime factor. Dr. Milton Eisenhower, who headed the 1969 Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, cites the "J Curve" of rising expectations as "possibly the greatest single cause of the tremendous increase in crime."

For all these reasons, it's time to stop beating around the criminological bush. Gun registration doesn't work — New York's Sullivan Act, for example, has been a dismal failure. But let's crack down on Saturday night specials and curb easy purchase of handguns. At the same time, let's get rid of the theme that pistols or poverty rather than people are the culprits. State and Federal "people control" must go along with gun control — laws must be passed to provide mandatory sentences, prolonged jail terms, denial of probation and increased penalties when crimes are committed with firearms (also stricter penalties where persons with criminal records carry concealed weapons).

The principal answer to crime is, and always has been, punishment.

So This Is Depravity

NEW YORK — With the Democrats coming to New York for their convention next year, everyone is suddenly worried about sheltering them from the depravity of Times Square, Forty-Second Street and Eighth Avenue.

Sheltering a Democrat from depravity has always seemed to me to be an offense against nature, like sheltering a fish from water, but a friend in the city government insists that what goes on in the midtown depravity zone makes Friday night at the typical Democratic Club seem, by comparison, like a Girl Scout picnic.

To persuade me of the degradation which will imperil Democrats unless the area is cleaned up, he took me to a pornographic film parlor off Seventh Avenue, which lies right in the Democrats' line of vision.

Admission was $5. "You've got nothing to worry about," I told my firend. "You'll never catch a Democrat laying out five bucks for a movie when he can hang out in the convention bars and cadge free drinks from the candidates' bag men."

"They could be forced to take sanctuary in places like this to escape the prostitutes on Eighth Avenue," he said.

We watched some of the movie. It was shocking. Sex is apparently hard labor. Various persons supported crushing weights in agonizing positions for what seemed endless blocks of time. Exhausted men grunted and toiled like movers trying to get a refrigerator into a fifth-floor walkup.

"Should Democrats be forced to look at stuff like this?" my friend demanded.

"As friends of the laboring man, they should not only look at it, they should stand up and cheer," I told him.

☆ ☆ ☆

After awhile, the movie dramatized the thankless lot to which woman has been reduced in the sexual labor force. A dispirited woman, obviously defeated by years of sweatshop labor, trudged about naked in a kitchen cooking a chicken dinner.

"Disgusting," murmured my friend.

"But politically powerful," I whispered. "If every Democrat in Congress could see this there'd soon be legislation guaranteeing that poor creature enough pay for her labor to buy a housecoat and put some sirloin on the table."

"Shut up," said my friend.

We watched in dismay while a giggling, deformed man, who appeared to be an idiot, struggled to move several hundred pounds of listless female furniture that had been placed in awkward positions.

"Exploitation of the mentally defective for the vicious purpose of perpetuating a system of human labor that should have been automated years ago," I said. "If the Democrats see this, you can bet there'll be new fair-labor legislation to bring sex into the Twentieth Century."

"You're spoiling the movie for me," said my friend.

I subsided, for the movie had switched themes. Having dramatized the odious toil and punishment of sex, the movie now began illustrating various machine operations. It had become essentially an industrial training film designed to instruct sex workers in industrial processes.

For this purpose, seven or eight human bodies were employed. By example, the film demonstrated various functions of machinery. In sex, I gathered, the human body is not regarded as a human body, but as plant equipment.

Now the laborers, who had toiled so dispiritedly in the earlier sequences, took turns demonstrating sundry mechanical processes their machines could perform, and we had a lengthy, didactic illustration of generator upkeep, valve timing, lubrication maintenance, clutch disengagement and other such engineering matters.

I was disgusted and hauled my friend out of the theater.

"That cuts it," I told him. "When the Democrats see that sex is turning people into machines, I think we can count on fast action."

"They'll outlaw it," said my friend, somewhat sadly.

"And why not? I demanded. "Who wants their life afflicted with something like that?"

MARIANNE MEANS

Bayh Effort Unrecognized?

WASHINGTON — In the past two weeks, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana has received more than 7,000 letters from people who say they hate him and threaten political revenge upon him.

That's a dickens of a way to begin a presidential campaign, which Bayh is about to do next month.

The letters are from voters upset about the defeat in Bayh's Judiciary subcommittee of all proposals that would amend the Constitution to overturn the Supreme Court decision legalizing limited abortion.

Roughly half of the messages are worded identically and come from various "right to life" committees. Their national newsletter, "Life Letter," also denounces Bayh this week for "ambushing" the amendments, "masking his intentions," and personally marshaling the demise.

Bayh is not surprised by the abuse. He has frequently been picketed, over the past 18 months while his subcommittee held hearings into the subject, by anti-abortion advocates. The "right to life" committees in Indiana campaigned vigorously against him last fall, but he was re-elected to a third term despite them.

There is no special-interest lobby as well-organized, as single-minded or as vicious to its opponents as the anti-abortion activists.

Bayh never committed himself publicly on the abortion issue before the committee vote, but privately he frankly agreed with his wife Marvella that such a decision should be made by a woman and her doctor, without state interference. Since the vote, he has said he will try to block any further moves to defy the High Court on this issue.

He drew criticism from women's organizations for holding extensive hearings which seemed to give more time to anti-abortionists than to those who supported the Supreme Court decision. During the most publicized session, four Catholic cardinals testified that the operation should be outlawed even if doctors thought it necessary to save the life of the mother. The life of a woman, they argued, is not as important as the life of a fetus, which might turn out to be a male.

But Bayh recognized that the issue was so inflammatory the only responsible legislative course would be long hearings. Finally, when Bayh was convinced he had the votes, he pulled the plug on the problem.

It was an act of some political courage. Bayh could have postponed the vote or played a less active role in assuring the amendment's defeat. Presidential candidates traditionally tend to duck the tough ones.

☆ ☆ ☆

Strangely, Bayh has so far had little thanks from women's organizations. As the Senate's chief champion of the Equal Rights Amendment and other measures to end discrimination against women, Bayh has earned a claim upon the women's vote (if, indeed, there is such a thing). So far, however, female activists have been slow to appreciate his efforts.

He has, for instance, received only about 300 letters praising him for steering the anti-abortion amendments into the trash can.

The leaders of several women's organizations have expressed their gratitude as have some pro-abortion activists. But women in general seem not to have paid a whole lot of attention to the struggle, perhaps naively assuming the Supreme Court had settled the whole problem.

Bayh is counting on his record on behalf of women's rights to help his presidential campaign. He will officially announce his candidacy soon. But it appears he will first have to educate women as to just how good to them he has really been.

Check Your Cat's Collar

Lincoln

A friendly young cat was just in our yard. When I petted it, I found a flea collar buried in its fur and so tight that my finger wouldn't slip under it when I loosened the clasp.

If this gray cat belongs to you or if you have a cat wearing a collar, please check to see if your cat has grown or put on weight. Those collars should be loose enough to slip off in case they become caught on something.

A piece of ¼-inch elastic is a much safer "regular" collar than the type you buy.

Fun Run Praised

Lincoln

Although a letter of commendation is not as exciting to read nor does it provoke a great deal of controversy, it certainly is in order for the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce and the University of Nebraska Physical Education and Recreation Department for co-sponsoring the Fun Run held at Pioneers Park this past Sunday (Oct. 5.) The turnout of 140 participants was beyond the greatest expectations of this jogger who thought that anything over 25 runners would constitute a huge success. Even more encouraging was the fact that more than 50 women participated in the run, many of them mothers who just recently began a jogging program. The organizer of this event, Jim Crabbe, deserves a special vote of thanks for the excellent job he did in conducting and marking out the interesting but rather difficult (oh, that last hill) course to run.

Hopefully, the success of this event will foster others like it in the future. It would be nice to be able to look forward to say, possibly three or four runs of this nature dispersed throughout the year. Interest can be sustained by varying the distances and changing the location of each run.

I am sure that I speak for the majority of people who participated in the event in saying that we appreciated the opportunity to run. We all hurt a bit after the run but we also grew a little richer (or slimmer depending upon how you look at it) from the experience. What I particularly enjoyed at the run was the enthusiasm and sensitivity shown by the participants as some of the latter finishers attained their goals of finishing the four or eight-mile distance. To me, running has always meant competing with myself; setting my own goals, regardless of how insignificant they may appear to be, and then striving to attain them. The Fun Run on Sunday did not have one winner but 140 winners. Everyone who participated and finished, in my estimation, was a winner and, in my opinion, that is what running, exercise and athletics is all about.

Buffalo Chip Art

Lincoln

With Nebraska floundering around trying to decide on modern art objects for decoration of highway rest stations, a man in California has developed a paying hobby.

The 75-year-old artist has been providing gilded buffalo chip plaques, with special messages as per customer instructions. He first charged $10 a chip. Now, with the high cost of everything, he charges $28.

The chips must be sterilized, baked, dunked in two coats of resin and paint and then covered with six coats of gold enamel.

How's that for using your head?

Losing Hand

Ravenna

Farmers to get a good deal, so says President Ford. I, as a farmer, would just like to have a "fair deal."

Farmers had a good deal when cattle prices went up. Ford dealt from the bottom of the deck by removing import duty on beef.

When grain prices went up where did he deal from? Right, he dealt from the bottom with an export embargo on grain.

When the oil crisis confronted him he dealt the oil companies a pat hand by placing a 50 cents a barrel tax on imported oil. Of course, the oil companies made some large payments to get this done, with even honest Carl Curtis a recipient.

I hope this man Gerald Ford exposes himself more to the public, even though it is very expensive to spend taxpayer's money to guard a man campaigning for office. Only in this way will the voters be able to see what a shady dealer they have in the White House.

Right To Bear Arms

Lincoln

In reply to Gary Stephens' letter of Oct. 1, I would like to point out that there really is no way to "exaggerate" the second amendment to the Constitution. That amendment quite clearly gives "the people" the right to "keep and bear arms." Any law that infringes on that right is, therefore, unconstitutional. It is a matter of simple logic. No one, Mr. Tomek included, has ever held that the laws, presently on the books, which prohibit murder are unconstitutional. The second amendment does not give us the right to shoot each other down in cold blood. In fact, Mr. Stephens is the first person I have encountered who seems to think it does.

Our founding fathers were not just being quaint and provincial when they added that amendment. They knew exactly what they were doing. They knew that freedom isn't something that can be purchased once and for all. They recognized the principle that freedom must be paid for by each generation and they also realized the possibility of future generations having to buy back that freedom from a power-hungry government. They knew what it was like to be oppressed by a corrupt government. And they also knew how hopeless their situation would have been if, as individuals, they had not been armed, for it was as armed individuals that we first began our fight for independence. It may very well be that the time is near that an armed citizenry will again have to defend itself and its freedom against its own government. For when a government tries to disarm the people, in spite of the desires of the people, and in spite of solid evidence that this disarmament will not solve the crime problem, and in spite of common logic, then that government is up to something, and as citizens we should stop calling each other "insane" and begin protecting what few freedoms we have left.

I subsided, for the movie had switched themes. Having dramatized the odious toil and punishment of sex, the movie now began illustrating various machine operations. It had become essentially an industrial training film designed to instruct sex workers in industrial processes.

For this purpose, seven or eight human bodies were employed. By example, the film demonstrated various functions of machinery. In sex, I gathered, the human body is not regarded as a human body, but as plant equipment.

Now the laborers, who had toiled so dispiritedly in the earlier sequences, took turns demonstrating sundry mechanical processes their machines could perform, and we had a lengthy, didactic illustration of generator upkeep, valve timing, lubrication maintenance, clutch disengagement and other such engineering matters.

I was disgusted and hauled my friend out of the theater.

"That cuts it," I told him. "When the Democrats see that sex is turning people into machines, I think we can count on fast action."

"They'll outlaw it," said my friend, somewhat sadly.

"And why not? I demanded. "Who wants their life afflicted with something like that?"

Bayh Effort Unrecognized?

WASHINGTON — In the past two weeks, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana has received more than 7,000 letters from people who say they hate him and threaten political revenge upon him.

That's a dickens of a way to begin a presidential campaign, which Bayh is about to do next month.

The letters are from voters upset about the defeat in Bayh's Judiciary subcommittee of all proposals that would amend the Constitution to overturn the Supreme Court decision legalizing limited abortion.

Roughly half of the messages are worded identically and come from various "right to life" committees. Their national newsletter, "Life Letter," also denounces Bayh this week for "ambushing" the amendments, "masking his intentions," and personally marshaling the demise.

Bayh is not surprised by the abuse. He has frequently been picketed, over the past 18 months while his subcommittee held hearings into the subject, by anti-abortion advocates. The "right to life" committees in Indiana campaigned vigorously against him last fall, but he was re-elected to a third term despite them.

There is no special-interest lobby as well-organized, as single-minded or as vicious to its opponents as the anti-abortion activists.

Bayh never committed himself publicly on the abortion issue before the committee vote, but privately he frankly agreed with his wife Marvella that such a decision should be made by a woman and her doctor, without state interference. Since the vote, he has said he will try to block any further moves to defy the High Court on this issue.

He drew criticism from women's organizations for holding extensive hearings which seemed to give more time to anti-abortionists than to those who supported the Supreme Court decision. During the most publicized session, four Catholic cardinals testified that the operation should be outlawed even if doctors thought it necessary to save the life of the mother. The life of a woman, they argued, is not as important as the life of a fetus, which might turn out to be a male.

But Bayh recognized that the issue was so inflammatory the only responsible legislative course would be long hearings. Finally, when Bayh was convinced he had the votes, he pulled the plug on the problem.

It was an act of some political courage. Bayh could have postponed the vote or played a less active role in assuring the amendment's defeat. Presidential candidates traditionally tend to duck the tough ones.

☆ ☆ ☆

Strangely, Bayh has so far had little thanks from women's organizations. As the Senate's chief champion of the Equal Rights Amendment and other measures to end discrimination against women, Bayh has earned a claim upon the women's vote (if, indeed, there is such a thing). So far, however, female activists have been slow to appreciate his efforts.

He has, for instance, received only about 300 letters praising him for steering the anti-abortion amendments into the trash can.

The leaders of several women's organizations have expressed their gratitude as have some pro-abortion activists. But women in general seem not to have paid a whole lot of attention to the struggle, perhaps naively assuming the Supreme Court had settled the whole problem.

Bayh is counting on his record on behalf of women's rights to help his presidential campaign. He will officially announce his candidacy soon. But it appears he will first have to educate women as to just how good to them he has really been.

Check Your Cat's Collar

Lincoln

A friendly young cat was just in our yard. When I petted it, I found a flea collar buried in its fur and so tight that my finger wouldn't slip under it when I loosened the clasp.

If this gray cat belongs to you or if you have a cat wearing a collar, please check to see if your cat has grown or put on weight. Those collars should be loose enough to slip off in case they become caught on something.

A piece of ¼-inch elastic is a much safer "regular" collar than the type you buy.

Fun Run Praised

Lincoln

Although a letter of commendation is not as exciting to read nor does it provoke a great deal of controversy, it certainly is in order for the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce and the University of Nebraska Physical Education and Recreation Department for co-sponsoring the Fun Run held at Pioneers Park this past Sunday (Oct. 5.) The turnout of 140 participants was beyond the greatest expectations of this jogger who thought that anything over 25 runners would constitute a huge success. Even more encouraging was the fact that more than 50 women participated in the run, many of them mothers who just recently began a jogging program. The organizer of this event, Jim Crabbe, deserves a special vote of thanks for the excellent job he did in conducting and marking out the interesting but rather difficult (oh, that last hill) course to run.

Hopefully, the success of this event will foster others like it in the future. It would be nice to be able to look forward to say, possibly three or four runs of this nature dispersed throughout the year. Interest can be sustained by varying the distances and changing the location of each run.

I am sure that I speak for the majority of people who participated in the event in saying that we appreciated the opportunity to run. We all hurt a bit after the run but we also grew a little richer (or slimmer depending upon how you look at it) from the experience. What I particularly enjoyed at the run was the enthusiasm and sensitivity shown by the participants as some of the latter finishers attained their goals of finishing the four or eight-mile distance. To me, running has always meant competing with myself; setting my own goals, regardless of how insignificant they may appear to be, and then striving to attain them. The Fun Run on Sunday did not have one winner but 140 winners. Everyone who participated and finished, in my estimation, was a winner and, in my opinion, that is what running, exercise and athletics is all about.

Buffalo Chip Art

Lincoln

With Nebraska floundering around trying to decide on modern art objects for decoration of highway rest stations, a man in California has developed a paying hobby.

The 75-year-old artist has been providing gilded buffalo chip plaques, with special messages as per customer instructions. He first charged $10 a chip. Now, with the high cost of everything, he charges $28.

The chips must be sterilized, baked, dunked in two coats of resin and paint and then covered with six coats of gold enamel.

How's that for using your head?

Losing Hand

Ravenna

Farmers to get a good deal, so says President Ford. I, as a farmer, would just like to have a "fair deal."

Farmers had a good deal when cattle prices went up. Ford dealt from the bottom of the deck by removing import duty on beef.

When grain prices went up where did he deal from? Right, he dealt from the bottom with an export embargo on grain.

When the oil crisis confronted him he dealt the oil companies a pat hand by placing a 50 cents a barrel tax on imported oil. Of course, the oil companies made some large payments to get this done, with even honest Carl Curtis a recipient.

I hope this man Gerald Ford exposes himself more to the public, even though it is very expensive to spend taxpayer's money to guard a man campaigning for office. Only in this way will the voters be able to see what a shady dealer they have in the White House.

Right To Bear Arms

Lincoln

In reply to Gary Stephens' letter of Oct. 1, I would like to point out that there really is no way to "exaggerate" the second amendment to the Constitution. That amendment quite clearly gives "the people" the right to "keep and bear arms." Any law that infringes on that right is, therefore, unconstitutional. It is a matter of simple logic. No one, Mr. Tomek included, has ever held that the laws, presently on the books, which prohibit murder are unconstitutional. The second amendment does not give us the right to shoot each other down in cold blood. In fact, Mr. Stephens is the first person I have encountered who seems to think it does.

Our founding fathers were not just being quaint and provincial when they added that amendment. They knew exactly what they were doing. They knew that freedom isn't something that can be purchased once and for all. They recognized the principle that freedom must be paid for by each generation and they also realized the possibility of future generations having to buy back that freedom from a power-hungry government. They knew what it was like to be oppressed by a corrupt government. And they also knew how hopeless their situation would have been if, as individuals, they had not been armed, for it was as armed individuals that we first began our fight for independence. It may very well be that the time is near that an armed citizenry will again have to defend itself and its freedom against its own government. For when a government tries to disarm the people, in spite of the desires of the people, and in spite of solid evidence that this disarmament will not solve the crime problem, and in spite of common logic, then that government is up to something, and as citizens we should stop calling each other "insane" and begin protecting what few freedoms we have left.

'Parallel Market' Essential To Soviet Economy

©The New York Times
By RICHARD DAVY
London Times Dispatch

London — Anyone who thinks that the Soviet economy is state-controlled should read the latest issue of Survey, an important journal of East-West studies published by the Oxford University Press.

In it, Dimitri K. Simes writes about the "parallel market" in the Soviet Union, a vast area of private enterprise that he reckons accumulates billions of rubles a year, involves most of the Soviet population, and creates a situation in which "virtually everyone who holds a managerial position in the Soviet retail trade breaks the law almost daily."

This is not just the black market which everybody knows about. If Simes is right, it is something much bigger, a market of real economic significance which plays a vital role in the functioning of the system. The problem is that it cannot be measured, so Western economists tend to leave it out of account.

He Was On The Inside

Even Simes has few hard facts, although he quotes frequently from the Soviet press, which is often frank on the subject. But he does have the advantage of knowing the system from the inside. Until he came to the West relatively recently he was on the staff of the Institute of World Economy and International Relations in Moscow.

The parallel market, he says, not only offers superior goods and services to citizens rich enough to pay for them but is also used by government firms, agencies and farms to obtain equipment or spare parts necessary for fulfilling plans.

The main beneficiaries are repairmen, retail tradesmen, doctors and teachers who give private lessons. According to the Literary Gazette the occupants of new apartments in Moscow paid 10 million rubles to private tradesmen in one year for "additional improvements to their apartments." Another paper reported the 85% of new students at Moscow University's mathematics department had used private tutors to prepare themselves for admission. Payment for private medical care is commonplace.

Car Owners Need Market

The elite do not need the parallel market quite as much as other people because it enjoys a range of special privileges, such as access to special shops and special clincis. But according to Simes, everyone who owns a car has to get spare parts on the parallel market, and in 1972-73 more than a third of car owners drove on petrol from the same source.

More significant are the pressures on low and middle-level managers, most of whom, according to Simes, are in one way or another involved in the parallel market.

The chairman of a collective farm convicted of buying stolen property was quoted by the Literary Gazette as having asked desperately whether it was a greater crime to pay thousands of rubles to thieves or to lose a harvest. This type of dilemma faces many managers.

It's Officially Awkward

The authorities have an awkward problem. On the the one hand the parallel market is illegal, ideologically unacceptable, and disruptive in so far as it thrives on stolen goods, stolen time, and the allocation of resources by forces beyond the control of the state. On the other hand it fills gaps in the distribution system, helps managers to fulfill their plans, students to pass their exams, the sick it get better treatment, and consumers to get better goods. It could not be totally abolished without serious disruption or drastic reforms. Among other things, about a quarter of the gross agricultural product is privately produced.

Official attitudes are therefore ambiguous. People are frequently arrested and their cases reported in some detail but in practice a great deal must be consciously tolerated. It is significant that newspapers often attack the malfunctioning of the system as strongly as the moral turpitude of the accused.

Soviet Union, E. Germany Delete Reunification Words

©The New York Times

Moscow — East Germany and the Soviet Union signed a revised friendship treaty Tuesday deleting all previous references to the goal of German reunification.

The new pact, replacing one negotiated in 1964, codifies the Kremlin's desire for a permanently divided Germany. It thereby represents Moscow's first attempt to give legal status to the ratification of Europe's postwar frontiers as prescribed by the European security conference document signed in Helsinki, Finland, last July.

Under the 1964 agreement, the Soviet Union and East Germany stated their view that "creation of a peace-loving, democratic, unified German state can only be reached through conducting equal negotiations and agreement between both sovereign German states."

No such reference to reunification appears in the new treaty. Instead, the document declares that the Soviet Union and East Germany "regard the inviolability of state frontiers in Europe as the most important precondition for safeguarding European security."

Deportation Order For Lennon Reversed

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals reversed Tuesday a deportation order for former Beatle John Lennon and directed reconsideration of his effort to gain permanent residence in the United States.

The order itself had been shelved two weeks ago by the Immigration and Naturalization Service on humanitarian grounds because Lennon's wife was pregnant, but action on the order could have been resumed at any time.

Today's 2-1 decision held that Lennon's 1968 British conviction for possession of hashish, found in a binocular case, does not make the singer an excludable alien, as the Borad of Immigration Appeals had ruled.

The court majority vacated the denial of Lennon's application for permanent residence and the deportation order. It sent the matter back to the board for "reconsideration in accordance with the views expressed in this opinion."

Last Sept. 23, the Immigration Service had stayed the order on the basis of a medical affidavit which said Lennon's wife, Yoko Ono, would be in jeopardy if she were moved at this time or if her husband were forced to leave the country without her. She has permanent resident alien status here.

Firemen End Strike In Kansas City, Mo.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Firemen returned to the job Tuesday after a four-day strike as city and union representatives met with a federal mediator to work out key issues that remained unsettled.

The strike, marked by accusations of arson by firemen and bitter countercharges, ended early Tuesday with the arrival of Jerome Ross, federal mediator, and an agreement by Mayor Charles B. Wheeler Jr. not to dismiss 59 firemen fired Sunday for refusing to return to work.

Key issues which prompted the strike, most notably money, remained unsettled.

Without giving details, officials of Local No. 42 of the International Association of Fire Fighters admitted they had scaled down their original demands of wage parity with city policemen.

Fire fighters currently earn $10,200 to $12,996 annually, while police officers earn $9,432 to $15,305 a year.

In addition, the firemen's union faces two lawsuits, a grand jury investigation of possible arson and sabotage, and an admitted loss of public support.

Between 7 a.m. Friday when the 858 firemen walked off the job and 1:30 a.m. Tuesday when they began returning, more than 150 fires were fought by makeshift crews of police, National Guardsmen and volunteers.

A city hall source placed a "conservative" damage estimate of fires during the 96-hour strike at more than $3 million. There was no loss of life and only one person, an infant, was seriously injured.

City councilmen in the inner city area, where most of the fires occurred during the strike, were opposed to any settlement with the union without getting a commitment from the union to pay for fire damages. Wheeler said the question of liability for fire damage would be one for the courts to decide.

Missouri Atty. Gen. John Danforth filed a damage suit Monday against Frank Shortino, Local No. 42 president, and 13 other members of the local's executive board. The suit seeks $150,000, based on the cost of maintaining more than 700 Guardsmen during the strike and $300,000 punitive damages.

During the strike, Wheeler and Police Chief Joseph McNamara insinuated that firemen may have been responsible for arson and sabotage of fire equipment. The firemen accused the city of "taking cheap shots at us" and said Wheeler was deliberately prolonging the strike to gain publicity and vault him into national office.

Union officials admitted Tuesday their public image had been severly tarnished, but said the strike would never have occurred if the city had entered into negotiations with good faith.

Ford Praises Son's Honesty About Grass

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Ford said Tuesday he has never tried marijuana himself but he praised his 23-year-old son Jack for being frank and honest about his own experience with it.

The President was asked his reaction to his son's disclosure in a Portland, Ore., interview in which Jack said: "I've smoked marijuana before and I don't think that's so exceptional for people growing up in the 1960s." Jack added that he thought the law should treat marijuana as it does wine and beer.

The President said: "I can disagree with what some of the children do" but "as long as they are honest with us and give us an opportunity to give our views — I don't think I should go any further."

Ford had long opposed decriminalization of the private use of marijuana. He told a recent news conference in Washington that "I do not believe we have sufficient evidence at the present time to warrant any recommendation in that regard.

"We have brought up our children to be frank and honest about what they do," the President said during a television and radio interview in Knoxville. He added that it is his belief that a person would "inevitably get caught if you don't tell the truth."

Asked if his wife, Betty, would continue to speak out candidly, Ford said: "I do not think I would be very popular at home if I tried to lay down the law. She does have very good judgment ... Betty will probably speak very frankly as she always does."

Said the President of Mrs. Ford: "She's doing better in the polls than I am."

Ruff Named Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi formally announced on Tuesday the appointment of Charles F. Ruff to succeed Henry S. Ruth as special Watergate prosecutor.

Ruff, 36, has served as a trial attorney with the Watergate force since July 1973 and has been detailed to the Drug Enforcement Administration as acting chief inspector since June 25.

Ruff will continue to serve on the faculty of the Georgetown University Law School and will take the prosecutor's job on a part-time basis.

Levi said he has Ruff's "commitment that he will devote as much time as it necessary to discharge his duties as special prosecutor."

But the prosecutor's office is winding up its major investigations of political scandal and the job no longer requires a full-time prosecutor, Levi said.

Ruth, who was appointed about a year ago, expects to leave later this month to join the Urban Institute.

Ruff becomes the fourth special prosecutor since the office was formed in the spring of 1973. Archibald Cox was the first and Leon Jaworski the second.

Chinese Calls Russians Dangerous

TOKYO (AP) — Soviet bloc diplomats stalked out of a banquet in Peking after a top Chinese official called the Soviet Union "the most dangerous source of war," the Japanese news agency Kyodo reported Tuesday.

The denunciation was immediately followed by a Chinese charge in People's Daily that the Russians have "rapid ambitions" to "swallow the whole globe if they could."

The blast helped to scuttle recent speculation that relations between the two governments might be on the verge of improvement.

Chinese First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, speaking at a dinner Monday for visiting Yugoslav Premier Dzemal Bijedic, lashed out at the Russians despite publication of Soviet greetings to Peking on Oct. 1 calling for normalization of relations and "re-establishment of friendship and cooperation." Oct. 1 was the 26th anniversary of the Communist government in China.

Kyodo said the Soviet, Czech, Hungarian, Polish, Bulgarian, East German and Mongolian envoys walked out of the banquet during Teng's speech. The representatives of North Korea, Romania, Albania, Cuba and North and South Vietnam kept their seats.

In Moscow, Sovietskaya Rossia, the organ of the Communist Central Committee, repeated charges that China is seeking a new world war, but it was thought to have been prepared before Teng's speech.

"The People's Republic of China is one of the few states today where propaganda of war is not outlawed and its leaders are acting as trumpeters of a world conflict," the Soviet newspaper said. "Mao Tse-tung's call, 'Prepare for war, prepare for hunger,' has become a legalized official policy."

The People's Daily attack on the Soviet Union, carried by the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua and monitored in Tokyo, likened the Soviet ruling hierarchy to Adolf Hitler, fuehrer of Nazi Germany.

"The Soviet revisionists, while running mad after arms expansion and war preparations, strike up the tune of 'detente' and chant 'peace' psalms" as Hitler did before invading Poland, it said.

Broadening the assault, Hsinhua charged that Soviet society is plagued by graft, embezzlement, profiteering, prostitution, drunkenness, drug addiction and juvenile delinquency.

"The malignant development of these social evils in the Soviet Union today is the inevitable consequence of the all-round capitalist restoration by the Khrushchev-Brezhnev clique and a manifestation of the reactionary nature, parasitism and decay of Soviet social imperialism," Hsinhua declared.

The average Soviet citizen consumes twice as much liquor as the average American, it continued, and every year six million to seven million Soviet drunkards are sent to "sobering wards."

Chinese Can't Hit U.S. Yet

By HENRY S. BRADSHER
(c) Washington Star

Washington — China has slowed almost to a standstill, perhaps even halted, work on developing a capability to attack the United States, so far as U.S. intelligence experts can determine.

As recently as 1972, when then-President Richard M. Nixon visited China, U.S. analysts believed that China was pushing ahead with a program which would enable China to hit the United States with nuclear-warhead missiles by now.

But it now appears that a formerly high-priority program for the development of intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM) has been downgraded. It will be 1980 or 1981 at the earliest before China might have a long-range striking capability.

Questions Arise

This reported change raises political, economic and technical questions about China's internal and external policies. The question cannot be answered with any assurance by American officials.

But the tentative answers suggest that Peking has refocused its military concerns more narrowly toward its biggest neighbor, the Soviet Union, while adopting a more relaxed and confident attitude toward the United States. At the same time, the domestic priority given to military spending might have decreased, although this is unclear.

Peking still denounces the United States routinely as a superpower whose contention with the Soviet Union could unleash a world war. But it is Moscow that is accused of being the main threat to peace.

Thinking Changes

This represents a change within the last decade of China's perception of U.S. policy, especially of the American role in Asia. Peking no longer sees American involvement in Asia as threatening it, the way the Chinese feared it might during the years when the Vietnam war was escalating.

U.S. thinking has changed, too.

In 1966, then-Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara used the image of an irresponsible China as the primary justification for pushing ahead with development of an antiballistic missile (ABM) defense system. The reasoning was that no feasible system could halt a massive Soviet attack with ICMB's, but a "light ABM deployment" could stop anything the Chinese might launch.

China was then undergoing its Cultural Revolution, which made it appear especially unpredictable and dangerous to many U.S. officials. Its nuclear and missile development programs were believed to be carefully protected from disruption during the period, raising the specter that radical elements then dominating the Chinese scene might come into possession of a fully developed weapon system.

As recently as the fiscal year 1973 defense report, then-Secretary Melvin R. Laird said China could be capable of hitting the United States by this year," with some 10 to 20 missiles being deployed by mid-1976."

Mystification Admitted

The latest defense report, issued earlier this year over the signature of Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, admits to mystification about the Chinese missile program.

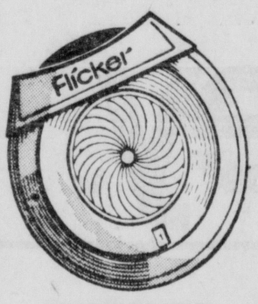

A medium-range missile whose striking distance is believed to be some 700 miles has been operational since 1966, and an intermediate-range missile of about 1,750 miles since 1971. The numbers of those deployed, some in caves and others in launching silos, have been increasing in the last year, according to the London-based International Institute of Strategic Studies.

CONSTANT SUNRISE . . . stained glass window brightens Larry's kitchen.

Taking Pains Staining Panes

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The baby girl in the Hi and Lois comic strip would love to play with the sunbeams in Larry Molczyk's house — they come in all colors.

Larry is a stained-glass hobbyist, one of those people with a gleam in his eye that constantly changes hue.

Though he occasionally sells his windows, Larry said he doesn't like to. He'd rather build a window and give it to a friend.

"It's a matter of personal giving for me," he says. "I think I'm a lot better off as a hobbyist than a businessman."

Besides, most of those he gives his windows to couldn't afford to buy them.

Maybe it's part of the nostalgia craze, but stained glass is becoming as popular — and far more expensive — than any time in history. Windows that cost only $12 to $15 back in the 1920s or 1930s are now sometimes priced at 50 to 100 times that much.

It's relatively inexpensive to make your own, Larry says, but it's time consuming and prices reflect the hours spent designing, cutting glass and leading pieces together.

Stained glass prices range from $1.60 a square foot at the factory to over $3 a square foot from local distributors, he says, noting that red is the most expensive color because gold dust is needed to develop the deep-colored pigment. Good quality sodder is about $5 a roll.

Of the eight or ten windows he has completed, Larry's favorite is a tulip design done in red, outlined in yellows and framed by a rainbow of colored panes from an old, glass sample kit. The window, which took about 40 hours, is not for sale. It's not even for giveaway.

Larry says his biggest obstacle to increased production is the scarcity of materials, particularly glass. He has bought some glass scraps from Harry Chap, a local craftsman who has been in the business about 30 years.

But the supplies and encouragement from Mrs. Barbara Teysman are what he talks about most.

Mrs. Teysman is the widow of a long-time Lincoln window designer who died in 1940.

If he had one, Teysman would be Larry's hero.

"He was really an artist, Larry says, respectfully. "Before 1940 he made most of Lincoln's stained-glass windows and even some for as far away as Kansas City."

Mrs. Teysman not only provided Larry and his one-time partner Greg Brass with some materials to help them get started, but also "took us under her wing and taught us a lot about the techniques . . . through us, she had somebody she knew and cared about to carry on the profession."

With her encouragement, Larry and Greg decided to turn their hobby into a business — repairing broken windows and designing new ones.

They scraped together enough money to finance a buying spree to Kokomo, Ind., New York and Boston.

Because of the extremely high temperatures used to make glass, factories have been ordered to cut back as much as 50% to conserve fuels, Larry says.

The Kokomo factory, though the largest glass manufacturing plant in the country, is 50 to 75 weeks behind on orders, Larry says, explaining why a personal visit was needed.

Even at that, glass available these days isn't much like antique glass, he says, so it is still difficult to match glass for repair work.

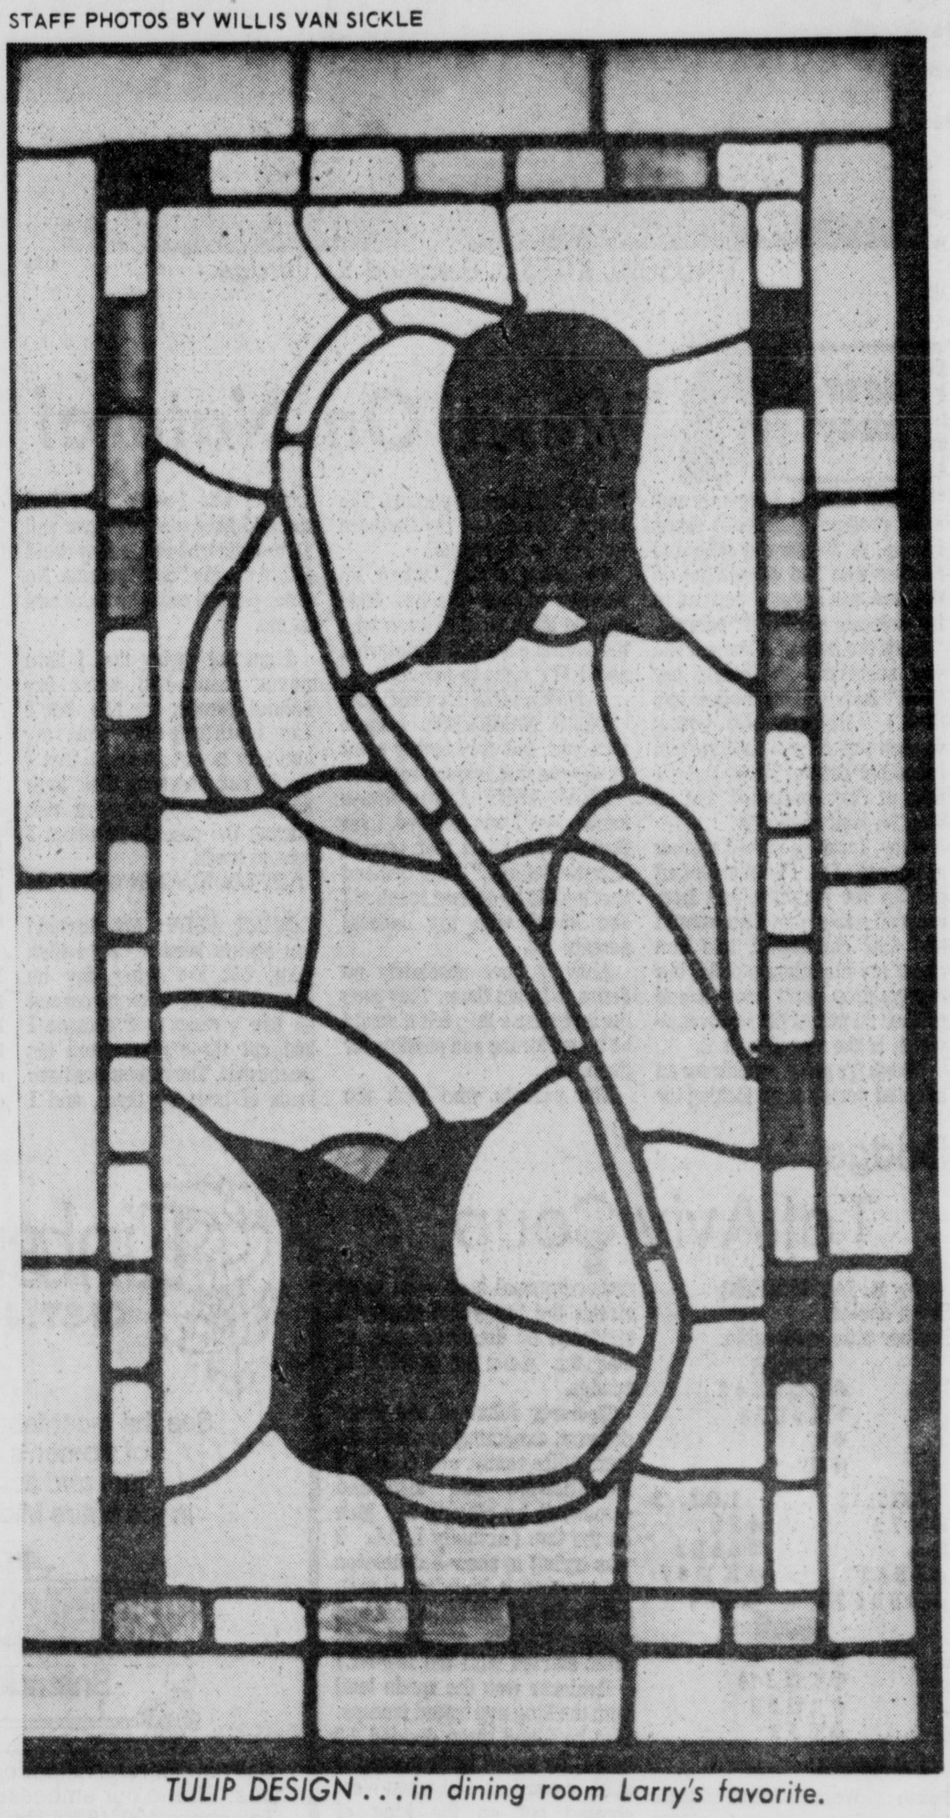

With all these obstacles in his path, Larry isn't certain he'll ever become a full-time, stained-glass craftsman, but he'll likely continue to dabble when he has the time and money.

"I try to keep my prices down," he says, "just to pay for my materials and a reasonable amount for my time."

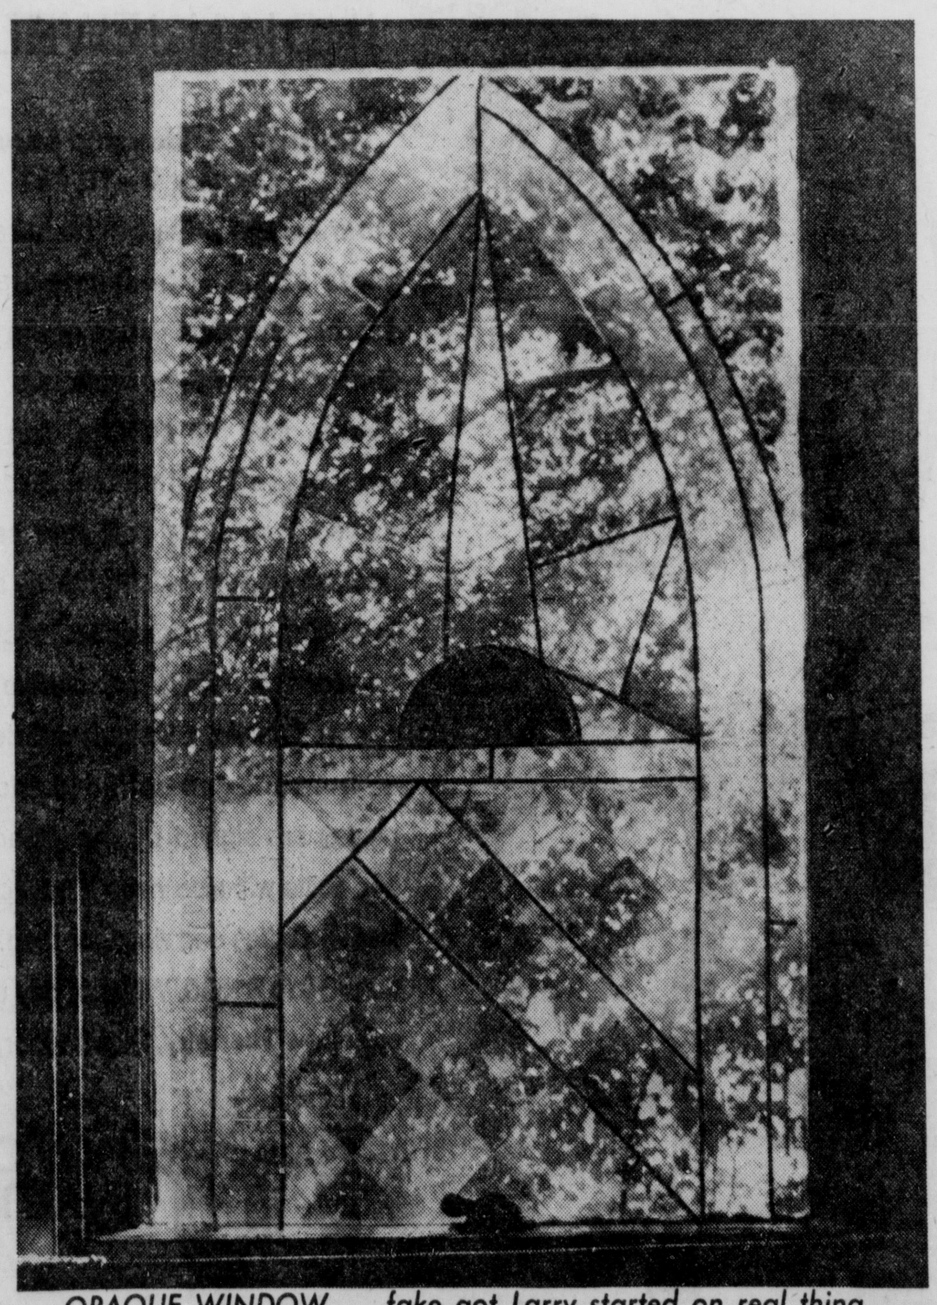

If there's nobody willing to buy what he makes, chances are he'll have a lot more tinted sunlight dancing around his living room, dining room, kitchen . . . at 240 D St.

"I love it, personally," he says.

UNUSUAL KITES . . designed by Jordan. UPI

Yah, Go Fly A Kite!

Houston (UPI) — To John Jordan the tug and play of a brisk wind against the rag tail of a three-stick kite can be as satisfying as the surge of a sports car powering out of a winding turn.

He ought to know, because in his 63 years of experimenting Jordan has designed and flown kites of all shapes, sizes and functions. Some are built to prove design theory. Others are created to test swirling breezes along the sea shore. All are built for fun.

"Years ago I remember taking my family to the beach and finding the wind too strong to fly kites. The wind would rip the kites apart before you could get them out of the car," he said.

"So, I started experimenting with high-wind kites. These stronger kites I built will fly when other commercially built kites are diving into the ground or ripping apart."

The retired railroad electrician even made a space-age design polystyrene conical model which he has fastened to the roof of his car. As he drives about the town, the patented model flies easily just inches off the roof.

But kiting need not be so exotic. A kite is as accessible as the daily newspaper, a stick brace, scrap cloth and twine.

"I've made and experimented with almost every kind of kite since I've been a boy," he said. "For a dollar's worth of thread, you can put a small kite out of sight," he said.

Jordan, a purist with patents on at least tow of his models, believes some of the best kite results begin at home.

"Most commercial kites fly in winds up to about 18 miles an hour and have a tendency to dive because of inaccurate design," he said. "Mine fly in winds up to 40 miles an hour when no one else is up."

Testimony to the popularity of kite flying at all ages, Jordan suggests, is the emerging interest in hang-gliding.

"People could have been flying on kites for all these years, but it was not until the advent of the Rogallo wing (hang-glider)," he said. "Now with the Rogallo, people can actually fly."

Views On Natural Parents

DEAR ABBY: I recently saw a TV program that really shook me up. A 30-year-old wife and mother who had always known that she was adopted decided to try to locate her "real" parents.

With the help of a lawyer, she was successful in finding her "real" father. (Her mother had died.) Although the young woman was certain that she had found her natural father and the man at first confirmed that he was, he later denied it.

Abby, I was an unwed mother at the age of 15. I gave my infant girl up for adoption and later married a fine man with whom I had four children. I told him about my illegitimate child, but our children don't know it and neither do any of his relatives — which is the way I want it.

I think it's grossly unfair for an adopted person to go looking for his (or her) natural parents. The couple who raised my firstborn are her "real parents.

In some states, when an adopted person reaches legal age, he has a right to know who his natural parents are. But what about MY right to privacy?

NAMELESS IN CHICAGO

DEAR NAMELESS: I agree with you. But for another point of view on that subject, read on:

DEAR ABBY: I have always known that I was adopted. I am now 17 and know that when I became "of age," I can demand that my file be opened to me so I can know who my natural parents are.

Abby, I have absolutely no desire to locate them. They gave me up because they felt it would be better for me and possibly for them, too.

The parents who took me when I was 1-week-old, raised me and gave me their love and all the material things they could afford are my "real" parents. No other parents could be more real to me.

I am not saying that I have never wondered what my natural parents are like, but I can truthfully say that my curiosity is not so great that I would risk upsetting their lives by suddenly appearing or risk hurting the parents to whom I owe so much.

NOT LOOKING IN SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been a very selfish man, but the other day he topped himself when he carried on like a crazy man because I had cut three roses from his rosebushes. The rosebushes have loads of buds on them, and I can't see that I did them any harm.

My husband claims that roses should not be picked in the first year. I always thought that rosebushes produced bigger and more abundant blooms after the flowers were plucked. Who's right?

If my husband is right, I'll keep my bloomin' hands off his blooms.

N.

DEAR N.: Picking roses off the bush the first year will not affect the health of the rosebush. But it might not be too healthy for your marriage.

Opening lead — ten of spades.

This deal occurred in an international tournament staged in Tel Aviv. The North-South cards were held by two well-known experts; the East-West cards were held by two LOL's (Little Old Ladies) who were experiencing their first venture into the big time.

South got to six hearts on the bidding shown and L.O.L. 1 led the ten of spades. This was a rather unusual lead — in most circles the ten would signify a singleton or doubleton ten, or else the 10-9-x or 10-9-7-x of spades.

Declarer followed low from dummy, expecting to make the slam quite easily, and L.O.L. 2 complicated the situation somewhat by playing her jack on the ten. (Actually L.O.L. 2 was trying to show a doubleton by starting a high-low signal, but South did not know this and quite naturally assumed that West started with the 10-9-7-2.)

Declarer won the spade lead with the king and tested trumps. Had he found them divided 2-2 or 3-1, he would have made the slam in comfort. But when West showed out on the king of trumps, declarer was forced to continue with his Q-J-10 in order to exhaust East of trumps.

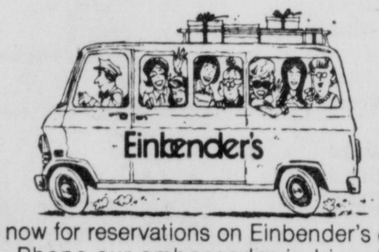

South next led the six of spade from his hand and confidently finessed the eight on the basis that L.O.L. 1 had started with the 10-9-7-2 of spades. But L.O.L. 2 won the spade eight with the nine, triumphantly played the ace of clubs, and that marked the sad end of the affair.

So the outcome was that South was duly buried with honors — the victim of an exotic Tel Aviv coup.

UNUSUAL KITES . . designed by Jordan. UPI

Yah, Go Fly A Kite!

Houston (UPI) — To John Jordan the tug and play of a brisk wind against the rag tail of a three-stick kite can be as satisfying as the surge of a sports car powering out of a winding turn.

He ought to know, because in his 63 years of experimenting Jordan has designed and flown kites of all shapes, sizes and functions. Some are built to prove design theory. Others are created to test swirling breezes along the sea shore. All are built for fun.

"Years ago I remember taking my family to the beach and finding the wind too strong to fly kites. The wind would rip the kites apart before you could get them out of the car," he said.

"So, I started experimenting with high-wind kites. These stronger kites I built will fly when other commercially built kites are diving into the ground or ripping apart."

The retired railroad electrician even made a space-age design polystyrene conical model which he has fastened to the roof of his car. As he drives about the town, the patented model flies easily just inches off the roof.

Elbow Room Important

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Elevator etiquette.

You might say it has its ups and downs.

But for the most part, it's on an even keel. That is, there seems to be a standard norm of behavior observed by passengers riding the vertical route.

All eyes stare fanatically upward. What could possibly be so interesting, one wonders, about lighted digits flickering on the floor indicator?

Other times heads are bowed, absorbed in analyzing shoe leather,pant cuffs or nasty runs in nylons.

If the elevator is crowded, the occupants do their best to build up some air space between them and the nearest rider. That can be done by taking a deep breath and holding it, by backing into a corner and pressing against the wall or by crossing one's arms and legs to compact the body.

A few nervous coughs, a shifting of weight from foot to foot, a transferring of packages or pocketbooks from one arm to the other break up the strange silence of the contained space.

For some reason conversation among strangers in an elevator just does not exist.

Should some Pollyanna come bouncing aboard with a greeting to all, the other riders would probably back themselves into corners to escape contact with such a strange sort.

This all has to do with spatial invasion, suggests John Berman, social psychologist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. People invading other people's space.

To deal with spatial invasion, one can often just move away from the invader. But if space is limited, people tend to orient their bodies the other way. "People will go through a lot of activity to get away from the invader," Berman said.

There's physiological data, Berman said, indicating that spatial invasion is uncomfortable. Increased heart rates and galvanic skin response changes (electrical conductivity of the skin goes down) have been recorded.

When there's a plenty of space, a person might react negatively or violently against someone who chooses to invade his territory.

In an elevator, however, crowding generally cannot be helped, so antagonism rarely develops.

There are other reasons too for making elevators sometimes uncomfortable riding, Berman suggests. Like standing too close to strangers.

The social psychologist also speculates that strangers isolated in an elevator don't make any effort to relate to one another because they are together for such a short time. "If they know it's going to be a long period of time, they'll interact," Berman believes.

Elevator phobias are fairly common, he added, and people so afflicted might be tense on the up or down ride. Some are fearful of an accident which would send the elevator crashing down the shaft, the sort of scene which makes for good film footage in bad guy movies.

There's also a feeling of closeness that bothers some people. Not only is one closed in a small four-walled area, but that box-like space is confined within a shaft that is again caught between stories of a building. And that can make some people mighty uncomfortable.

So next time you feel fidgety and ill at ease in an elevator, at least you can be assured that most everyone else feels the same way too.

It may not be fun, but it sure beats walking . . . if you're headed for the 17th floor.

She Was Just A Dog

Today's "Write On" contributor is not a writer, just someone who wanted to put his feelings on paper. He has raised dogs for the past 25 years, and says of Una, "Of all the dogs we have had, this one little dachshund was the very special one."

By JOHN MILLER

Yes, she was just a dog but certainly not a dumb animal. Born on an easy day to remember — the 6th day of the 6th month in the year of 1966. Out of a lovely little female dachshund, named "Frisky," who gave up her life to have only one puppy. The naming of this one female puppy who was orphaned at 12 hours of age was an easy task. "Una" is the feminie gender for one, so this was her name.

She weaned herself from the bottle at 3½ weeks. Our family were her parents and were totally responsible for her survival. At birth she had to have her bottle every hour and a half, but gradually made the change to four times a day, and finally to eating from a dish.

Being without a true mother left quite a void in her life. She lacked the warmth of her mother's body and the normal sucking for her meals, which all puppies need. As she grew, she was very independent, yet very insecure. She had her own security blanket which she dragged around the house and periodically would stop, lie down, and very rhythmically suck a corner. She did this several times a day during all of her nine years of life.

Her temperment varied from one minute to the next. She could be ever so lovable and cute but had a hair trigger temper which turned her into a real tiger. At one time or another she bit every one of us but we always seemed to forgive and understand. After each temper flare up, she was always so ashamed and would hide in the basement or under a bed. Her fast temper was just more than she could handle.

When she was a little over a year old, she attempted to whip a greyhound. This little ten pounds of dynamite came out a very poor second, with three broken ribs and gashes fron one end to the other.

When she was eight years old, she attacked a collie and once again lost on the field of battle. She was much luckier this time. A large cut on her side was the only severe battle scar.

We didn't need a doorbell because she could detect the slightest noise outside and always announced the coming of guests and friends. We always warned people not to reach down and try to pet her because she would not accept this. Una made up to you. You did not make up to her. After completely sizing up a stranger, she would want to sit on their lap or beside them in a chair to be petted.

She sat up and begged constantly for snacks. She worked her way into our hearts as no other animal could possibly do. As a man once said, "A dog is the only true love money can buy." This love for Una and from Una was so genuine. She didn't really ask for our love, she expected it. Una was truly a solid member of our family and received as much consideration and love as any child could ever expect.

Yes, she was just a dog, but in many ways so much smarter, cleaner and more able to express her true feelings than many of us. Stories could be told of her antics throughout her life to the point many would get tired of listening.

She was a ravenous eater and this was the cause of her death. Her food was always consumed as if there were no tomorrow. Her last meal consisted of 26 "stay-awake" pills which were lying on our bed in a box. She tore the box open and immediately ate the contents and 15 hours later her little heart quit. She lived a fast life and died a fast death.

Our family had lost a solid member. She was our baby, our sister and our friend. We loved her.

To keep the records straight, she was not a mutt. She was a fine bred Dachshund, with the official registered name of "Frave's Una Commanche of Dacity."

The memories of her will always live in our hearts and we will constantly be reminded of the way she lived and the way she died.

The social psychologist also speculates that strangers isolated in an elevator don't make any effort to relate to one another because they are together for such a short time. "If they know it's going to be a long period of time, they'll interact," Berman believes.

Elevator phobias are fairly common, he added, and people so afflicted might be tense on the up or down ride. Some are fearful of an accident which would send the elevator crashing down the shaft, the sort of scene which makes for good film footage in bad guy movies.

There's also a feeling of closeness that bothers some people. Not only is one closed in a small four-walled area, but that box-like space is confined within a shaft that is again caught between stories of a building. And that can make some people mighty uncomfortable.

So next time you feel fidgety and ill at ease in an elevator, at least you can be assured that most everyone else feels the same way too.

It may not be fun, but it sure beats walking . . . if you're headed for the 17th floor.

She Was Just A Dog

Today's "Write On" contributor is not a writer, just someone who wanted to put his feelings on paper. He has raised dogs for the past 25 years, and says of Una, "Of all the dogs we have had, this one little dachshund was the very special one."

By JOHN MILLER

Yes, she was just a dog but certainly not a dumb animal. Born on an easy day to remember — the 6th day of the 6th month in the year of 1966. Out of a lovely little female dachshund, named "Frisky," who gave up her life to have only one puppy. The naming of this one female puppy who was orphaned at 12 hours of age was an easy task. "Una" is the feminie gender for one, so this was her name.

She weaned herself from the bottle at 3½ weeks. Our family were her parents and were totally responsible for her survival. At birth she had to have her bottle every hour and a half, but gradually made the change to four times a day, and finally to eating from a dish.

Being without a true mother left quite a void in her life. She lacked the warmth of her mother's body and the normal sucking for her meals, which all puppies need. As she grew, she was very independent, yet very insecure. She had her own security blanket which she dragged around the house and periodically would stop, lie down, and very rhythmically suck a corner. She did this several times a day during all of her nine years of life.

Her temperment varied from one minute to the next. She could be ever so lovable and cute but had a hair trigger temper which turned her into a real tiger. At one time or another she bit every one of us but we always seemed to forgive and understand. After each temper flare up, she was always so ashamed and would hide in the basement or under a bed. Her fast temper was just more than she could handle.

When she was a little over a year old, she attempted to whip a greyhound. This little ten pounds of dynamite came out a very poor second, with three broken ribs and gashes fron one end to the other.

When she was eight years old, she attacked a collie and once again lost on the field of battle. She was much luckier this time. A large cut on her side was the only severe battle scar.

We didn't need a doorbell because she could detect the slightest noise outside and always announced the coming of guests and friends. We always warned people not to reach down and try to pet her because she would not accept this. Una made up to you. You did not make up to her. After completely sizing up a stranger, she would want to sit on their lap or beside them in a chair to be petted.

She sat up and begged constantly for snacks. She worked her way into our hearts as no other animal could possibly do. As a man once said, "A dog is the only true love money can buy." This love for Una and from Una was so genuine. She didn't really ask for our love, she expected it. Una was truly a solid member of our family and received as much consideration and love as any child could ever expect.

Yes, she was just a dog, but in many ways so much smarter, cleaner and more able to express her true feelings than many of us. Stories could be told of her antics throughout her life to the point many would get tired of listening.

She was a ravenous eater and this was the cause of her death. Her food was always consumed as if there were no tomorrow. Her last meal consisted of 26 "stay-awake" pills which were lying on our bed in a box. She tore the box open and immediately ate the contents and 15 hours later her little heart quit. She lived a fast life and died a fast death.

Our family had lost a solid member. She was our baby, our sister and our friend. We loved her.

To keep the records straight, she was not a mutt. She was a fine bred Dachshund, with the official registered name of "Frave's Una Commanche of Dacity."

The memories of her will always live in our hearts and we will constantly be reminded of the way she lived and the way she died.

Echeverria Raps U.S. Viet Vetoes

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — President Luis Echeverria of Mexico criticized U.S. vetoes of U.N. membership for the two Vietnams in a Third World-oriented speech Tuesday to the General Assembly.

He differed also with U.S. stands on the Middle East, the Panama Canal and the assembly majority.

With the Spanish seats in the hall unoccupied, he repeated his request, which the Security Council has already sidetracked, for action against Spain on grounds of violations of human rights for the execution of five prisoners on Sept. 27. Mexico called for Spain's expulsion from the United Nations and imposition of economic sanctions against it.

Without mentioning the United States, Echeverria referred to its Aug. 11 and Sept. 30 vetoes of the Vietnams' U.N. membership applications when he said "the recent refusal" to admit the two "in spite of the majority support of this assembly, denies the most elemental principles of international democracy and should be a cause for grave concern to us all."

The United States had tied its approval of the Vietnams' membership to inclusion of South Korea's membership application on the agenda. The South Korea move failed to win the necessary votes because of opposition by Communist-oriented countries.

Objecting to the big-power veto on the council, Echeverria said: "It would be appropriate to reduce the number of matters which are subject to veto, and also to extend the right of veto to one or more members of the Third World in order to achieve a balance within the Security Council ... in accordance with the true composition of the present-day world."

Repeated suggestions from countries outside the big powers' circle for elimination of the veto have never gone beyond the talking stage because the big powers have the right to veto the U.N. Charter amendments that would be necessary.

In implicit criticism of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step approach to Middle East peace, Echeverria said "partial negotiations ... in spite of the momentary progress they represent, may in the immediate future create even graver problems and difficulties."

He called for "an integral agreement which covers the departure of troops from all occupied territories, guarantees the borders of states in the area and provides definitive recognition of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people."

Without going into the current U.S.-Panamanian dispute over the United States' bid to defend the Panama Canal indefinitely, Echeverria said Mexico ""up) r Republic of Panama in its just demand for the recuperation of its sovereignty over the whole of its territory."

COUSTEAU ... underwater Odysseus.

Cousteau To Go Diving For Atlantis

ATHENS (AP) — Jacques Cousteau, often described as a modern underwater Odysseus, will start scanning the Greek seas this month in search of lost treasures and the legendary city of Atlantis.

The world-renowned explorer told newsmen Tuesday that a recent agreement with Greek archeological authorities foresees filming of the Aegean islands seabeds that will culminate in a submarine descent near the island of Thira into the sunken crater many believe to be devastated Atlantis.

"We may produce a great number of astonishing antiquities from our exploration of the Aegean Sea, or on the other hand very little," Cousteau said. "But we will undoubtedly reveal information leading to a better understanding of the region's famed civilization."

The Aegean Sea is believed strewn with valuable antiquities from sunken ships belonging to varied civilizations, which fell victim to storms, local wars or piracy.

"Marine and geological studies will hopefully help us draw radical conclusions on the extent of the obviously flourishing civilization in the devastated area and whether it was actually linked to the legendary Atlantis," he said.

The mysterious scattering of volcanic islands centers around the popular island of Santorini, also known as Thira, 140 miles southeast of Athens. Archeologists theorize that great eruptions took place around 2000 B.C. which put an end to the Minoan civilization there. Several devastating earthquakes have taken place since then, the last one to cause any damage in 1956.

The ruins of Thira have been systematically unearthed since early in this century. The most striking finds were made in recent years by Greek archeologist Spyros Marinatos, who was killed in an accident while working on the site earlier this year. By then he had claimed to have found Atlantis.

Winds Whip Grass Fires At North Platte, Stapleton

By The Associated Press

Fire units from several communities battled grass fires in the North Platte and Stapleton areas late Tuesday.

No injuries were reported. Strong winds whipped the flames in both fires.

Officials said one blaze burned four hours between North Platte and Hershey after it started near the right-of-way of the Union Pacific Railroad. Firemen went north to the other blaze after bringing that one under control.

Authorities said the second and larger fire was in an area west and north of Stapleton. It was believed under control late Tuesday night. Officials said the fire started near the Lariat Boys Ranch at mid afternoon. Fire departments from up to 12 communities sent equipment and men, and airplanes dropped water and fire retardant chemicals on the flames.

The cause of the blaze was not known.

It was reported that many cattle were lost along with several haystacks and at least one barn.

Police are investigating the molesting of eight women in the last nine days, all occuring in an area between 12th and 19th Sts. from Plum to J Sts.

The women were all wearing skirts or dresses when the attacks occurred, police said.

Police said more than one person may be involved but are concentrating on a suspect described as a white male of average height and build with ear-length blond hair.

Goals, Policies Unit Busy Skirting Issues

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Goals and Policies Committee skirted around such issues as the street widening controversy and family planning Tuesday night.

Much of the group's time was spent figuring out ways to avoid taking roll call votes of the membership. That procedure was recommended by the city attorney in order to comply with the state's new opening meetings law.

The committee called upon city and county governments to adopt policies designed to decrease traffic congestion on city streets.

The committee also called upon local government to initiate programs that promote planned population growth.

Both recommendations are an outgrowth of the last month's energy and transportation workshops held by the City Council, County Board, mayor and planning commission.

The elected officials adopted a goal calling for local officials to design policies decreasing traffic volume on city streets.

John DuPont proposed that the Goals and Policies Committee change the wording to traffic congestion.

Jack Siegman argued that the word change would encourage the widening of streets because traffic congestion could be eased by widening streets.

DuPont countered that the widening of streets is only one alternative to handling traffic problems.

Dick Wood said that a policy calling for the reduction in traffic volume would be unrealistic since the city's population is anticipated to grow in the future, resulting in even more vehicles on city streets.

Marge Schlitt said the wording change implies that already widened streets could be widened further to reduce traffic congestion.

Bob Kuzelka argued that the term congestion is not as easily defined as traffic volume, therby making it more difficult to determine when problems arise on city streets.

Traffic volume could be reduced, several people said, by building freeways around the city's perimeter, staggering work hours and reducing the use of the private automobile.

DuPont's proposal to change the wording was approved by a majority vote.

The Goals and Policies Committee will continue its deliberations on various additions on energy and transportation policies at its next meeting Oct. 23.

Large Fireplace Mantel Stolen

The Lancaster County sheriff's office is investigating the theft of a six-foot wide, Corinthian-styled, solid oak fireplace mantel valued at $1,000, which was reportedly taken from an abandoned farmhouse west of Firth sometime between Sept. 28 and Oct. 4.

The mantel was apparently removed through a large picture window which was broken out to gain entrance to the house owned by Oscar Fiene, of 4040 Mohawk, according to sheriff's reports.

Raleigh Mayor Loses

Raleigh, N.C. (UPI) — Clarence E. Lightner, who ran a generally successful administration as Raleigh's first black mayor but was embarrassed by his family's brushes with the law, was defeated Tuesday in a bid for re-election.

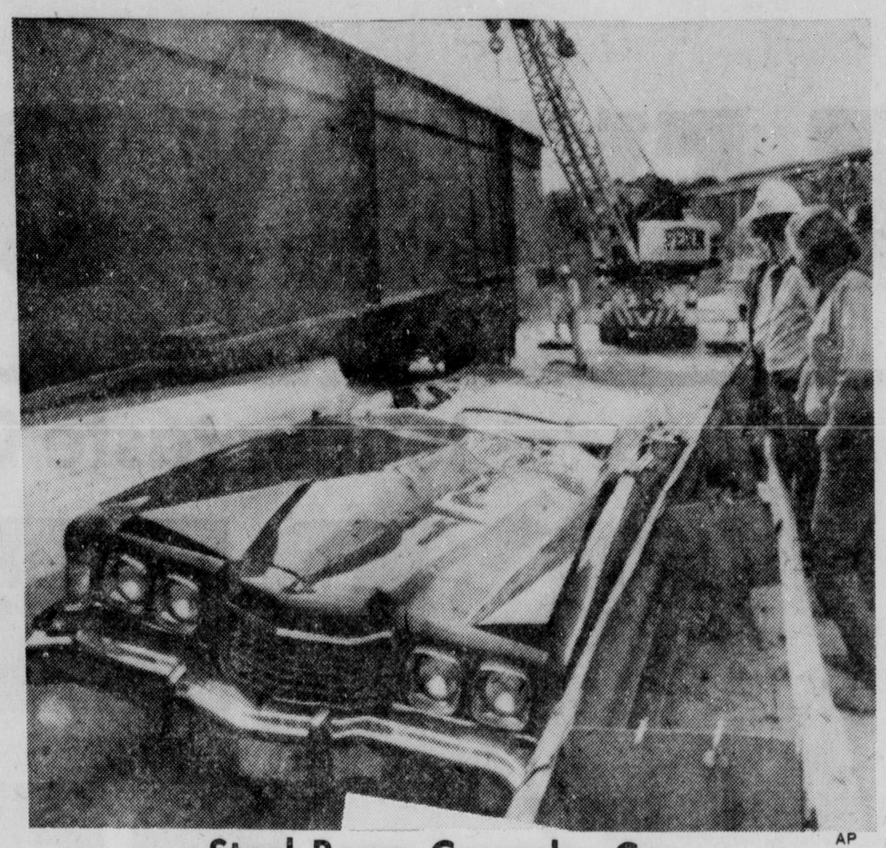

Lightner finished third in a field of three with only about 30% of the city's eligible voters going to the polls. Former state legislator Jyles J. Coggins led the voting and City Councilman J. Oliver Williams was second.

Coggins and Williams, both white, will face each other Nov. 4 in the general election.

Lightner seemed a strong favorite for re-election until his family's troubles began.

On Nov. 26, 1974, his wife, Margaret, was arrested but later acquitted on charges that she conspired to receive stolen goods. In July, Lightner's son, Lawrence, was jailed on contempt of court charges after allegedly making an obscene gesture to a district judge when he appeared to face assault charges. The assault charge, filed by his wife, was later withdrawn.

Last week Lightner's 23-year-old daughter, Debra, was charged with credit card fraud. The mayor said she would plead guilty.

Steel Beam Crumples Car

Workers inspect the crushed car of Grace Fink, 37, of Upper St. Clair, Pa., after 55,000 pounds of steel overturned on her car as she was driving on the Parkway West, outside of Pittsburgh. The woman escaped through the crumpled door and was in good condition in a local hospital, according to police.

Checking Accounts May Pay Interest

Washington (UPI) — Checking accounts that pay interest could be offered by banks and savings and loan asssociations under a bill the House Banking Committee approved Tuesday.

Banks have been forbidden from paying interest on checking accounts since 1933 and savings and loan associations are prohibited from offering checking accounts.

Except for technical differences, these accounts, known as negotiable order of withdrawal (NOW) accounts, would be like interest-paying checking accounts, from the consumer's viewpoint.

Another provision in the same bill is designed to discourage banks and other lending institutions from denying loans to potential homebuyers in neighborhoods they deem to be declining. That practice is known as "redlining."

Last week the Senate Banking Committee also voted to permit NOW accounts nationwide. The administration supports the proposal and it is expected to be enacted.

Rep. Fernand J. St. Germain, D-R.I., the House bill's sponsor, said he anticipated institutions which choose to offer NOW accounts would pay 5% interest, about the amount paid in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, where NOW accounts are legal.

The bill's provision seeking to discourage discrimination in mortgage lending would require lenders in metropolitan areas to make available lists showing the public where their mortgage loans go.

Backers of the bill believe community groups will be able to rally pressure against institutions which draw most of their deposits from urban neighborhoods but lend loans mostly in suburbs.

Supporters of the bill said redlining makes neighborhood decay unavoidable because potential homebuyers are unable to obtain mortgages. The provision was approved on a 25-12 vote. The Senate has already adopted a bill requiring mortgage loan disclosure.

Opponents said the bill would add to banks' paperwork burdens and costs. "My constitutents are sick and tired of more federal control," said Rep. Carroll Hubbard Jr., an opponent.

But St. Germain argued that the measure is a step toward reversing the decline of entire cities.

Gloves Leave Prints Too

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard's top fingerprint sleuth, after laboring 17 years on a unique theory, says gloves leave prints too and they can be used to track criminals.

He said gloves — be they leather, rubber or cloth — leave faint prints that can be traced to their owner.

Commander Gerald Lambourne, head of the Yard's 350-man Fingerprint Section who began his "gloveprint" research in 1958, wrote in the latest issue of Police Journal:

"From the constant handling of objects such as door knobs, banisters, shop doors, rails on buses on which people have deposited large quantities of perspiration, a glove soon becomes impregnated with grease and dirt.

"Consequently when a glove comes into contact with a smooth, hard surface, a layer of this grease is sometimes deposited in much the same way as an unexpected finger will leave a fingerprint."

The commander said a dusting powder reveals the "gloveprints," and some of them have already aided detectives investigating robberies and break-ins.

Lambourne said Yard detectives can even take clear prints of marks left inside gloves found at the scene of a crime.

After consulting virtually every glovemaker in Britain, including makers of golf gloves and rubber housewives' gloves, Lambourne learned that every glove is different in some way.

"The materials it was made from; the way it was put together; i.e. hand-stitched, knitted, molded; embossing; perforations; the contours and creases formed when worn constantly, and accidental damage caused by the wearer."

But Lambourne declined to be more specific about his new crime-detection techniques, saying: "I don't want to give all our secrets away."

Lambourne, who joined the police force in 1947, wrote that he first hit on the idea of gloveprints after being told as a young detective on a case: "Sorry, there are no clues. The man was wearing gloves."

Agreement Decreases Threat Of Oil Monopoly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of Indiana has agreed to sell 100 million barrels of Wyoming crude oil to independent refiners over the next 20 years, the Federal Trade Commission announced Tuesday.

The FTC said the consent agreement with Standard, the nation's fourth largest crude oil producer, would decrease the threats of an oil monopoly in Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Utah and Wyoming.

In a $225 million deal last May 1, Standard bought seven oil and natural gas fields and two gas processing plants from Pasco, Inc., an arrangement the FTC had alleged would lessen competition and tend to create a monopoly in crude oil production and sales in the five Rocky Mountain states.

Under terms of the consent order, Standard must offer 100 million barrels of crude oil or all the crude oil produced from the properties until 1996, whichever comes later, first to Pasco's Sinclair, Wyoming, refinery and then to other independent refiners in the Rocky Mountain area if the Sinclair refinery is unable or unwilling to take the crude oil.

The order also prohibits Standard from buying more than five per cent of the petroleum products refined from the 100 million barrels of crude oil.

The FTC will accept public comment on the order through Dec. 5 before making a final decision. The order would settle an FTC complaint against Standard, its crude oil producing subsidiary Amoco, Pasco and Studebaker-Worthington Inc., which owns more than 55 per cent of Pasco.

Raleigh Mayor Loses

Raleigh, N.C. (UPI) — Clarence E. Lightner, who ran a generally successful administration as Raleigh's first black mayor but was embarrassed by his family's brushes with the law, was defeated Tuesday in a bid for re-election.

Lightner finished third in a field of three with only about 30% of the city's eligible voters going to the polls. Former state legislator Jyles J. Coggins led the voting and City Councilman J. Oliver Williams was second.

Coggins and Williams, both white, will face each other Nov. 4 in the general election.

Lightner seemed a strong favorite for re-election until his family's troubles began.

On Nov. 26, 1974, his wife, Margaret, was arrested but later acquitted on charges that she conspired to receive stolen goods. In July, Lightner's son, Lawrence, was jailed on contempt of court charges after allegedly making an obscene gesture to a district judge when he appeared to face assault charges. The assault charge, filed by his wife, was later withdrawn.

Last week Lightner's 23-year-old daughter, Debra, was charged with credit card fraud. The mayor said she would plead guilty.

Steel Beam Crumples Car

Workers inspect the crushed car of Grace Fink, 37, of Upper St. Clair, Pa., after 55,000 pounds of steel overturned on her car as she was driving on the Parkway West, outside of Pittsburgh. The woman escaped through the crumpled door and was in good condition in a local hospital, according to police.

Checking Accounts May Pay Interest

Washington (UPI) — Checking accounts that pay interest could be offered by banks and savings and loan associations under a bill the House Banking Committee approved Tuesday.

Banks have been forbidden from paying interest on checking accounts since 1933 and savings and loan associations are prohibited from offering checking accounts.

Except for technical differences, these accounts, known as negotiable order of withdrawal (NOW) accounts, would be like interest-paying checking accounts, from the consumer's viewpoint.

Another provision in the same bill is designed to discourage banks and other lending institutions from denying loans to potential homebuyers in neighborhoods they deem to be declining. That practice is known as "redlining."

Last week the Senate Banking Committee also voted to permit NOW accounts nationwide. The administration supports the proposal and it is expected to be enacted.

Rep. Fernand J. St. Germain, D-R.I., the House bill's sponsor, said he anticipated institutions which choose to offer NOW accounts would pay 5% interest, about the amount paid in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, where NOW accounts are legal.

The bill's provision seeking to discourage discrimination in mortgage lending would require lenders in metropolitan areas to make available lists showing the public where their mortgage loans go.

Backers of the bill believe community groups will be able to rally pressure against institutions which draw most of their deposits from urban neighborhoods but lend loans mostly in suburbs.

Supporters of the bill said redlining makes neighborhood decay unavoidable because potential homebuyers are unable to obtain mortgages. The provision was approved on a 25-12 vote. The Senate has already adopted a bill requiring mortgage loan disclosure.

Opponents said the bill would add to banks' paperwork burdens and costs. "My constitutents are sick and tired of more federal control," said Rep. Carroll Hubbard Jr., an opponent.

But St. Germain argued that the measure is a step toward reversing the decline of entire cities.

Gloves Leave Prints Too

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard's top fingerprint sleuth, after laboring 17 years on a unique theory, says gloves leave prints too and they can be used to track criminals.

He said gloves — be they leather, rubber or cloth — leave faint prints that can be traced to their owner.

Commander Gerald Lambourne, head of the Yard's 350-man Fingerprint Section who began his "gloveprint" research in 1958, wrote in the latest issue of Police Journal:

"From the constant handling of objects such as door knobs, banisters, shop doors, rails on buses on which people have deposited large quantities of perspiration, a glove soon becomes impregnated with grease and dirt.

"Consequently when a glove comes into contact with a smooth, hard surface, a layer of this grease is sometimes deposited in much the same way as an unexpected finger will leave a fingerprint."

The commander said a dusting powder reveals the "gloveprints," and some of them have already aided detectives investigating robberies and break-ins.

Lambourne said Yard detectives can even take clear prints of marks left inside gloves found at the scene of a crime.

After consulting virtually every glovemaker in Britain, including makers of golf gloves and rubber housewives' gloves, Lambourne learned that every glove is different in some way.

"The materials it was made from; the way it was put together; i.e. hand-stitched, knitted, molded; embossing; perforations; the contours and creases formed when worn constantly, and accidental damage caused by the wearer."

But Lambourne declined to be more specific about his new crime-detection techniques, saying: "I don't want to give all our secrets away."

Lambourne, who joined the police force in 1947, wrote that he first hit on the idea of gloveprints after being told as a young detective on a case: "Sorry, there are no clues. The man was wearing gloves."

Hollywood (UPI) — Clint Eastwood, successful twice in the character of Dirty Harry, will star in "Dirty Harry III" at Universal.

Shipments Rise

Austin, Tex. (UPI) — Other states shipped 180,278 cattle and calves into Texas during August, state agriculture department officials report. This compares with 137,571 cattle and calves shipped into the state in the same month of 1974.

Congressman Weds

Trappe, Md. (UPI) — Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, D-Iowa, was married to Marjorie Sue Margolies, a reporter for NBC News in Washington.

Stimulation Helps Premature Baby

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Prematurely born babies are usually isolated and treated like fragile china dolls. A nurse psychologist report on findings that the practice may be harmful, rather than helpful. Lorraine Smith is based in Dallas for McGraw-Hill World News.)

By LORRAINE SMITH

Dallas — Stroking, caressing and rocking a premature baby will stimulate its mental, physical and neurological development, says a Dallas psychologist.

"The idea that prematures can tolerate stimulation is brand new," says Dr. Ruth Rice, who is a Ph.D. and registered nurse. "We were taught in nursing school that 'preemies" were too small and fragile to even tolerate touching, but there is no scientific basis for that."

Dr. Rice researched the effects of physically stimulating premature babies with 30 randomly chosen infants approximately equal in weight and estimated gestational age. They were divided into two groups of 15 — one a control group — with an equal distribution of blacks, caucasians and Mexican-Americans. Every mother received a four-month supply of formula to assure equal nutrition.

As soon as the children in the experimental group were taken home from the hospital, the mothers began the course of stimulation under the daily supervision of public health nurses. Control mothers, also visited by public health nurses, followed conventional instructions for newborn care.

Tests by a pediatrician, psychologist and pediatric nurse were not made until each infant was four months old in order to see how much carryover effect the course of stimulation would have.

The experimental group made significant gains in neurological development, weight gain and mental functioning and also surpassed the rate of growth of normal, fullterm babies.

Despite advances in scientific knowledge, says Dr. Rice, there has been an upswing in the incidence of premature births, probably because of the increased birth rates in women between the ages of 15-19.

The Dallas psychologist had found in previous research on child abuse, learning disabilities, delinquency and emotional disturbances among teenagers that a large proportion of these children had been born prematurely. She also had statistics showing that about 60% of all children with cerebral palsy and related neuromuscular birth defects were prematures.

This led her to theorize that such handicaps possibly were due in part to sensory deprivation after birth and might be helped by stimulation.

"In his dark, watery cradle of aminiotic fluid," she says, "the fetus swims gracefully about, weightless, and as bouyant and active as an astronaut on a space walk. He also hears his mother's heartbeat, her digestive sounds, and even sounds from outside the uterus."

Then he comes from this rich, stimulating environment to the incubator-isolette, where little or no stimulation is provided. Hospital personnel are often reluctant to handle the "preemie" even where a shortage of nurses hasn't already cut the baby's outside contacts to an absolute minimum.

Unfortunately, says Dr. Rice, parents often take their cues from this. When the mother looks through the glass in the nursery and sees her baby isolated and seldom handled, she usually deprives him further after she gets him home because she is afraid to touch him as she would a full-term baby.

"The point I would like to push — and it is very revolutionary — is that mothers can provide all of the prematures' needs at the hospital. Hospital administrators usually are horrified at the thought but very good scientific studies have shown that allowing mothers in the premature nurseries hasn't caused any increases in the rate of infection or death."

Dr. Rice also believes that this early separation may do as much emotional harm to the mother as to the baby, since research indicates that the attachment bond between mother and infant is based primarily on touching and sensory stimulation.

Dr. Rice's study was carried out with the cooperation of the Dallas Department of Public Health, Parkland Hospital, Baylor University School of Nursing, the American Red Cross and United Cerebral Palsy of Dallas County.

What A Pity!

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — The British colony in Argentina is concerned about a shortage of cricket bats and balls.

Import restrictions due to the country's staggering foreign debt have made it difficult to bring in new cricket equipment.

Enthusiasts of the sport who travel to Britain or Australia are bringing back small numbers of bats and balls in their luggage to relieve the shortage.

And even on the 7th day they don't rest.

Since January 1975, these people have been working 7 days a week, on 3 shifts, to make lids for home canning jars.

That's how hard we've been trying at Ball to meet the demand.

Ball has increased production of replacement lids by 30% over last year because of the effort these people have given.

Even so, some people haven't been able to buy enough lids.

If you have any extra lids, won't you please share them with your neighbor.

Missionaries Interested In College

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — The possibility of moving the headquarters of a world-wide missions organization to Pershing College is being explored here this week.

New Tribes Mission Inc., a Wisconsin-based group with more than 1,100 missionaries on the field, has expressed interest in the 70-acre campus.

After a preliminary inspection, the group's board chairman said he felt "we could become very interested" in the facility. The Rev. Kenneth J. Johnston also conferred Tuesday with W. W. Cook Sr. of Beatrice, banker and community leader who helped develop Pershing originally.

Now headquartered at Woodworth, Wis., the nondenominational organization currently operates Bible institutes at Waukesha, Wis., and Jackson, Mich., plus seven intermediate training centers at various sites throughout the nation.

'Too Crowded'

The Rev. Mr. Johnston said the likely use of Pershing would be both as a national headquarters and as a third Bible institute. Present headquarters facilities at Woodworth are becoming too crowded, he explained.

Pershing, vacated four years ago, in tentatively slated for acquisition by Southeast Community College. However, that proposal along with the simultaneous closing of SeTech's Fairbury campus has provoked controversy and appears headed for a showdown in the Legislature.

Another religious group, the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel, also expressed interest in the facility previously.

"I'm satisfied we would have no problem in using the facilities if we could get them," said the minister.

The New Tribes spokesmen said he is aware that "everything is indefinite now," because of the pending offer to SeTECH. But he added that he was "not discouraged" after talking to Cook.

"Mr. Cook said he would certainly not be adverse to our locating here," he continued. "I told him we will be keeping in touch until the situation is resolved."

The New Tribes chairman said he has no definite price in mind, but "we couldn't afford to pay a premium." However, he noted that the organization "could easily handle any renovation through our own labor force."

He added that the group would not necessarily limit an offer to the $35,800 in reimbursed expenses which has been asked of SeTech by the University of Nebraska Foundation, the present owner. He also noted that "anyone interested would find that we have a high Dunn and Bradstreet rating."

13-Story Hotel

The organization has been looking at several other possibilities, the minister continued, including "a 13-story hotel which made us a first offer to sell for $650,000."

Among the facilities now operated by New Tribes is a tribal-air communications program in western Nebraska. New Tribes missionary pilots are given jungle-type flight training at Grant.

The group has missionaries in 18 foreign countries, as well as training centers in Australia, New Zealand, Brazil and the Philippines. The organization originated in Chicago and is in its 33rd year.

2 Nebraska Towns Face Water Shortage

By The Associated Press

Two northeastern Nebraska communities are facing municipal water shortages, but the problems stem from different sources.

In Norfolk, officials began to ration city water Monday, after six of the city's wells west of town had to be shut down because of work currently under way at one of the city's water treatment plants.

Officials hope to have the water supply back to normal within two weeks.

At Winside, the problem is more serious, and the Village Board of Trustees has declared a water emergency.

Two of the community's wells have gone dry, and drillers have found mixed success in their search for new sources.

Water has been found at one site, but city officials say they must obtain state approval of the new well before they can begin pumping the water for city use.

To compound the problem, Winside residents are now being supplied with water from just one well, but the water tastes and smells like diesel fuel. Several years years ago, a load of diesel fuel was accidently dumped near the well. State officials say the water is okay to drink, but it still smells.

City officials are planning a trip to Lincoln in an attempt to speed up the processing of their application to use the newlyfound well.

More Money Asked For Omaha Rat War

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha-Douglas County health official said Tuesday a $116,500 grant request is pending with the federal government to combat rats in North Omaha.

Donald Olson, who heads the department's environmental health division, said if the Department of Commerce funds were granted, 10 additional staff members could be employed and the area now covered expanded.

Edwin Taylor, project coordinator, said a survey to determine how much progress is being made on the rat war is tentatively set for November. Latest figures, Taylor said, show rat activity in 11% of the 4,187 premises, in 252 of the 581-block target area.

Taylor said government guidelines call for only a 2% rat activity factor.

Olson said word on the request for the additional federal funds should be received by December. A three-year $500,000 grant was awarded this spring for rat eradication, but that covered a smaller area in North Omaha.

Olson said, however, his division has received a letter of commendation advising "our rat control project is further along and accomplishing more than any other in Region 7."

The region includes Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas.

Adams Roads Official Resigns; Records Systems Being Probed

Hastings (AP) — Lloyd Witt, Adams County roads superintendent, resigned Tuesday due to ill health.

However, Adams County Atty. Arthur Toogood said he is conducting an investigation into Witt's office record keeping system.

Toogood said the investigation was requested by the Adams County Board of Supervisors, and that he is probing the use of miscellaneous receipts funds in the county's Roads Department.

"It appears that Witt didn't keep very good records," said Toogood, who added that he did not think any criminal charges will be filed.

Witt, a 40-year county employe, suffered a heart attack several weeks ago, and remains hospitalized.

Stimulation Helps Premature Baby

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Prematurely born babies are usually isolated and treated like fragile china dolls. A nurse psychologist report on findings that the practice may be harmful, rather than helpful. Lorraine Smith is based in Dallas for McGraw-Hill World News.)

By LORRAINE SMITH

Dallas — Stroking, caressing and rocking a premature baby will stimulate its mental, physical and neurological development, says a Dallas psychologist.

"The idea that prematures can tolerate stimulation is brand new," says Dr. Ruth Rice, who is a Ph.D. and registered nurse. "We were taught in nursing school that 'preemies" were too small and fragile to even tolerate touching, but there is no scientific basis for that."

Dr. Rice researched the effects of physically stimulating premature babies with 30 randomly chosen infants approximately equal in weight and estimated gestational age. They were divided into two groups of 15 — one a control group — with an equal distribution of blacks, caucasians and Mexican-Americans. Every mother received a four-month supply of formula to assure equal nutrition.

As soon as the children in the experimental group were taken home from the hospital, the mothers began the course of stimulation under the daily supervision of public health nurses. Control mothers, also visited by public health nurses, followed conventional instructions for newborn care.

Tests by a pediatrician, psychologist and pediatric nurse were not made until each infant was four months old in order to see how much carryover effect the course of stimulation would have.

The experimental group made significant gains in neurological development, weight gain and mental functioning and also surpassed the rate of growth of normal, fullterm babies.

Despite advances in scientific knowledge, says Dr. Rice, there has been an upswing in the incidence of premature births, probably because of the increased birth rates in women between the ages of 15-19.

The Dallas psychologist had found in previous research on child abuse, learning disabilities, delinquency and emotional disturbances among teenagers that a large proportion of these children had been born prematurely. She also had statistics showing that about 60% of all children with cerebral palsy and related neuromuscular birth defects were prematures.

This led her to theorize that such handicaps possibly were due in part to sensory deprivation after birth and might be helped by stimulation.

"In his dark, watery cradle of aminiotic fluid," she says, "the fetus swims gracefully about, weightless, and as bouyant and active as an astronaut on a space walk. He also hears his mother's heartbeat, her digestive sounds, and even sounds from outside the uterus."

Then he comes from this rich, stimulating environment to the incubator-isolette, where little or no stimulation is provided. Hospital personnel are often reluctant to handle the "preemie" even where a shortage of nurses hasn't already cut the baby's outside contacts to an absolute minimum.

Unfortunately, says Dr. Rice, parents often take their cues from this. When the mother looks through the glass in the nursery and sees her baby isolated and seldom handled, she usually deprives him further after she gets him home because she is afraid to touch him as she would a full-term baby.

"The point I would like to push — and it is very revolutionary — is that mothers can provide all of the prematures' needs at the hospital. Hospital administrators usually are horrified at the thought but very good scientific studies have shown that allowing mothers in the premature nurseries hasn't caused any increases in the rate of infection or death."

Dr. Rice also believes that this early separation may do as much emotional harm to the mother as to the baby, since research indicates that the attachment bond between mother and infant is based primarily on touching and sensory stimulation.

Dr. Rice's study was carried out with the cooperation of the Dallas Department of Public Health, Parkland Hospital, Baylor University School of Nursing, the American Red Cross and United Cerebral Palsy of Dallas County.

What A Pity!

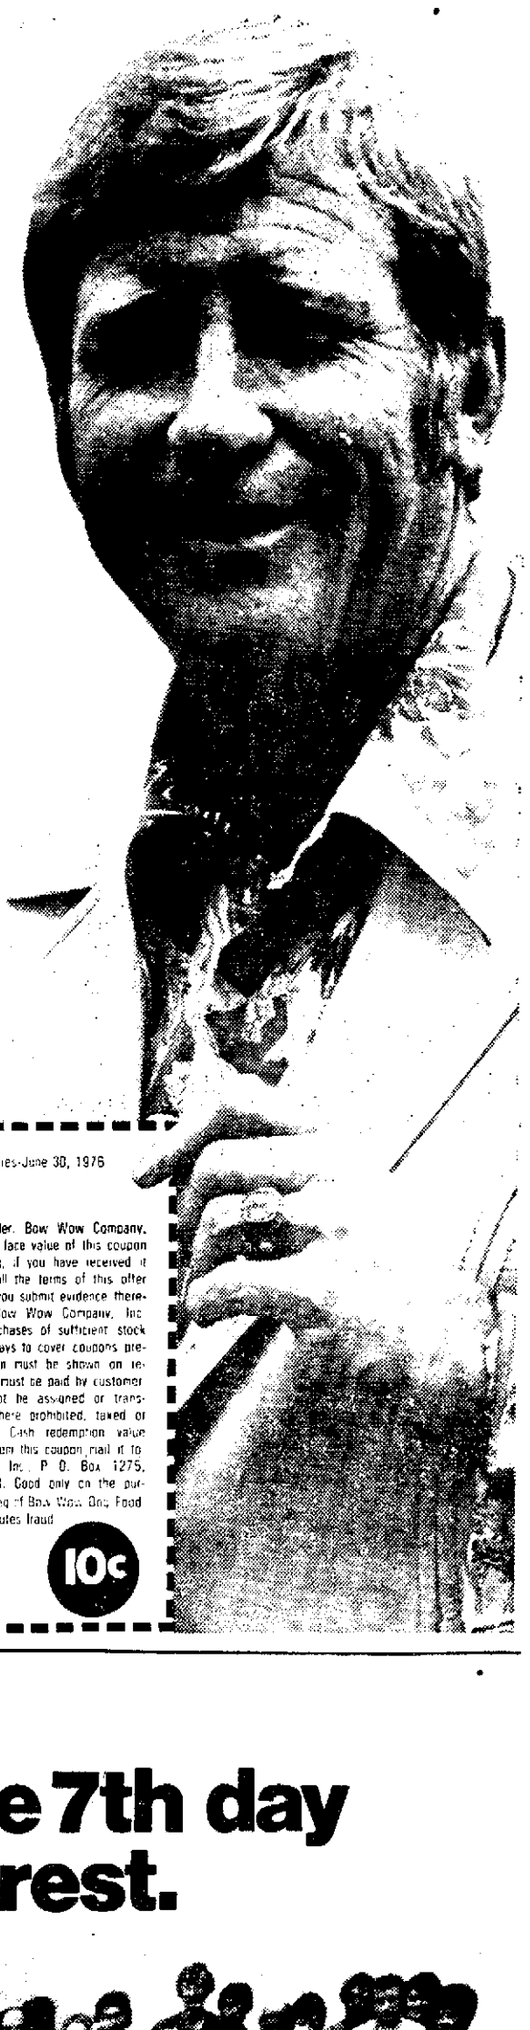

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — The British colony in Argentina is concerned about a shortage of cricket bats and balls.

Import restrictions due to the country's staggering foreign debt have made it difficult to bring in new cricket equipment.

Enthusiasts of the sport who travel to Britain or Australia are bringing back small numbers of bats and balls in their luggage to relieve the shortage.

Board Of Higher Education Recommended

Star education writer Dick Holman reports on the consensus reached by the Priority One Conference on Education in Nebraska, a meeting which brought together 300 Nebraskans to discuss the future of education in the state.

While decentralizing the university and four-year colleges, Nebraska should create a five-member "super board," a single Board of Higher Education, according to the final report from the Priority One Conference on Education in Nebraska.

Held one month ago in Lincoln, the conference brought together 300 representative Nebraskans in a vanguard attempt to set priorities to guide elected and appointed education leaders.

The priorities released Tuesday represent a consensus among conferees, including farmers, businessmen, students, state senators, parents, labor union representatives, college and university officials, professional association members, ranchers, teachers, school administrators and elected board members.

The Board of Higher Education, the group agreed, should have one member from each of five districts, appointed by the governor with approval of the Legislature.

Such a statewide governing board, with substantial power to coordinate higher education, would have the ability to avoid duplication, reduce confusion, eliminate power struggles, and save resources and money, conferees said.

NU President D. B. Varner has proposed just such a "super board," but it has been met largely with disinterest and ambivalence. Two higher education coordination bodies — one new and another reorganized — have had virtually no impact on the institutions overall, and little on each one.

For example, while Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College negotiates to acquire defunct Pershing College, the move has caused public reverberations about the future of SCC's Fairbury campus, about Peru State College, and about the local authority the Legislature granted the technical community colleges in 1975.

NU enters the picture as a property conduit. Educational service units, the State University of Nebraska and churches sit on the periphery, as each seeks additional or consolidated space.

Interwoven in the unresolved questions, the state of Nebraska becomes involved — in proposals to establish a five-state veterinary school and an eastern Nebraska veterans' home. The list goes on, including study by a legislative committee.

Other expectations the conferees listed for NU and the four-year colleges:

—Produce graduates with saleable skills; allow greater flexibility in higher education; hire instructors with better backgrounds in subjects they teach; because of limited funds, decide on priorities such as agribusiness education; conduct more high-level research, including agricultural research.

—Provide programs at the lowest possible cost; stress continuation of fine arts and liberal arts; coordinate and communicate better among public schools, colleges and trade schools; prepare graduates to understand society and good citizenship.

—NU "should be smaller and more humanistic and responsive to individual needs"; should be given funds for continuing education; "there is currently too much method, not enough content."

To meet community needs and ensure equal opportunity, conferees agreed institutions should be decentralized. Further, to serve needs of business, industry, agriculture and labor as well, they recommended institutions:

—Have a data bank of information available to education "consumers"; determine business and industry needs; establish citizen advisory groups or citizen education councils; design and balance course offerings around the needs and piorities of business, industry and agriculture.

—Offer continuing career education of lifetime education, especially for older people; provide employe education; maintain open-admissions policies to Nebraska four-year institutions and financial assistance to those who need it; offer students career guidance.

—Have areas of specialization rather than diversity to the extent it exists today; develop better, more effective statewide evaluation.

To build and maintain citizen support for Nebraska higher education, conferees set these priorities for the public and private sectors:

—Besides creating a "super board," establish a means to return educational products to the state; business and industry should create scholarships to send promising employes to NU for specialized education; develop on-the-job learning opportunities for employes to expand their horizons and upgrade job skills.

—Higher education should have a self-policing function; insist on a reasonable statewide coordination mechanism; develop an equitable tax structure to channel dollars into predetermined priority programs for all levels of higher education, and fund institutions equitably.

—Business and industry should provide people for education advisory committees as consultants; citizens should take a more responsible position relative to education institutions' governance structures; business and industry should initiate and encourage community participation by their employes.

—Create a feeling of ownership of the educational system, and bring national government and industry sources to Nebraska to promote education.

State Guidance, Local Control Favored

"Community colleges should have a statewide governance board," but "much emphasis should be placed on local control," the Priority One Conference on Education in Nebraska recommends.

That consensus of 300 representative Nebraskans was reached after the 1975 Legislature abolished the State Board of Technical Community Colleges and vested control of the six college areas in each local board.

The college areas "need well defined missions developed on the state level," conferees agreed, while saying local flexibility is the key for access and quality programs.

The top priority expectations conferees listed for community colleges include:

—Providing the community with a resource center from which business and industry innovations may evolve, developing persons who are critical thinkers, matching needs effectively with resources, informing the public of graduates' qualifications and removing the stigma of "tech schools."

—Creating "whole persons" at every level of education, and offering courses of quality to be accepted on transfer to any four-year college.

One of the priorities urges a "stable law" from the Legislature — instead of changing community college governance and finance frequently — to establish long-term continuity.

Others call for providing educational opportunities for all people at any age to help them adjust to change in technology, society and in citizenship responsibilities.

Community colleges should involve those people in agriculture, labor and business; teach them good use of leisure time; meet short-term community needs, both socially and technically; and provide services within easy commuting distance, the report says.

To meet community needs, conferees called for the two-year colleges to recognize "education is for the student, and if his needs are well served, so will the needs of business and industry."

The consensus called for maintaining lowest possible costs to students, and no admissions requirements; to use business, labor, industry and agricultural leaders as consultants and volunteer instructors to promote their work.

Community colleges should supply both job opportunities and products based on a view of all market areas, conferees agreed; should make sure students have basic skills, such as reading, spelling, arithmetic and communicating; should provide specialized classes for employers in working with minorities and the handicapped, for example.

Courses should have updated constantly, and community colleges should provide "satellite centers" and work-study programs for students, the report said.

"Honesty with students as to the possibilities for employment" is imperative, the group decided. And employers should be involved in institutions' expectations, as they provide a variety of training.

To build and maintain support among the public for community colleges, the conferees recommended developing grass-roots education pressure on the Legislature, as well as electing friends of education to Unicameral seats.

Business, industry, agriculture and labor should establish entry requirements for particular occupations to help community colleges, the Nebraskans agreed. Job descriptions would help students know what they must accomplish before graduation.

Nebraska's non-education sector should "be sensitive to economic and personal needs of students and potential students," the report said, and "keep posted on results of education by performance of students as well as the athletic scores."

Better communication between the public and educators was called for, with coordination deemed a protector of schools' integrity, and unity an ensuror of local control.

Conferees recommended developing pride in the result of community college education, informing state senators about the schools' needs and searching for alternate funding methods.

Goals Of Schools Need Close Look

Citing broad goals of equalizing school finance statewide and involving the community in each district's planning, priority expectations from public schools also include developing children's basic skills and lifelong learning abilities, according to the consensus of 300 Nebraskans.

School board members should work primarily to save money, and re-examine "showcase" programs and their overemphasis, according to the Priority One Conference on Education final report.

First, "education" should be defined, conferees agreed. Then, public schools should develop a broad curriculum for kindergarten through 12th-grade students, including vocational-technical courses.

Teachers need more meaningful staff development out of school surroundings, the report said, and schools should offer adult and continuing education for the local community as well.

"Every child should be able to read at an appropriate grade level before other skills are approached," the report said. As schools should do different things for different people, students should be able to develop self-discipline, a feeling of belief in the free enterprise system and the work ethic, and saleable skills.

Schools, conferees said, should consult with Nebraska business, industry, agriculture and labor to determine programs, including ones to change students' attitudes toward "blue collar" jobs — considered "second-class, menial and unimportant."

Conferees recommended more stringent requirements for statewide teacher certification, using specialists in the field to assess school programs, and setting up a school-public liaison organization.

Besides determining students' career interests, the report recommended schools stress occupational guidance and economic literacy, develop vocational and career awareness, and provide a business employment-placement office.

Schools should examine and change laws and regulations to permit meaningful work experience and explorations for students, conferees suggested.

In turn, Nebraska business, industry, labor and agriculture should apprise schools of their future needs and support reorganization of Nebraska's educational system, the conferees said. The private sectors should provide work experiences, apprenticeship programs and open their doors to any interested students.

Non-educators, the report said, should pressure state legislators to equalize educational opportunities and costs, declaring they want a good system and are willing to pay for it.

Conferees called for broadening the tax base, building business community support for state aid and wider support for re-districting.

Urging openness and honesty, conferees appealed for continuing involvement of all community sectors in educational planning, and acceptance of obligations to help support public education in securing money.

Missionaries Interested In College

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — The possibility of moving the headquarters of a world-wide missions organization to Pershing College is being explored here this week.

New Tribes Mission Inc., a Wisconsin-based group with more than 1,100 missionaries on the field, has expressed interest in the 70-acre campus.

After a preliminary inspection, the group's board chairman said he felt "we could become very interested" in the facility. The Rev. Kenneth J. Johnston also conferred Tuesday with W. W. Cook Sr. of Beatrice, banker and community leader who helped develop Pershing originally.

Now headquartered at Woodworth, Wis., the nondenominational organization currently operates Bible institutes at Waukesha, Wis., and Jackson, Mich., plus seven intermediate training centers at various sites throughout the nation.

'Too Crowded'

The Rev. Mr. Johnston said the likely use of Pershing would be both as a national headquarters and as a third Bible institute. Present headquarters facilities at Woodworth are becoming too crowded, he explained.

Pershing, vacated four years ago, in tentatively slated for acquisition by Southeast Community College. However, that proposal along with the simultaneous closing of SeTech's Fairbury campus has provoked controversy and appears headed for a showdown in the Legislature.

Another religious group, the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel, also expressed interest in the facility previously.

"I'm satisfied we would have no problem in using the facilities if we could get them," said the minister.

The New Tribes spokesmen said he is aware that "everything is indefinite now," because of the pending offer to SeTECH. But he added that he was "not discouraged" after talking to Cook.

"Mr. Cook said he would certainly not be adverse to our locating here," he continued. "I told him we will be keeping in touch until the situation is resolved."

The New Tribes chairman said he has no definite price in mind, but "we couldn't afford to pay a premium." However, he noted that the organization "could easily handle any renovation through our own labor force."

He added that the group would not necessarily limit an offer to the $36,000 in reimbursed expenses which has been asked of SeTech by the University of Nebraska Foundation, the present owner. He also noted that "anyone interested would find that we have a high Dunn and Bradstreet rating."

13-Story Hotel

The organization has been looking at several other possibilities, the minister continued, including "a 13-story hotel which made us a first offer to sell for $650,000."

Among the facilities now operated by New Tribes is a tribal-air communications program in western Nebraska. New Tribes missionary pilots are given jungle-type flight training at Grant.

The group has missionaries in 18 foreign countries, as well as training centers in Australia, New Zealand, Brazil and the Philippines. The organization originated in Chicago and is in its 33rd year.

2 Nebraska Towns Face Water Shortage

By The Associated Press

Two northeastern Nebraska communities are facing municipal water shortages, but the problems stem from different sources.

In Norfolk, officials began to ration city water Monday, after six of the city's wells west of town had to be shut down because of work currently under way at one of the city's water treatment plants.

Officials hope to have the water supply back to normal within two weeks.

At Winside, the problem is more serious, and the Village Board of Trustees has declared a water emergency.

Two of the community's wells have gone dry, and drillers have found mixed success in their search for new sources.

Water has been found at one site, but city officials say they must obtain state approval of the new well before they can begin pumping the water for city use.

To compound the problem, Winside residents are now being supplied with water from just one well, but the water tastes and smells like diesel fuel. Several years years ago, a load of diesel fuel was accidently dumped near the well. State officials say the water is okay to drink, but it still smells.

City officials are planning a trip to Lincoln in an attempt to speed up the processing of their application to use the newlyfound well.

More Money Asked For Omaha Rat War

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha-Douglas County health official said Tuesday a $116,500 grant request is pending with the federal government to combat rats in North Omaha.

Donald Olson, who heads the department's environmental health division, said if the Department of Commerce funds were granted, 10 additional staff members could be employed and the area now covered expanded.

Edwin Taylor, project coordinator, said a survey to determine how much progress is being made on the rat war is tentatively set for November. Latest figures, Taylor said, show rat activity in 11% of the 4,187 premises, in 252 of the 581-block target area.

Taylor said government guidelines call for only a 2% rat activity factor.

Olson said word on the request for the additional federal funds should be received by December. A three-year $500,000 grant was awarded this spring for rat eradication, but that covered a smaller area in North Omaha.

Olson said, however, his division has received a letter of commendation advising "our rat control project is further along and accomplishing more than any other in Region 7."

The region includes Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas.

Adams Roads Official Resigns; Records Systems Being Probed

Hastings (AP) — Lloyd Witt, Adams County roads superintendent, resigned Tuesday due to ill health.

However, Adams County Atty. Arthur Toogood said he is conducting an investigation into Witt's office record keeping system.

Toogood said the investigation was requested by the Adams County Board of Supervisors, and that he is probing the use of miscellaneous receipts funds in the county's Roads Department.

"It appears that Witt didn't keep very good records," said Toogood, who added that he did not think any criminal charges will be filed.

Witt, a 40-year county employe, suffered a heart attack several weeks ago, and remains hospitalized.

Kenyan Talks To Exon

Gov. J. James Exon discussed economic development and agriculture Tuesday with Alexander Rosana, a member of parliament from Kenya. Rosana is visiting the United States as a guest of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Exon queried Rosana at length about the government of Kenya, and Rosana noted that his country "was still quite new at this experiment in democracy." Rosana said Kenya was "entirely dependent on its agriculture" and said recent increases in the cost of Arab oil "have hurt us a great deal."

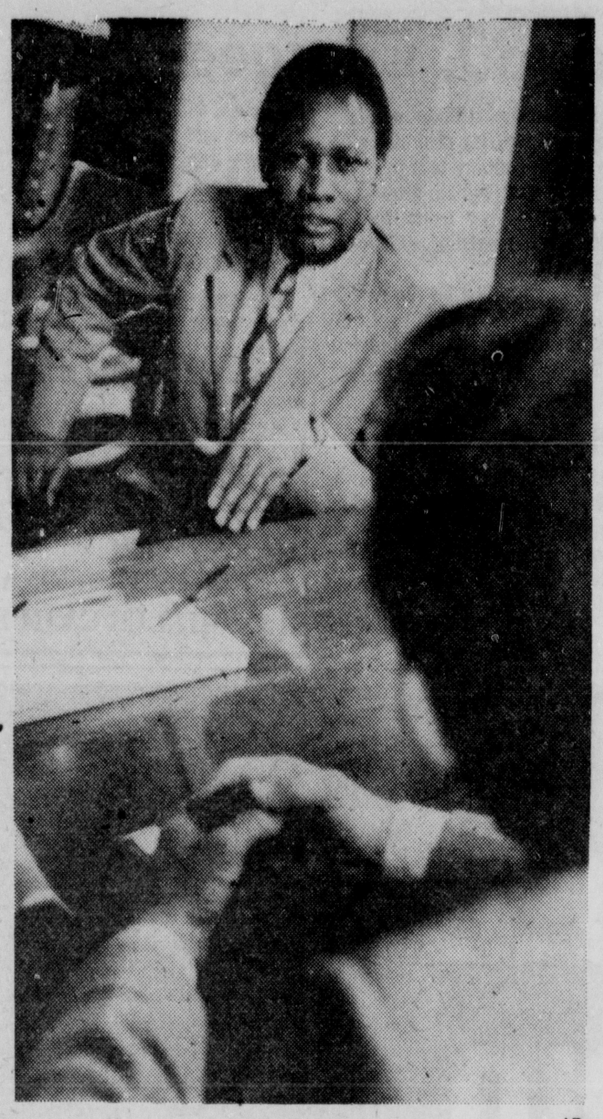

"We're well aware of those price increases over here, too," Exon said.

Rosana has visited California, Georgia, Florida, Colorado and Nebraska in the past 30 days.

"I wish I could have gone further into your countryside to see more of the farming operations," Rosana told Exon.

Rosana said he specifically put Nebraska on his itinerary because of its reputation as a food producing state.

He said Kenya relied on small farming operations which produce tea and coffee for export.

Truckers Ask PSC For Emergency Rate Increase

General commodity truckers have asked the Nebraska Public Service Commission for an emergency rate increase of 6½% on loads less than 5,000 pounds and 4½% on loads exceeding that.

Roughly 125 trucking firms have filed for the increase on shipments originating and terminating within Nebraska.

The commission is expected to consider the request within the week.

In addition, the trucking firms have asked for a complete reorganization of the commission's tariff structure, according to James Paine, the commission's chief of the motor transportation division.

The tariff structure already is under study by the commission due to a request by Trans Nebraska Express to drop below the prevailing rates being charged by larger trucking firms.

The question facing the commission is whether low overhead firms should be allowed to charge shippers less than firms with higher operating expenses.

Paine said this latest request for a change in the tariff structure will be consolidated with the Trans Nebraska case and the commission's investigation.

Paine said the general commodity carriers have not filed their suggested changes and are not expected to until the beginning of November.

In seeking the rate increase, the firms cited higher labor costs caused by union contracts and increases in the wholesale price index.

Newspaperman Basil Brewer Dies At Age 92

From Press Reports

Chatman, Mass. — Basil Brewer, editor and publisher of the old Omaha morning and evening Bee from 1921 to 1924, died Sunday night at his summer home here. He was 92.

Brewer began his newspaper career in 1905 with the Oklahoma Publishing Co. in Oklahoma City. The next year he joined the Scripps-Howard newspaper group and remained with that organization until 1921.

After he left Omaha, he worked for newspapers in Lansing, Mich., New Bedford, Mass., and Cape Cod, Mass. He also maintained major interests in Cape Cod and New Bedford radio stations and a New Bedford television station.

A native of Rush Hill, Mo., Brewer is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Caswell Brewer, and three children.

Funeral services are pending.

Exporters Juggle Commitments

U.S. Department of Agriculture specialists are watching grain markets closely to see if an effort is being made to circumvent the moratorium on U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union.

According to the Kansas City Grain Market Review, the Soviet commitment to buy U.S. grain rose during the week ending Sept. 21.

The official report said 600,000 metric tons of wheat contracted for delivery to the Soviet Union next year was switched to this year.

Another 82,200 tons of wheat was committed to the Soviets as exporters exercised options to ship from the U.S. sales originally reported as "optional origin."

Exporters also switched to a Soviet destination 33,500 tons of wheat first reported as "unknown destination," the report said.

The increase in Soviet grain commitment was the first since July, and USDA specialists said they were watching closely to see if a pattern emerged. "If it does," the market review said. "it could represent attempts to circumvent the moratorium on U.S. grain sales to the U.S.S.R."

Reports filed by wire services in Moscow indicated that the grain trade talks with the Soviet Union have gone into their eighth day with no visible sign of progress.

The announced aim of the talks is to produce a five-year agreement to avoid surprise Russian Forays into the U.S. grain market.

U.S. grain sales to the Soviets were halted earlier this year after the U.S.S.R. bought 9.8 million metric tons of grains.

Vaccination Program Regulations Adjusted

Dr. Norman Kruse, state veterinarian and head of the Nebraska Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Industry, Tuesday announced changes in the brucellosis vaccination program.

Kruse said the major change was in the animal age requirement section.

He said beef heifers must be vaccinated between 2 and 10 months of age and dairy heifers must be vaccinated between 2 and 6 months of age.

Other provisions require that only an accredited veterinarian may vaccinate the animals, the vaccination must be reported to the bureau and the vaccinated heifers must be identified by an ear tatoo, except in cases involving registered cattle.

Kruse said the program changes reflect changes in law made by the Unicameral during this year's session.

The veterinarian also said he recommends the use of official orange ear tags for identification purposes. Those ear tags are furnished to veterinarians by the Agriculture Department.

High Court Rejects Rehearing

Clerk George Turner said Tuesday the Nebraska Supreme Court has rejected Douglas County Clerk Lloyd Kilmer's motion for rehearing on his malfeasance conviction. Kilmer used county property to oppose unionization by county employes.

Kilmer had appealed his conviction to the high court after deciding not to fight the charges in the Douglas County District Court. The high court said his plea of no contest prohibited him from putting on a defense on his appeal. In rejecting his motion for rehearing, the Supreme Court affirmed its previous position.

Board Of Higher Education Recommended

Star education writer Dick Holman reports on the consensus reached by the Priority One Conference on Education in Nebraska, a meeting which brought together 300 Nebraskans to discuss the future of education in the state.

While decentralizing the university and four-year colleges, Nebraska should create a five-member "super board," a single Board of Higher Education, according to the final report from the Priority One Conference on Education in Nebraska.

Held one month ago in Lincoln, the conference brought together 300 representative Nebraskans in a vanguard attempt to set priorities to guide elected and appointed education leaders.

The priorities released Tuesday represent a consensus among conferees, including farmers, businessmen, students, state senators, parents, labor union representatives, college and university officials, professional association members, ranchers, teachers, school administrators and elected board members.

The Board of Higher Education, the group agreed, should have one member from each of five districts, appointed by the governor with approval of the Legislature.

Such a statewide governing board, with substantial power to coordinate higher education, would have the ability to avoid duplication, reduce confusion, eliminate power struggles, and save resources and money, conferees said.

NU President D. B. Varner has proposed just such a "super board," but it has been met largely with disinterest and ambivalence. Two higher education coordination bodies — one new and another reorganized — have had virtually no impact on the institutions overall, and little on each one.

For example, while Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College negotiates to acquire defunct Pershing College, the move has caused public reverberations about the future of SCC's Fairbury campus, about Peru State College, and about the local authority the Legislature granted the technical community colleges in 1975.

NU enters the picture as a property conduit. Educational service units, the State University of Nebraska and churches sit on the periphery, as each seeks additional or consolidated space.

Interwoven in the unresolved questions, the state of Nebraska becomes involved — in proposals to establish a five-state veterinary school and an eastern Nebraska veterans' home. The list goes on, including study by a legislative committee.

Other expectations the conferees listed for NU and the four-year colleges:

—Produce graduates with saleable skills; allow greater flexibility in higher education; hire instructors with better backgrounds in subjects they teach; because of limited funds, decide on priorities such as agribusiness education; conduct more high-level research, including agricultural research.

—Provide programs at the lowest possible cost; stress continuation of fine arts and liberal arts; coordinate and communicate better among public schools, colleges and trade schools; prepare graduates to understand society and good citizenship.

—NU "should be smaller and more humanistic and responsive to individual needs"; should be given funds for continuing education; "there is currently too much method, not enough content."

To meet community needs and ensure equal opportunity, conferees agreed institutions should be decentralized. Further, to serve needs of business, industry, agriculture and labor as well, they recommended institutions:

—Have a data bank of information available to education "consumers"; determine business and industry needs; establish citizen advisory groups or citizen education councils; design and balance course offerings around the needs and piorities of business, industry and agriculture.

—Offer continuing career education of lifetime education, especially for older people; provide employe education; maintain open-admissions policies to Nebraska four-year institutions and financial assistance to those who need it; offer students career guidance.

—Have areas of specialization rather than diversity to the extent it exists today; develop better, more effective statewide evaluation.

To build and maintain citizen support for Nebraska higher education, conferees set these priorities for the public and private sectors:

—Besides creating a "super board," establish a means to return educational products to the state; business and industry should create scholarships to send promising employes to NU for specialized education; develop on-the-job learning opportunities for employes to expand their horizons and upgrade job skills.

—Higher education should have a self-policing function; insist on a reasonable statewide coordination mechanism; develop an equitable tax structure to channel dollars into predetermined priority programs for all levels of higher education, and fund institutions equitably.

—Business and industry should provide people for education advisory committees as consultants; citizens should take a more responsible position relative to education institutions' governance structures; business and industry should initiate and encourage community participation by their employes.

—Create a feeling of ownership of the educational system, and bring national government and industry sources to Nebraska to promote education.

State Guidance, Local Control Favored

"Community colleges should have a statewide governance board," but "much emphasis should be placed on local control," the Priority One Conference on Education in Nebraska recommends.

That consensus of 300 representative Nebraskans was reached after the 1975 Legislature abolished the State Board of Technical Community Colleges and vested control of the six college areas in each local board.

The college areas "need well defined missions developed on the state level," conferees agreed, while saying local flexibility is the key for access and quality programs.

The top priority expectations conferees listed for community colleges include:

—Providing the community with a resource center from which business and industry innovations may evolve, developing persons who are critical thinkers, matching needs effectively with resources, informing the public of graduates' qualifications and removing the stigma of "tech schools."

—Creating "whole persons" at every level of education, and offering courses of quality to be accepted on transfer to any four-year college.

One of the priorities urges a "stable law" from the Legislature — instead of changing community college governance and finance frequently — to establish long-term continuity.

Others call for providing educational opportunities for all people at any age to help them adjust to change in technology, society and in citizenship responsibilities.

Community colleges should involve those people in agriculture, labor and business; teach them good use of leisure time; meet short-term community needs, both socially and technically; and provide services within easy commuting distance, the report says.

To meet community needs, conferees called for the two-year colleges to recognize "education is for the student, and if his needs are well served, so will the needs of business and industry."

The consensus called for maintaining lowest possible costs to students, and no admissions requirements; to use business, labor, industry and agricultural leaders as consultants and volunteer instructors to promote their work.

Community colleges should supply both job opportunities and products based on a view of all market areas, conferees agreed; should make sure students have basic skills, such as reading, spelling, arithmetic and communicating; should provide specialized classes for employers in working with minorities and the handicapped, for example.

Courses should have updated constantly, and community colleges should provide "satellite centers" and work-study programs for students, the report said.

"Honesty with students as to the possibilities for employment" is imperative, the group decided. And employers should be involved in institutions' expectations, as they provide a variety of training.

To build and maintain support among the public for community colleges, the conferees recommended developing grass-roots education pressure on the Legislature, as well as electing friends of education to Unicameral seats.

Business, industry, agriculture and labor should establish entry requirements for particular occupations to help community colleges, the Nebraskans agreed. Job descriptions would help students know what they must accomplish before graduation.

Nebraska's non-education sector should "be sensitive to economic and personal needs of students and potential students," the report said, and "keep posted on results of education by performance of students as well as the athletic scores."

Better communication between the public and educators was called for, with coordination deemed a protector of schools' integrity, and unity an ensuror of local control.

Conferees recommended developing pride in the result of community college education, informing state senators about the schools' needs and searching for alternate funding methods.

Goals Of Schools Need Close Look

Citing broad goals of equalizing school finance statewide and involving the community in each district's planning, priority expectations from public schools also include developing children's basic skills and lifelong learning abilities, according to the consensus of 300 Nebraskans.

School board members should work primarily to save money, and re-examine "showcase" programs and their overemphasis, according to the Priority One Conference on Education final report.

First, "education" should be defined, conferees agreed. Then, public schools should develop a broad curriculum for kindergarten through 12th-grade students, including vocational-technical courses.

Teachers need more meaningful staff development out of school surroundings, the report said, and schools should offer adult and continuing education for the local community as well.

"Every child should be able to read at an appropriate grade level before other skills are approached," the report said. As schools should do different things for different people, students should be able to develop self-discipline, a feeling of belief in the free enterprise system and the work ethic, and saleable skills.

Schools, conferees said, should consult with Nebraska business, industry, agriculture and labor to determine programs, including ones to change students' attitudes toward "blue collar" jobs — considered "second-class, menial and unimportant."

Conferees recommended more stringent requirements for statewide teacher certification, using specialists in the field to assess school programs, and setting up a school-public liaison organization.

Besides determining students' career interests, the report recommended schools stress occupational guidance and economic literacy, develop vocational and career awareness, and provide a business employment-placement office.

Schools should examine and change laws and regulations to permit meaningful work experience and explorations for students, conferees suggested.

In turn, Nebraska business, industry, labor and agriculture should apprise schools of their future needs and support reorganization of Nebraska's educational system, the conferees said. The private sectors should provide work experiences, apprenticeship programs and open their doors to any interested students.

Non-educators, the report said, should pressure state legislators to equalize educational opportunities and costs, declaring they want a good system and are willing to pay for it.

Conferees called for broadening the tax base, building business community support for state aid and wider support for re-districting.

Urging openness and honesty, conferees appealed for continuing involvement of all community sectors in educational planning, and acceptance of obligations to help support public education in securing money.

V-5 Car Sets Off Alarm

Omaha (UPI) — Police Chief Richard Andersen was told Monday that fumes from his city-owned car apparently triggered the fire alarm at the Omaha-Douglas County Civic Center for the second time in less than a month.

"I'm going to quit driving up here," Andersen said.

Employes left the multi-story building after the alarm was sounded. Andersen noted the city saved $12 by purchasing the type of motor he has in his 1975 car and questioned if the fire drill "cost more than $12."

"Come on down to the garage," Andersen said, "and I'll show you a V-5 car. It runs on five cylinders."

The police chief said he had difficulty starting his car, "and when I get it started, I can't keep it running."

"I may assign this car to a south Omaha cruiser officer," Andersen said, "and let him use it for roadblock duty."

Andersen apparently referred to a cruiser smashed at a roadblock during a high speed chase earlier in the day.

City spokesmen were reluctant to publicly blame Anderson's car for triggering the alarm, and one said, "All we know, he was in the parking lot at the time."

Russian Glinka String Quartet Concert Oct. 17

The Glinka String Quartet from Russia will perform works by Beethoven, Haydn and a contemporary Russian composer at a concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17, in the Sheldon Art Gallery auditorium.

The concert is sponsored by Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music in conjunction with the Sheldon Gallery.

Other appearances scheduled for the 1975-76 series are the Nebraska Chamber Orchestra, Secolo Barocco, the Tel Aviv Quartet and the Amadeus Quartet.

Omaha Man, 30, Charged With Blackmail

Omaha (AP) — A 30-year-old Omaha man has been charged with blackmail in connection with an alleged attempt to extort $31,000 from an Omaha businessman.

Police said James Glenn Gillham was arrested Saturday after he picked up an envelope containing a small amount of cash.

At the time, Gillham was free on bond awaiting sentencing on an armed robbery charge.

Police say Gillham attempted to extort money from Ross S. Nisi, 48, manager of an Omaha restaurant.

Nisi told police he received a threatening letter on Sept. 27 and later received several phone calls from a man who claimed Nisi owed him $31,500.

Police said Nisi last Saturday morning replaced an envelope containing a few dollars at the location ordered by the caller. Nisi had agreed to pay $5,000 as a "down payment," police said.

Records show Gillham had pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing an Omaha club. Police said $5,000 in cash was taken in that robbery.

Municipal Court Judge William Ryan set bond at $5,000 on the blackmail charges. Gillham was scheduled to appear in District Court Tuesay for a review of his bond in the robbery case.

Collision Kills Elderly Auroran

The State Patrol Tuesday reported the death of an elderly Aurora resident from injuries suffered in a Sept. 29 traffic accident on a Hamilton County road one mile south of Aurora.

The patrol said the victim, Raymond S. Oswald, 71, was driving a southbound truck when it collided with an eastbound horse trailer pulled by a pickup truck driven by Charles Jansen of Aurora.

The patrol said it was informed Oswald died Oct. 2.

Budget Lowered

Omaha Police Chief Cautions About Help

Omaha (UPI) — Police Chief Richard Andersen said Tuesday some legal problems need to be resolved before a plan is implemented to place reserve Douglas County deputies in police cruisers.

Among the legal problems, Andersen said, were those relating to supervision of the reserves and the city's liability of their actions.

The program was inaugurated by Public Safety Director Richard Roth in cooperation with Sheriff Ted Janing, and the reserves were to have started working with police this week, Andersen said he didn't believe any of the problems couldn't be resolved.

Roth said he still supports the plan, adding, "I think people are making too big a thing about it."

When asked who was making an issue, Roth replied, "Yeah, the chief."

The reserve deputies have assisted Douglas County authorities voluntarily and without pay. They aren't sworn officers.

Roth said there have been no problems in the past when police have worked on special cases with the State Patrol, deputy sheriffs and other outside law enforcement agencies.

Recognition Is Sought By Scottsbluff Police

Scottsbluff (UPI) — The City of Scottsbluff has received a written request from the International Brotherhood of Police Officers seeking recognition as the bargaining agent for city police.

Frank Koeler, city manager, said the request follows a vote by city police to join the union. Police earlier tried to get a 10.2% wage increase and failed.

Police spokesmen said the 5% hike ultimately approved by the city council wasn't enough to absorb cost of living increases.

The council voted for the 5% increase indicating it felt the boost was adequate and also because the boost wouldn't add that much to what the council felt was an already high city budget.

Koehler said he has no idea whether the council will grant recognition to the union.

"Several things have to be worked out yet and determined by the council," he said.

For one thing, Koehler said, the line between supervisory and non-supervisory personnel has to be drawn. That issue, he added, will come up for discussion during the Monday council session.

Being proposed by the union is a contract which includes a "no-strike" clause and police spokesmen have said they would not strike under any circumstances if the union is recognized.

Special Squad Proposed For Sarpy County

Papillion (AP) — Sarpy County Atty. Patrick J. Kelly Monday proposed a special detective squad to investigate crimes in the county.

He met with Sheriff Pat Thomas and representatives of the five mayors in the county.

Kelly said the proposal was made to meet the county's growing urban problems.

He said all investigators would be deputized to give them authority throughout the county.

Kelly said the system would provide Sarpy County with a pool for information and resources with no jurisdictional barriers.

Hansen Named To Crime Board

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday appointed Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen and Bellevue Asst. Police Chief Ross Di Mauro to the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

The crime commission channels federal law enforcement assistance funds to local governments.

Charges Filed In Omaha Girl's Birthday Killing

Omaha (AP) — Stephan L. Carter, 21, of Omaha was charged Monday with manslaughter in the shooting death Sept. 28 of Deborah Ann Carter, 18, also of Omaha and of no relation.

Deputy County Atty. Jerome Merwald said Rolander L. Brown, 21, who lived with Stephan Carter, was charged with being an accessory to manslaughter.

Brown and Carter appeared before Municipal Judge William Ryan, who scheduled a preliminary hearing for the pair Oct. 15. Ryan set Carter's bond at $25,000 and Brown's at $10,000.

Police have accused Carter of firing six or seven shots through windows of Miss Carter's apartment while a birthday party was in progress for her roommate. One shot struck and killed Miss Carter.

Officers said no motive has been established.

Kenyan Talks To Exon

Gov. J. James Exon discussed economic development and agriculture Tuesday with Alexander Rosana, a member of parliament from Kenya. Rosana is visiting the United States as a guest of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Exon queried Rosana at length about the government of Kenya, and Rosana noted that his country "was still quite new at this experiment in democracy." Rosana said Kenya was "entirely dependent on its agriculture" and said recent increases in the cost of Arab oil "have hurt us a great deal."

"We're well aware of those price increases over here, too," Exon said.

Rosana has visited California, Georgia, Florida, Colorado and Nebraska in the past 30 days.

"I wish I could have gone further into your countryside to see more of the farming operations," Rosana told Exon.

Rosana said he specifically put Nebraska on his itinerary because of its reputation as a food producing state.

He said Kenya relied on small farming operations which produce tea and coffee for export.

Truckers Ask PSC For Emergency Rate Increase

General commodity truckers have asked the Nebraska Public Service Commission for an emergency rate increase of 6½% on loads less than 5,000 pounds and 4½% on loads exceeding that.

Roughly 125 trucking firms have filed for the increase on shipments originating and terminating within Nebraska.

The commission is expected to consider the request within the week.

In addition, the trucking firms have asked for a complete reorganization of the commission's tariff structure, according to James Paine, the commission's chief of the motor transportation division.

The tariff structure already is under study by the commission due to a request by Trans Nebraska Express to drop below the prevailing rates being charged by larger trucking firms.

The question facing the commission is whether low overhead firms should be allowed to charge shippers less than firms with higher operating expenses.

Paine said this latest request for a change in the tariff structure will be consolidated with the Trans Nebraska case and the commission's investigation.

Paine said the general commodity carriers have not filed their suggested changes and are not expected to until the beginning of November.

In seeking the rate increase, the firms cited higher labor costs caused by union contracts and increases in the wholesale price index.

Newspaperman Basil Brewer Dies At Age 92

From Press Reports

Chatman, Mass. — Basil Brewer, editor and publisher of the old Omaha morning and evening Bee from 1921 to 1924, died Sunday night at his summer home here. He was 92.

Brewer began his newspaper career in 1905 with the Oklahoma Publishing Co. in Oklahoma City. The next year he joined the Scripps-Howard newspaper group and remained with that organization until 1921.

After he left Omaha, he worked for newspapers in Lansing, Mich., New Bedford, Mass., and Cape Cod, Mass. He also maintained major interests in Cape Cod and New Bedford radio stations and a New Bedford television station.

A native of Rush Hill, Mo., Brewer is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Caswell Brewer, and three children.

Funeral services are pending.

Exporters Juggle Commitments

U.S. Department of Agriculture specialists are watching grain markets closely to see if an effort is being made to circumvent the moratorium on U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union.

According to the Kansas City Grain Market Review, the Soviet commitment to buy U.S. grain rose during the week ending Sept. 21.

The official report said 600,000 metric tons of wheat contracted for delivery to the Soviet Union next year was switched to this year.

Another 82,200 tons of wheat was committed to the Soviets as exporters exercised options to ship from the U.S. sales originally reported as "optional origin."

Exporters also switched to a Soviet destination 33,500 tons of wheat first reported as "unknown destination," the report said.

The increase in Soviet grain commitment was the first since July, and USDA specialists said they were watching closely to see if a pattern emerged. "If it does," the market review said, "it could represent attempts to circumvent the moratorium on U.S. grain sales to the U.S.S.R."

Reports filed by wire services in Moscow indicated that the grain trade talks with the Soviet Union have gone into their eighth day with no visible sign of progress.

The announced aim of the talks is to produce a five-year agreement to avoid surprise Russian Forays into the U.S. grain market.

U.S. grain sales to the Soviets were halted earlier this year after the U.S.S.R. bought 9.8 million metric tons of grains.

Vaccination Program Regulations Adjusted

Dr. Norman Kruse, state veterinarian and head of the Nebraska Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Industry, Tuesday announced changes in the brucellosis vaccination program.

Kruse said the major change was in the animal age requirement section.

He said beef heifers must be vaccinated between 2 and 10 months of age and dairy heifers must be vaccinated between 2 and 6 months of age.

Other provisions require that only an accredited veterinarian may vaccinate the animals, the vaccination must be reported to the bureau and the vaccinated heifers must be identified by an ear tatoo, except in cases involving registered cattle.

Kruse said the program changes reflect changes in law made by the Unicameral during this year's session.

The veterinarian also said he recommends the use of official orange ear tags for identification purposes. Those ear tags are furnished to veterinarians by the Agriculture Department.

High Court Rejects Rehearing

Clerk George Turner said Tuesday the Nebraska Supreme Court has rejected Douglas County Clerk Lloyd Kilmer's motion for rehearing on his malfeasance conviction. Kilmer used county property to oppose unionization by county employes.

Kilmer had appealed his conviction to the high court after deciding not to fight the charges in the Douglas County District Court. The high court said his plea of no contest prohibited him from putting on a defense on his appeal. In rejecting his motion for rehearing, the Supreme Court affirmed its previous position.

Former Bishop Now Counselor In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Former Nebraska Episcopal Bishop Robert Varley, who claims to have overcome his dependency on alcohol and drugs, is now counseling others on how they might overcome addiction.

The former bishop is now a private counselor in conjunction with clinical psychologists at the Omaha Consultation Center.

"I'm going to be doing marriage and family counseling," said Varley, who resigned last summer as the head of the Nebraska Diocese of the Episcopal Church. His resignation was accepted last month when the church's House of Bishops met in Maine.

Varley's resignation ended a dispute in the Nebraska church over the bishop's liberal views, his fiscal management abilities and style of ministry. The dispute came to a head last spring when Varley recealed that he had undergone treatment for dependency on drugs and alcohol.

"Dependency and alcoholism are family diseases," said Varley, "so we are treating families."

V-5 Car Sets Off Alarm

Omaha (UPI) — Police Chief Richard Andersen was told Monday that fumes from his city-owned car apparently triggered the fire alarm at the Omaha-Douglas County Civic Center for the second time in less than a month.

"I'm going to quit driving up here," Andersen said.

Employes left the multi-story building after the alarm was sounded. Andersen noted the city saved $12 by purchasing the type of motor he has in his 1975 car and questioned if the fire drill "cost more than $12."

"Come on down to the garage," Andersen said, "and I'll show you a V-5 car. It runs on five cylinders."

The police chief said he had difficulty starting his car, "and when I get it started, I can't keep it running."

"I may assign this car to a south Omaha cruiser officer," Andersen said, "and let him use it for roadblock duty."

Andersen apparently referred to a cruiser smashed at a roadblock during a high speed chase earlier in the day.

City spokesmen were reluctant to publicly blame Anderson's car for triggering the alarm, and one said, "All we know, he was in the parking lot at the time."

Russian Glinka String Quartet Concert Oct. 17

The Glinka String Quartet from Russia will perform works by Beethoven, Haydn and a contemporary Russian composer at a concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17, in the Sheldon Art Gallery auditorium.

The concert is sponsored by Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music in conjunction with the Sheldon Gallery.

Other appearances scheduled for the 1975-76 series are the Nebraska Chamber Orchestra, Secolo Barocco, the Tel Aviv Quartet and the Amadeus Quartet.

Omaha Man, 30, Charged With Blackmail

Omaha (AP) — A 30-year-old Omaha man has been charged with blackmail in connection with an alleged attempt to extort $31,000 from an Omaha businessman.

Police said James Glenn Gillham was arrested Saturday after he picked up an envelope containing a small amount of cash.

At the time, Gillham was free on bond awaiting sentencing on an armed robbery charge.

Police say Gillham attempted to extort money from Ross S. Nisi, 48, manager of an Omaha restaurant.

Nisi told police he received a threatening letter on Sept. 27 and later received several phone calls from a man who claimed Nisi owed him $31,500.

Police said Nisi last Saturday morning replaced an envelope containing a few dollars at the location ordered by the caller. Nisi had agreed to pay $5,000 as a "down payment," police said.

Records show Gillham had pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing an Omaha club. Police said $5,000 in cash was taken in that robbery.

Municipal Court Judge William Ryan set bond at $5,000 on the blackmail charges. Gillham was scheduled to appear in District Court Tuesay for a review of his bond in the robbery case.

Collision Kills Elderly Auroran

The State Patrol Tuesday reported the death of an elderly Aurora resident from injuries suffered in a Sept. 29 traffic accident on a Hamilton County road one mile south of Aurora.

The patrol said the victim, Raymond S. Oswald, 71, was driving a southbound truck when it collided with an eastbound horse trailer pulled by a pickup truck driven by Charles Jansen of Aurora.

The patrol said it was informed Oswald died Oct. 2.

Budget Lowered

Caracas (UPI) — Oil-rich Venezuela has approved a 1976 national budget that is 16% lower than the current budget.

The 1976 budget calls for expenditures of $7.7 billion compared to $9.2 billion this year.

Omaha Police Chief Cautions About Help

Omaha (UPI) — Police Chief Richard Andersen said Tuesday some legal problems need to be resolved before a plan is implemented to place reserve Douglas County deputies in police cruisers.

Among the legal problems, Andersen said, were those relating to supervision of the reserves and the city's liability of their actions.

The program was inaugurated by Public Safety Director Richard Roth in cooperation with Sheriff Ted Janing, and the reserves were to have started working with police this week. Andersen said he didn't believe any of the problems couldn't be resolved.

Roth said he still supports the plan, adding, "I think people are making too big a thing about it."

When asked who was making an issue, Roth replied, "Yeah, the chief."

The reserve deputies have assisted Douglas County authorities voluntarily and without pay. They aren't sworn officers.

Roth said there have been no problems in the past when police have worked on special cases with the State Patrol, deputy sheriffs and other outside law enforcement agencies.

Recognition Is Sought By Scottsbluff Police

Scottsbluff (UPI) — The City of Scottsbluff has received a written request from the International Brotherhood of Police Officers seeking recognition as the bargaining agent for city police.

Frank Koeler, city manager, said the request follows a vote by city police to join the union. Police earlier tried to get a 10.2% wage increase and failed.

Police spokesmen said the 5% hike ultimately approved by the city council wasn't enough to absorb cost of living increases.

The council voted for the 5% increase indicating it felt the boost was adequate and also because the boost wouldn't add that much to what the council felt was an already high city budget.

Koehler said he has no idea whether the council will grant recognition to the union.

"Several things have to be worked out yet and determined by the council," he said.

For one thing, Koehler said, the line between supervisory and non-supervisory personnel has to be drawn. That issue, he added, will come up for discussion during the Monday council session.

Being proposed by the union is a contract which includes a "no-strike" clause and police spokesmen have said they would not strike under any circumstances if the union is recognized.

Special Squad Proposed For Sarpy County

Papillion (AP) — Sarpy County Atty. Patrick J. Kelly Monday proposed a special detective squad to investigate crimes in the county.

He met with Sheriff Pat Thomas and representatives of the five mayors in the county.

Kelly said the proposal was made to meet the county's growing urban problems.

He said all investigators would be deputized to give them authority throughout the county.

Kelly said the system would provide Sarpy County with a pool for information and resources with no jurisdictional barriers.

Hansen Named To Crime Board

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday appointed Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen and Bellevue Asst. Police Chief Ross Di Mauro to the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

The crime commission channels federal law enforcement assistance funds to local governments.

Charges Filed In Omaha Girl's Birthday Killing

Omaha (AP) — Stephan L. Carter, 21, of Omaha was charged Monday with manslaughter in the shooting death Sept. 28 of Deborah Ann Carter, 18, also of Omaha and of no relation.

Deputy County Atty. Jerome Merwald said Rolander L. Brown, 21, who lived with Stephan Carter, was charged with being an accessory to manslaughter.

Brown and Carter appeared before Municipal Judge William Ryan, who scheduled a preliminary hearing for the pair Oct. 15. Ryan set Carter's bond at $25,000 and Brown's at $10,000.

Police have accused Carter of firing six or seven shots through windows of Miss Carter's apartment while a birthday party was in progress for her roommate. One shot struck and killed Miss Carter.

Officers said no motive has been established.

Former Bishop Now Counselor In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Former Nebraska Episcopal Bishop Robert Varley, who claims to have overcome his dependency on alcohol and drugs, is now counseling others on how they might overcome addiction.

The former bishop is now a private counselor in conjunction with clinical psychologists at the Omaha Consultation Center.

"I'm going to be doing marriage and family counseling," said Varley, who resigned last summer as the head of the Nebraska Diocese of the Episcopal Church. His resignation was accepted last month when the church's House of Bishops met in Maine.

Varley's resignation ended a dispute in the Nebraska church over the bishop's liberal views, his fiscal management abilities and style of ministry. The dispute came to a head last spring when Varley revealed that he had undergone treatment for dependency on drugs and alcohol.

"Dependency and alcoholism are family diseases," said Varley, "so we are treating families."

Freedom, Petersens Lose In Table Tennis Pro's Death

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wisner — The LeRoy Petersen family lost a Polish friend who was like a brother. The Wisner Table Tennis Assn. lost an internationally known club pro. Freedom lost an ardent lover.

Jerzy (Jerry) Skublicki died Friday in a traffic accident near Pilger — the day after he had given up hope of getting a work permit from the Immigration and Naturalization Service and decided to seek political asylum in the United States.

The Polish table tennis champion came to the United States last January on a three-month visa. After living for a time in Denver, he met the Petersens at a tournament in Houston, Tex.

Petersen agreed to sponsor Skublicki until he could get established in this country.

"He was like a member of our family," Petersen said. "Some people, we'd get tired of having around, but not him. It seemed like he had been here for years."

Submitted in June

Skublicki applied in June for a work permit that would allow him to stay in this country and bring his wife and two young sons from Europe.

Petersen said buck passing within the Immigration and Naturalization Service frustrated him and Skublicki. "First they told us he would be taking another American's job," said Petersen. "That was stupid. I know table tennis and there isn't anyone in this country qualified to teach it like Jerry was."

The two men had been in touch with the State Dept., according to Petersen and had been assured that Skublicki would be granted political asylum.

"But they wanted to give the immigration people in Nebraska a chance to accept him," Petersen said. "If only they had, maybe his family would be here and this would have never happened.

Mind Made Up

" 'No decision, no decision,' he (Jerry) kept saying. He would put his head on the table and shake his head and say, 'No good, no good.' He was so disappointed."

Petersen said Skublicki had made up his mind to accept political asylum, even though that route might have been harder on his friends and family in Poland. "There was no way he could go back," Petersen said. "He knew he would be thrown into a concentration camp."

Besides being a table tennis champion in Poland more than 10 years, Skublicki was on the state championship soccer team and was a skilled skier.

He was awarded the Mistrza Sportu by Poland, an honor Petersen described as something like being an All-American, only much more difficult to achieve.

"He made his living there by coaching juniors. He was just great with kids," Petersen said.

Wisner is a nationally known table tennis center, and Skublicki had been earning money by giving lessons to members of the town's table tennis association.

The Petersens are widely known in their own right. LeRoy and sons Scott, 18, and Todd, 14, are ranked nationally.

The couple's third son, Dirk, 21, lives in Lincoln and was the first member of the family to win a trophy in 1970 when the Wisner association was formed.

Todd is Nebraska men's champion, the youngest in the history of U.S. table tennis, and is ranked in the top 300 nationally. He says Skublicki knew things about table tennis that he had never heard of.

"He stressed physical conditioning and made me run and lift weights, but he did it with me," said Todd. "He helped my backhand and showed me 15 new serves and improved my game about 15% in three months."

Todd teamed with Mark Welder of Jacksonville, Fla., to win the 13-and-under doubles crown this year at the U.S. Table Tennis Open.

Six-Lesson Champ

Petersen said Todd still has to prove it, but Skublicki said he could be the national champion in three or four years. "I'm gonna do it for Jerry," Todd said.

"To show how good a teacher he was," Mrs. Petersen said, "Todd had never played regular tennis before this year. Jerry gave him six lessons and he won a juniors tournament in Norfolk last month."

Skublicki spoke five languages fluently and was interested in teaching the Russian language in this country.

Table tennis is a growing sport in the United States, Petersen said, and Skublicki saw Nebraska as a place to develop interest in it.

The Wisner Table Tennis Assn. plans a tournament at the end of November in honor of the Polish champion and Randy Hall, a "promising player," who also was killed in the accident.

Radio Free Europe, European newspapers and tennis magazines have all been in touch with the Petersens.

"He loved it here, to be able to go out and talk to anybody he wanted," Petersen said. "He would just smile sometimes and say, 'Free, I'm free'."

Skublicki loved the people of Poland and Russia but detested the Communist system, according to Petersen.

He had been trying to come to the United State for 10 years, Petersen said, and his outspokenness once got him banned from playing in Russia.

"He was having dinner with a Russian who asked him how he liked Russian food. He told him it was very good since it came from Poland," Petersen said.

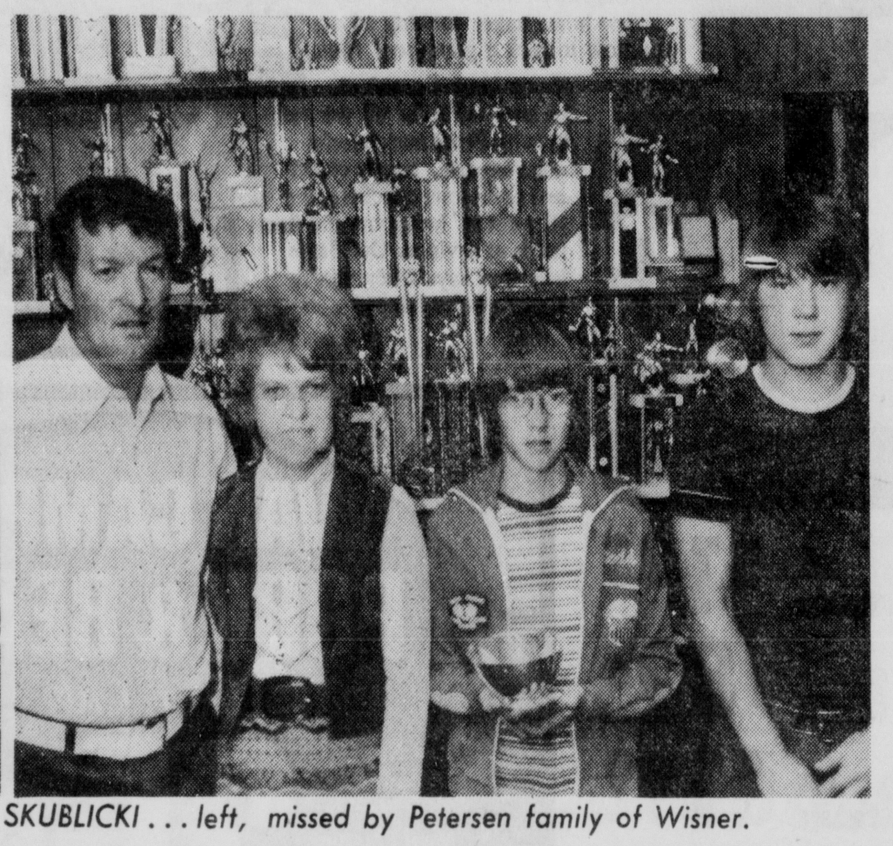

Six-Time Winner

Skublicki won all six of the U.S. Table Tennis Assn. tournaments he entered, but he had not been ranked because of his political status. Even at 36, Petersen said, the Pole would easily have been in the top 10 nationally.

The Petersens don't know what will be done with Skublicki's body. His wife in Kosno, Poland, doesn't know English and the Petersens don't know Polish.

"She might have come here in two months," Mrs. Petersen said with tears in her eyes. "Now I don't know what will happen. There are so many things I'd like to tell her and write her."

JERZY SKUBLICKI . . . left, missed by Petersen family of Wisner.

Corps: Reserviors Prevented Million In Damages

Omaha (UPI) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Tuesday the Missouri River main stem reservoir system prevented an estimated $87 million in flood damages this year.

The corps said its coordinating committee on Missouri River main stem reservoir operations has reviewed the operations of the reservoir system, and found, in most cases, the flooding problems were minor compared with those that would have occurred without reservoir control.

The committee noted the reservoir levels and releases necessary to control the flooding resulted in a number of complaints about lowland flooding and erosion.

The total damages prevented since construction on the reservoir system began, the corps said, were more than $900 million.

The record high flood season runoff above the Missouri River main stem reservoir system this year resulted in the highest reservoir levels to date, the corps said, in several of the reservoirs and required releases in excess of any experienced since the system was placed into operation more than 20 years ago.

"The high inflows," the corps said, "provided a number of benefits to other purposes served by the main stem reservoirs."

Hydropower generation, the corps said, is expected to exceed 13 billion kilowat hours this year, the highest since system operations began. Hydropower revenues from the system during fiscal 1975 were nearly $63 million, 18% higher than 1974.

"High releases from the system have contributed to increased channel depths for navigation and have greatly decreased barge grounding delays."

Depot Drilling Plans Delayed Again

Sidney (AP) — Nearly three years ago, the federal government announced its plans to open about 18,000 acres of the former Sioux Army Depot Reservation to oil and gas exploration.

But now, it appears those plans are as far away from realization as they ever were.

For one thing, the mineral rights on the old reservation land are going steadily downhill because the wells already operating on the perimeter of the depot land are busily pumping oil, potentially draining the reserves under the old depot.

In addition, there is a dispute over how the mineral rights should be granted.

Now it appears that the earliest possible date that the rights could be transferred is the middle of next year, according to Jack Fish of the Nebraska Oil and Gas Conservation Commission.

The three oil fields nearest the former reservation land are the West Engelland, the Sioux and the Pecos. To date, the West Engelland operations has produced more than 487,000 barrels of oil und 5.4 billion cubic feet of natural gas. The Sioux operation has produced almost 92,000 barrels of oil and about 1.4 billion cubic feet of natural gas, and the Pecos has produced 472,000 barrels of crude and 184 million cubic feet of natural gas.

"Because the government has messed around for so long, some of those operators who were interested are not so interested any more with his kind of production from adjacent fields," said Fish.

The disbursal of the mineral rights was origianlly slated in May 1973, when the General Services Administration (GSA) said it would open bids.

However, the GSA then announced that the sale was called off because of objections by the Department of the Interior. The latter objected, saying mineral rights to the lands should be leased, not sold.

The land in question is privately-owned. It was sold by the GSA after the old Army Depot was phased out in the 1960s. But, it is common practice for the government to retain the mineral rights.

The GSA finally agreed on leasing the rights, and a new bidding date was set. However, another inter-agency dispute caused the cancellation of the bid opening, which had been scheduled last May.

This time it was the U.S. Geological Survey, saying it needed more time to prepare specifications to assure the government a fair return for the mineral rights.

At issue, apparently, is the information gathered from eight test holes, which were drilled by three oil companies at an estimated cost of about $500,000. The Geological Survey asked the companies for the results of the test holes to help it come up with a minimum acceptable bid for the tracts. However, the companies responded by saying the information could be had, but at a price — a price that would compensate them for the work they had done, according to Fish.

There is now speculation that there may be further delays, caused by the declining interest on the part of the oilmen coupled with continuing pressure from the Congress to get the highest possible rate of return for the rights.

Winston S. Churchill

Shaping Of WWIII Seen

Omaha (AP) — Winston S. Churchill, 34, whose famous grandfather rallied England against the Nazi threat during World War II, said Tuesday that the Communist threat is shaping "World War III."

Referring specifically to Portugal, which he said reflects other Western European countries, Churchill said: "There we are seeing the shape of World War III."

Churchill, a journalist and member of the British Parliament since 970, was in Omaha to speak to the Women's Town Hall, jinc.

He said the war is being fought in the factories and streets of Lisbon, instead of with strategic or conventional weapons. Despite being outvoted 4-1 in national elections, the Communist Party has made large inroads in the trade unions and in the news media.

Even Great Britain, Churchill said, is in trouble because Communists have secured leadership positions in the high-technology trade unions. At a news connference here, he said that there is "no question pro-Communist activities in Europe are directed from Moscow.

"If we're not man enough to face up to reality, no matter how stark that reality may be, and if leaders don't tell people the truth, there is a danger the West could fall without a shot being fired, " Churchill said.

In prepared remarks, Churchill said the Soviet Union hasn't abandoned its long-range plan "to dominate (the Middle East) and gain control of the oil weapon."

Their plan, revealed by a defector, envisions a peace-loving American president by the late 1980s and the withdrawal of American commitment to Western Europe. At that point, he said, the Soviet-bloc nations will intensify the arms race and attain superiority.

Contract To Sponsor Refugees Wouldn't Bind State—Vitamvas

By United Press International

A State Justice Department spokesman said Tuesday a contract the federal government wants Gov. J. James Exon to sign, in which he would agree on behalf of the state to sponsor Vietnamese refugees, would have no legal standing.

Gerald Vitamvas, deputy attorney general, said Exon "couldn't bind the state" to anything.

"I don't see any state law authorizing the governor to sign such an agreement and bind the state," he said.

In response, Norman Otto, an administrative assistant to the governor, said he would present that information to Exon in preparation to a decision on whether to sign the contract even though there would be no legal and binding committment.

The federal government has asked Exon to agree in writing to sponsor at least 100 Vietnamese for resettlement in Nebraska. The federal government proposed the contract in an attempt to try and clear refugee camps as soon as possible.

The same proposal was earlier rejected by Exon, who said the sponsoring of Vietnamese refugees as Nebraska residents would best be handled by private citizens and organizations.

Exon contended that Nebraskans, once informed of the situation, would respond without his having to "force it down their throats."

Exon announced that decision during the initial meeting of a special group of interested citizens and organizations. Out of that meeting came a decision to coordinate private efforts, particularly those of church organizations, in resettlement efforts.

But last month the federal government again asked the governor to consider a contract, and at that time Exon said he would withhold a decision pending word from the Justice Department.

NPPD Okays Sale Of $50 Million In Notes

Columbus (AP) — The board of directors of the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) met here in special session Tuesday, approving the sale of $50 million in "power supply development notes."

There were two bids from firms who wanted to purchase the notes. The low bidder was Halsey-Stuart Co., Inc., and associates from New York. Their quoted effective annual interest rate was 6.5609%, according to NPPD spokesmen.

The other bidder on the notes was the First Boston Corp., for the joint managers and associates. They offered an interest rate of 6.88086% annually.

The notes were offered on a competitive basis in denominations of $5,000 each.

Money derived from the sale of the notes will be used for initial participation in the proposed construction of a second nuclear generator at the Omaha Public Power District Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Generating Station; for further studies and engineering on a second coal-fired power plant, the site of which has not yet been determined; a pump storage project in northeast Nebraska, and studies on the possibility of a power exchange with Manitoba Hydro of Canada.

The first $15 million in notes will become due Oct. 15, 1977; another $15 million on Oct. 15, 1978, and the remaining $20 million on Oct. 15, 1979.

Funds Given For Museum On Blacks Of Great Plains

Omaha (AP) — The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration has awarded a grant of $101,000 to the Great Plains Black Museum here, according to Rep. John McCollister, R-Neb.

The federal grant is to be matched by an equal amount of money from area sources, and museum officials will meet later this month to plan ways to raise the matching funds.

The museum, when opened, will tell the story of blacks in the Great Plains area, including the Dakotas, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska and parts of other states.

The federal grant will go to pay some staff workers, to make museun acquisitions and for maintenance, said Wilbur Phillips of Omaha, president of the Negro Historical Society of Nebraska.

3 Viet Children Said Doing Well

Waverly School Superintendent Dale Siefkes told the school board at its monthly meeting the three Vietnamese children now enrolled in Waverly schools are doing well.

Siefkes said the current staff and program is proving to be adequate and no additional resources are needed. He said the students receive some individual attention and have been making consistent progress.

In other business, the school board adopted a five-point general statement of goals. Siefkes said the goals were to develop special programs for the handicapped, work towards individually guided education, improve instructional programs for junior and senior high students, pursue staff development programs, and establish procedures for evaluating progress towards these goals.

Siefkes said the board charged the school administrators with developing the specific ideas to implement these goals.

Across Nebraska

Wearers Know 'How Sweet It Is'

Hickman — James B. Libal's driver education class at Norris High School ran a survey at a recent football game to determine how many drivers were wearing seat belts. The class awarded suckers to the 312 people who were "suckers" not to be buckled up and gave candy bars to the 53 who realize "how sweet it is" to be safe.

Fish House Preservation Eyed

Gretna — A group of concerned citizens is making an effort to preserve the old fish hatchery here. Jim Nickerson, Ron Patterson and Francis Carter head a drive to determine possible use for the building, which was constructed in 1914 and has a unique oriental architectural style.

Jonas Family Puzzle Complete

Grand Island — Judi Crosby of Grand Island, Ann Howard of Blair and Donna Brown of Hastings were three of six Jonas children separated by adoption in 1952. After 23 years, the three sisters were finally reunited last weekend. "We were so close but yet so far," Ann said, voicing the feelings for all. Plans are being made for a full reunion on Thanksgiving, to include the other three Jonas children, John of Dallas, Barbara of San Fernando, Calif., and Doris of San Antonio, Tex.

Dam-Canal Project To Begin

Holdrege — The Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District said Tuesday it expects construction to begin later this month on a $6.98 million dam and canal enlargement project here. The district said contracts should be awarded this month and completion is aimed for April of 1978.

Kearney Students In The 'Spirit'

Kearney — Seniors at Kearney Senior High School got into the spirit of things, literally, last week. They dressed up as ghosts, as part of the school's annual Color Week. Appropriate sayings abounded — "Sock it Tomb," "You Have to Fright to Win," and "Cheer for the Boo and the Ghouled."

ACTION LINE

DIAL 477-2121

Or Write P.O. Box 81669, Lincoln, NE 68501

I am interested in pursuing a career in farming but land and machinery are expensive. Are there any federal programs or low-cost loans to help me get started?

—Gary Mitchell, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Other than commercial loans, there are three primary sources of credit for the beginning farmer, according to Paul Bachman, vice president of the Federal Land Bank. The land bank, which lends funds of its cooperative members and not government funds, will finance 50% of a real estate purchase at an 8¾% interest rate. The Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) can lend the remaining 50% for the land purchase to qualified borrowers at a 5% interest rate under that agency's Young Farmer program. The FmHA lends federal money. Short-term loans (from a 12-month growing season loan to seven years) on farm machinery are available from the Production Credit Association, also a cooperative lender. The interest rate on these loans fluctuates, but is now 7.95%. All three can be contacted at their Lincoln offices about eligibility requirements.

I've complained twice to the health department about the garbage cans behind Alice's Restaurant on Normal Boulevard. Again this morning the garbage is piled up on the ground and will bring rats into the neighborhood. I didn't get any action from the health department.

—Mr. Clean, Lincoln

There is an empty old house between 328 and 334 on G Street. It's an eyesore for the neighborhood. There are rats in the back yard. We have called the health inspector but can't get anything done. Please help.

—B.P., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dennis Grams, assistant chief of environmental health for the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept., checked out both of these complaints. The problem at Alice's Restaurant, 3822 Normal Blvd., was inadequate storage for solid wastes. Grams said that the restaurant and several nearby businesses had doubled their garbage storage capacity this week and that there should be no further problem there.

The house at 332 G St. has recently been rented to new tenants. Grams said inspectors found some moving and packing materials in the back yard and a pile of dirt and some concrete blocks for the construction of a new porch in the front yard. The new tenants have promised to get garbage containers and dispose of the moving wastes by Thursday. Construction of the new porch, which Grams said had been delayed by problems in getting a building permit, will begin soon. He said the health department periodically will check both locations.

My daughter is in the Army in Maryland and is looking for a bumper sticker, "Nebraska . . . the good life." We see them all the time but no one seems to know where to get them.

—Mrs. Charles Votipka, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: "Nebraska . . . the good life" bumper stickers are available free from the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, 231 So. 14th St., Lincoln.

I would like to find out about the lottery tickets in Omaha. Can you buy them here in Lincoln?

—Mrs. Harold Hiatt, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Omaha's Big Green lottery tickets currently are sold only by vendors within the city limits of Omaha. Lottery director Sam Schwartzkopf says no decision will be made on whether the tickets will be sold elsewhere until court cases challenging the lottery's legality are resolved. Tickets cannot be sold through the mail because of federal regulations.

While on vacation in February, I purchased a pair of custom-made mocassins from the Bear Skin Trading Company in Salamanca, N.Y., for $30.98. When I didn't hear from them by April, I wrote to them but received no response. I wrote to them again Aug. 25 but again received no response. I have their receipt for my money.

—G.M. Weinberg, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: A spokesman for the Bear Skin Trading Co. said their records show your order was forwarded to Fred's Leather Shop in Colorado Springs, Colo., where the mocassins were to be manufactured, shortly after you placed your order. The shoes were then to be mailed directly to you within four to six weeks. The New York company promised to send you your money or your mocassins in the next two weeks. ACTION LINE was unsuccessful in its attempt to contact the Colorado Springs firm. If you don't receive your merchandise within the specified time, please contact ACTION LINE again.

4th U.S. Flier, Pilot Has Read Obituary Twice

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Twenty-six pilots who soloed before Dec. 17, 1916, were back together for one of the last reunions of Early Birds of Aviation, Inc.

In 1928 there were 588 at the organizational meeting. Ninety-seven survive, with next year's meeting will be their last, they say.

Charles F. Willard, recognized as the fourth American to fly — behind the Wright brothers and Glenn Curtiss — was among them.

"I'm probably the only man who has read his death story twice," the 92-year-old Willard recalled Thursday.

"Once, a crankshaft broke and sliced off the tail of the plane I was flying. I came down headed for a house but ended up in a potato patch. A reporter saw me and phoned in a story I was dead."

On another occasion, he said, a newspaper misstook him for his father who was killed in an aircraft crash.

Art Linkletter Sues Over Sale

DENVER (AP) — Television and radio personality Art Linkletter has filed a damage suit in U.S. District Court claiming 120 dairy cows he leased to a Fort Collins group were sold without his permission.

Linkletter is seeking $72,000 as the sale price of the cattle last November by the Fort Collins Production Credit Association and $960 a month back rent which he alleges he was supposed to have received.

Linkletter is also asking for $50,000 in punitive damages against the firm.

Bodies Recovered

BERCHTESGADEN, West Germany (AP) — Rescue helicopter crews Sunday recovered the bodies of four Austrians whose single-engine private plane hit 8,891-foot Watzmann peak in the Bavarian Alps during dense fog Saturday, West German police reported.

Freedom, Petersens Lose In Table Tennis Pro's Death

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wisner — The LeRoy Petersen family lost a Polish friend who was like a brother. The Wisner Table Tennis Assn. lost an internationally known club pro. Freedom lost an ardent lover.

Jerzy (Jerry) Skublicki died Friday in a traffic accident near Pilger — the day after he had given up hope of getting a work permit from the Immigration and Naturalization Service and decided to seek political asylum in the United States.

The Polish table tennis champion came to the United States last January on a three-month visa. After living for a time in Denver, he met the Petersens at a tournament in Houston, Tex.

Petersen agreed to sponsor Skublicki until he could get established in this country.

"He was like a member of our family," Petersen said. "Some people, we'd get tired of having around, but not him. It seemed like he had been here for years."

Submitted in June

Skublicki applied in June for a work permit that would allow him to stay in this country and bring his wife and two young sons from Europe.

Petersen said buck passing within the Immigration and Naturalization Service frustrated him and Skublicki. "First they told us he would be taking another American's job," said Petersen. "That was stupid. I know table tennis and there isn't anyone in this country qualified to teach it like Jerry was."

The two men had been in touch with the State Dept., according to Petersen and had been assured that Skublicki would be granted political asylum.

"But they wanted to give the immigration people in Nebraska a chance to accept him," Petersen said. "If only they had, maybe his family would be here and this would have never happened.

Mind Made Up

" 'No decision, no decision,' he (Jerry) kept saying. He would put his head on the table and shake his head and say, 'No good, no good.' He was so disappointed."

Petersen said Skublicki had made up his mind to accept political asylum, even though that route might have been harder on his friends and family in Poland. "There was no way he could go back," Petersen said. "He knew he would be thrown into a concentration camp."

Besides being a table tennis champion in Poland more than 10 years, Skublicki was on the state championship soccer team and was a skilled skier.

He was awarded the Mistrza Sportu by Poland, an honor Petersen described as something like being an All-American, only much more difficult to achieve.

"He made his living there by coaching juniors. He was just great with kids," Petersen said.

Wisner is a nationally known table tennis center, and Skublicki had been earning money by giving lessons to members of the town's table tennis association.

The Petersens are widely known in their own right. LeRoy and sons Scott, 18, and Todd, 14, are ranked nationally.

The couple's third son, Dirk, 21, lives in Lincoln and was the first member of the family to win a trophy in 1970 when the Wisner association was formed.

Todd is Nebraska men's champion, the youngest in the history of U.S. table tennis, and is ranked in the top 300 nationally. He says Skublicki knew things about table tennis that he had never heard of.

"He stressed physical conditioning and made me run and lift weights, but he did it with me," said Todd. "He helped my backhand and showed me 15 new serves and improved my game about 15% in three months."

Todd teamed with Mark Welder of Jacksonville, Fla., to win the 13-and-under doubles crown this year at the U.S. Table Tennis Open.

Six-Lesson Champ

Petersen said Todd still has to prove it, but Skublicki said he could be the national champion in three or four years. "I'm gonna do it for Jerry," Todd said.

"To show how good a teacher he was," Mrs. Petersen said, "Todd had never played regular tennis before this year. Jerry gave him six lessons and he won a juniors tournament in Norfolk last month."

Skublicki spoke five languages fluently and was interested in teaching the Russian language in this country.

Table tennis is a growing sport in the United States, Petersen said, and Skublicki saw Nebraska as a place to develop interest in it.

The Wisner Table Tennis Assn. plans a tournament at the end of November in honor of the Polish champion and Randy Hall, a "promising player," who also was killed in the accident.

Radio Free Europe, European newspapers and tennis magazines have all been in touch with the Petersens.

"He loved it here, to be able to go out and talk to anybody he wanted," Petersen said. "He would just smile sometimes and say, 'Free, I'm free'."

Skublicki loved the people of Poland and Russia but detested the Communist system, according to Petersen.

He had been trying to come to the United State for 10 years, Petersen said, and his outspokenness once got him banned from playing in Russia.

"He was having dinner with a Russian who asked him how he liked Russian food. He told him it was very good since it came from Poland," Petersen said.

Six-Time Winner

Skublicki won all six of the U.S. Table Tennis Assn. tournaments he entered, but he had not been ranked because of his political status. Even at 36, Petersen said, the Pole would easily have been in the top 10 nationally.

The Petersens don't know what will be done with Skublicki's body. His wife in Kosno, Poland, doesn't know English and the Petersens don't know Polish.

"She might have come here in two months," Mrs. Petersen said with tears in her eyes. "Now I don't know what will happen. There are so many things I'd like to tell her and write her."

JERZY SKUBLICKI . . . left, missed by Petersen family of Wisner.

Corps: Reserviors Prevented Million In Damages

Omaha (UPI) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Tuesday the Missouri River main stem reservoir system prevented an estimated $87 million in flood damages this year.

The corps said its coordinating committee on Missouri River main stem reservoir operations has reviewed the operations of the reservoir system, and found, in most cases, the flooding problems were minor compared with those that would have occurred without reservoir control.

The committee noted the reservoir levels and releases necessary to control the flooding resulted in a number of complaints about lowland flooding and erosion.

The total damages prevented since construction on the reservoir system began, the corps said, were more than $900 million.

The record high flood season runoff above the Missouri River main stem reservoir system this year resulted in the highest reservoir levels to date, the corps said, in several of the reservoirs and required releases in excess of any experienced since the system was placed into operation more than 20 years ago.

"The high inflows," the corps said, "provided a number of benefits to other purposes served by the main stem reservoirs."

Hydropower generation, the corps said, is expected to exceed 13 billion kilowat hours this year, the highest since system operations began. Hydropower revenues from the system during fiscal 1975 were nearly $83 million, 18% higher than 1974.

"High releases from the system have contributed to increased channel depths for navigation and have greatly decreased barge grounding delays."

Lots of Cheese—800 Named Varieties

By Jana Miller

Nancy Mathison has trouble with her husband, Wayne. He's a plain, dependable Velveeta fan. She's the manager of Barberio Cheese House, a cheese connoisseur's delight that features more than 250 imported and domestic varieties.

By the way, Barberio's doesn't sell Velveeta.

T.A. Evans, food science professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, says processed cheese, like Velveeta, is "by far the biggest seller" around.

800 Cheese Varieties

In all, Evans says there are 800 named varieties of cheese.

"They sell more processed cheese than any other," Evans said. "To the majority of people, cheese is just a food. Connoisseurs are in the minority."

Processed cheese, a pasturized blend of natural cheese, is considered convenient and dependable, Evans says. It is creamier and less flavorful than natural cheese, he adds. Processed cheese melts quickly, doesn't mold and is used in sandwiches, casseroles and salads.

On the other hand, Evans says different batches of a natural cheese, such as Cheddar, can vary greatly depending on the quality of milk used and the skill and care of the cheese maker.

University Cheese Operation

"Making cheese is more than a cookbook operation," he says.

Evans supervises the NU Food Science and Technology Dept.'s dairy store on East Campus. The store sells about 30,000 pounds of cheese a year. Most of that cheese is bundled in gift boxes and sent across the country in November and December.

"That isn't much," Evans said, noting that some of the more than one dozen cheese plants in Nebraska produce that much cheese in two or three days. Nebraska ranks 10th in the nation in the production of cheese, he said.

Cheese available at the University's dairy store is made in a food pilot plant in connection with teaching and research programs.

Evans knows the students could sell more cheese, but he won't even guess at how much more.

Cheeses In Stock

On hand in a cold storage room adjacent to the tiny dairy store are about 19,000 pounds of Edam, Swiss, Husker, Colby, New York Cheddar and Cheddar cheeses, all made by University students. The Cheddar comes mild or sharp, smoke or garlic flavored, plain or filled with caraway seeds.

Blue, a semi-soft cheese with distinctive blue-green veins, also is available at the dairy store. The sharp and tangy cheese is made in Fairbault, Minn.

A dessert without cheese is like a beautiful woman with only one eye.

A meal without wine is like a day without sunshine.

Anthelme Brillat-Savarin, 1755-1826
From "Physiologie du Gout"

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mathison at Barberio's, a national chain store headquartered in Minneapolis, says Cheddar and Colby are the biggest sellers at the Gateway store. Both are made in the United States.

In all, she said, Barberio's features more than 250 varieties of cheese, ranging from $2 a pound for a processed cheese to $5.25 a pound for Roquefort, imported from France.

Half of Stock Imported

Mrs. Mathison says about half the cheeses available at Barberio's are imported. They come from almost every country in the world, she says. Domestic cheeses usually come from Wisconsin, Minnesota or Illinois.

Domestic and imported cheeses compete for the buyer's attention, Mrs. Mathison said, noting that almost every cheese made in another country has been duplicated in the United States.

"You can't beat Gouda made in Holland," she said, explaining it is creamier and more mellow than Gouda made in the United States. And, she says, there's nothing like the Camembert or Brie made in France.

"But domestic Cheddar is far better than what you can import," she said. The imported is dry and crumbly. Another good domestic cheese, she said, is called farmer cheese or Bond Ost in Swedish.

Camembert, Brie for Dessert

Camembert and Brie are ripened cheeses with soft edible crusts of powdery mold, Mrs. Mathison explained. They are considered dessert cheeses to be served with wine after a roast, or after the salad, or as a dessert with wine and fruit.

Mrs. Mathison said cheese is best when served at room temperature. Usually, she said, it takes 40 minutes to an hour to warm one pound of cheese to such a temperature.

Some cheeses, particularly mild ones, go best with unsalted crackers, she said. "You need something to accent or complement the taste of cheese," she added. "If you eat Brie with salty crackers, you ruin the taste."

In addition, Mrs. Mathison suggested that wooden toothpicks be placed beside the serving dish, rather than inserted in the cheese cubes. "Cheese will pick up a woody flavor from the toothpicks," she explained.

Cheese Trays Prepared

Both Barberio's and Leon's Food Mart will prepare cheese trays for customers. Barberio's will prepare trays to serve from four persons on up, usually the cost runs about 50¢ a person.

"We're noted for our cheese trays," Iona Birt, a clerk at Leon's delicatessen said. Leon's cheese trays range from $10 to

Consumer Taste Buds Swing Toward Wines

By Holly Spence

Wine — a new trend? More like an old friend.

As Mitch Tavlin of Mitch Tavlin Liquors said, "The grape has followed man throughout all of civilization."

Among the many references to wine in the Bible is a near-medicinal verse from Timothy: "Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake."

Camaraderie of Wine

And Homer's "Odyssey" touts the camaraderie produced by the fermented grape when he writes "And wine can of their wits the wise beguile, make the sage frolic and the serious smile."

The famed French chemist Louis Pasteur in his explanation that wine is a purer substance than water stated: "Wine is the most healthful and most hygienic of beverages."

But few testimonials are needed nowadays because the wine trend is flourishing. And the consumer seems to be in a better position than the vintner. Publications on wine will tell you that both in this country and in Europe, the market is awash with far more wine than can be consumed.

Too Many Vineyards

The shortages of the late 1960s and early 1970s are clearly over. The United States is suffering from an overexpansion of vineyards and Europe is harvesting bumper crops.

Although there has been a great increase in the consumption of wine throughout the country in the past few years, Dick Stoehr of the N Street Drive-In, sees the impact of wine just hitting the Midwest.

Sellers and consumers of wine agree that people are much more knowledgeable about wine. Interest in wine has become a hobby for some. Others have substituted wine for cocktails. And yet others look at it as part of a meal, a food.

Tavlin said a good combination of wine and food is "a perfect marriage."

Consumption Doubled

He pointed out that the per capita consumption of wine has doubled in the last six to seven years, although Americans are far from the greatest drinkers of wine. He describes American consumption of wine as "insignificant" in the world market.

Stoehr credits "people changing their taste buds" as one of the reasons wine interest has increased. Although he has done some study because 70% of his store volume is in wines, Stoehr feels that people are taking to wine because they want a less harsh bite in their drinks. He also singled out the increase in sales of smoother whisky with less alcohol content.

Although many Lincoln liquor stores of varying sizes stock domestic and imported wines, Stoehr and Tavlin are two of the largest in the city and attempt to specialize in many varieties of wine.

Collegians Interested

"There is a genuine interest in wine at the college level," said Tavlin, with Stoehr agreeing that the sales of sweet pop wines is not what it used to be.

"Younger people — between 19 and 23 — seem to be drinking more expensive wines," added Stoehr. "Twenty years ago I did not even drink wine."

Stoehr said 70% of his wine sales are bottles priced between $2.99 and $3.99. Tavlin, who noted that the study of wine has become "my therapy," said his most popular wines are priced between $4 and $8.

Stoehr said the French wine market "is really coming on strong again" since the prices of imported wines has gone down.

Imported Wine Sales

Although Tavlin has "an affinity for German wines" and feels the French wines have been "over-glamorized." He said he is selling more imported wines because you "can get them for less than similarly described California wines."

His store deals more in direct imports — "we are importers" — but Tavlin does carry a "full line of California wines."

Stoehr believes there are good inexpensive wines and pointed out the new Gallo varietal line that is heavily advertised.

Tavlin considers the Gallo line "transitional," a wine for the beginner, one that he wouldn't want to drink every day.

California Sells Best

The California wines far outsell other domestic wines (usually from New York and Ohio). Although the bottling standards for wine producers are not federally controlled and as stringent as in Europe, the labeling laws and bottling requirements are not as lax in California as other states, Stoehr and Tavlin said.

Special Soup For Children

Cut little cubes of Cheddar cheese. Wrap cubes with dough made from instant biscuit mix, using only enough dough to cover cheese.

Roll into little dumplings and drop into bubbly tomato soup. Cook for 10 to 15 minutes, until dumplings expand and rise to surface.

With every spoonful of soup you will get a little dumpling with a melted cheese surprise inside. Children love to help make the "bags of gold" too.

WISCONSIN-NEBRASKA CHEESE FESTIVAL IS HERE!

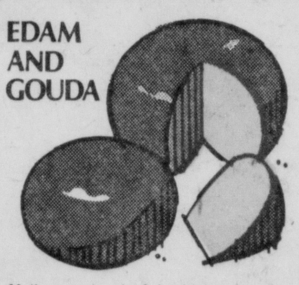

Now! Featured in food stores all over town, the many wonderful brands and varieties of cheese—the same famous cheeses that have gained world-wide fame for fine flavor and quality. Take advantage of promotional efforts currently underway to better acquaint you with them. Look for special displays! Try an old favorite and discover a new one at the food store where you shop.

COLBY AND MONTEREY JACK

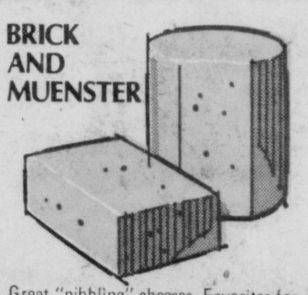

If a mild flavor is desired, either will prove an excellent choice. Children love them! Try both for an appetizer or snack, in a sandwich.

EDAM AND GOUDA

Mellow and colorful additions to any cheese tray. Perfect in salads, with crisp vegetables as an appetizer, with oranges and apples for dessert.

BRICK AND MUENSTER

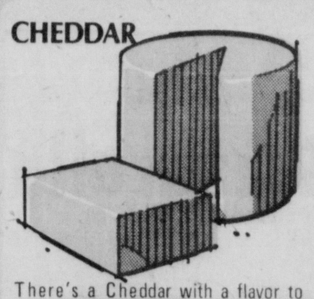

Great "nibbling" cheeses. Favorites for the appetizer tray. Fine for snacks or sandwiches. Great dessert cheeses especially with melon or Tokay grapes.

BLUE AND GORGONZOLA

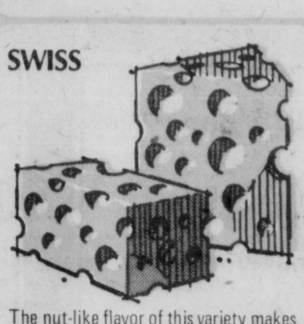

These cheeses with their tangy salty flavors add a gourmet touch to salads. Try on hamburger or steak; serve with Bosc or Anjou pears for a light dessert.

CHEDDAR

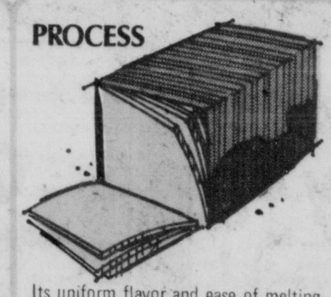

There's a Cheddar with a flavor to please every family member. Use as an appetizer, in salads and sandwiches, in cooked foods and sauces.

SWISS

The nut-like flavor of this variety makes it familiar on cheese trays, as a sandwich, in fondues. Try as a dessert with green grapes, melons, oranges.

PROCESS

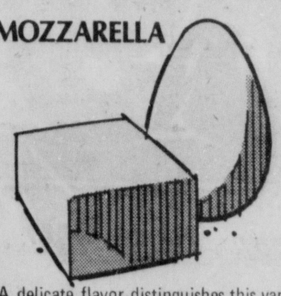

Its uniform flavor and ease of melting result from blending and heating during processing. Perfect for cooked dishes and sauces.

PROVOLONE

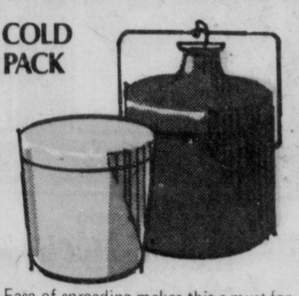

Its smoky tang makes this a "must" in foods such as lasagna and ravioli. Wonderful, too, as an appetizer, snack, or dessert with fruit.

MOZZARELLA

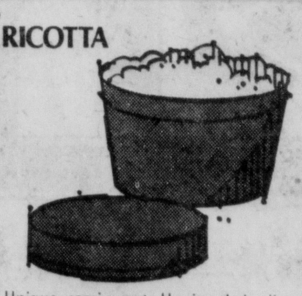

A delicate flavor distinguishes this variety and makes it a standard ingredient in pizza and lasagna. A favorite, too, as a protein-rich snack for children.

COLD PACK

Ease of spreading makes this a must for the appetizer tray. A fine compliment to fruits and vegetables. Available with many added flavorings.

RICOTTA

Unique, semi-sweet. Use in salads, dips and cooked dishes. Famous as a preferred ingredient in Italian-style dishes; in desserts such as cheese cake.

PARMESAN AND ROMANO

Known for the zesty flavor they add to other foods. Generally used in grated form. Try on hot vegetables, casseroles, hot breads, soups, salads.

Depot Drilling Plans Delayed Again

Sidney (AP) — Nearly three years ago, the federal government announced its plans to open about 18,000 acres of the former Sioux Army Depot Reservation to oil and gas exploration.

But now, it appears those plans are as far away from realization as they ever were.

For one thing, the mineral rights on the old reservation land are going steadily downhill because the wells already operating on the perimeter of the depot land are busily pumping oil, potentially draining the reserves under the old depot.

In addition, there is a dispute over how the mineral rights should be granted.

Now it appears that the earliest possible date that the rights could be transferred is the middle of next year, according to Jack Fish of the Nebraska Oil and Gas Conservation Commission.

The three oil fields nearest the former reservation land are the West Engelland, the Sioux and the Pecos. To date, the West Engelland operations has produced more than 487,000 barrels of oil und 5.4 billion cubic feet of natural gas. The Sioux operation has produced almost 92,000 barrels of oil and about 1.4 billion cubic feet of natural gas, and the Pecos has produced 472,000 barrels of crude and 194 million cubic feet of natural gas.

"Because the government has messed around for so long, some of those operators who were interested are not so interested any more with his kind of production from adjacent fields," said Fish.

The disbursal of the mineral rights was origianlly slated in May 1973, when the General Services Administration (GSA) said it would open bids.

However, the GSA then announced that the sale was called off because of objections by the Department of the Interior. The latter objected, saying mineral rights to the lands should be leased, not sold.

The land in question is privately-owned. It was sold by the GSA after the old Army Depot was phased out in the 1960s. But, it is common practice for the government to retain the mineral rights.

The GSA finally agreed on leasing the rights, and a new bidding date was set. However, another inter-agency dispute caused the cancellation of the bid opening, which had been scheduled last May.

This time it was the U.S. Geological Survey, saying it needed more time to prepare specifications to assure the government a fair return for the mineral rights.

At issue, apparently, is the information gathered from eight test holes, which were drilled by three oil companies at an estimated cost of about $500,000. The Geological Survey asked the companies for the results of the test holes to help it come up with a minimum acceptable bid for the tracts. However, the companies responded by saying the information could be had, but at a price — a price that would compensate them for the work they had done, according to Fish.

There is now speculation that there may be further delays, caused by the declining interest on the part of the oilmen coupled with continuing pressure from the Congress to get the highest possible rate of return for the rights.

Winston S. Churchill

Shaping Of WWIII Seen

Omaha (AP) — Winston S. Churchill, 34, whose famous grandfather rallied England against the Nazi threat during World War II, said Tuesday that the Communist threat is shaping "World War III."

Referring specifically to Portugal, which he said reflects other Western European countries, Churchill said: "There we are seeing the shape of World War III."

Churchill, a journalist and member of the British Parliament since 970, was in Omaha to speak to the Women's Town Hall, jinc.

He said the war is being fought in the factories and streets of Lisbon, instead of with strategic or conventional weapons. Despite being outvoted 4-1 in national elections, the Communist Party has made large inroads in the trade unions and in the news media.

Even Great Britain, Churchill said, is in trouble because Communists have secured leadership positions in the high-technology trade unions. At a news conference here, he said that there is "no question pro-Communist activities in Europe are directed from Moscow.

"If we're not man enough to face up to reality, no matter how stark that reality may be, and if leaders don't tell people the truth, there is a danger the West could fall without a shot being fired," Churchill said.

In prepared remarks, Churchill said the Soviet Union hasn't abandoned its long-range plan "to dominate (the Middle East) and gain control of the oil weapon."

Their plan, revealed by a defector, envisions a peace-loving American president by the late 1980s and the withdrawal of American commitment to Western Europe. At that point, he said, the Soviet-bloc nations will intensify the arms race and attain superiority.

Contract To Sponsor Refugees Wouldn't Bind State—Vitamvas

By United Press International

A State Justice Department spokesman said Tuesday a contract the federal government wants Gov. J. James Exon to sign, in which he would agree on behalf of the state to sponsor Vietnamese refugees, would have no legal standing.

Gerald Vitamvas, deputy attorney general, said Exon "couldn't bind the state" to anything.

"I don't see any state law authorizing the governor to sign such an agreement and bind the state," he said.

In response, Norman Otto, an administrative assistant to the governor, said he would present that information to Exon in preparation to a decision on whether to sign the contract even though there would be no legal and binding committment.

The federal government has asked Exon to agree in writing to sponsor at least 100 Vietnamese for resettlement in Nebraska. The federal government proposed the contract in an attempt to try and clear refugee camps as soon as possible.

The same proposal was earlier rejected by Exon, who said the sponsoring of Vietnamese refugees as Nebraska residents would best be handled by private citizens and organizations.

Exon contended that Nebraskans, once informed of the situation, would respond without his having to "force it down their throats."

Exon announced that decision during the initial meeting of a special group of interested citizens and organizations. Out of that meeting came a decision to coordinate private efforts, particularly those of church organizations, in resettlement efforts.

But last month the federal government again asked the governor to consider a contract, and at that time Exon said he would withhold a decision pending word from the Justice Department.

NPPD Okays Sale Of $50 Million In Notes

Columbus (AP) — The board of directors of the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) met here in special session Tuesday, approving the sale of $50 million in "power supply development notes."

There were two bids from firms who wanted to purchase the notes. The low bidder was Halsey-Stuart Co., Inc., and associates from New York. Their quoted effective annual interest rate was 6.5609%, according to NPPD spokesmen.

The other bidder on the notes was the First Boston Corp., for the joint managers and associates. They offered an interest rate of 6.89086% annually.

The notes were offered on a competitive basis in denominations of $5,000 each.

Money derived from the sale of the notes will be used for initial participation in the proposed construction of a second nuclear generator at the Omaha Public Power District Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Generating Station; for further studies and engineering on a second coal-fired power plant, the site of which has not yet been determined; a pump storage project in northeast Nebraska, and studies on the possibility of a power exchange with Manitoba Hydro of Canada.

The first $15 million in notes will become due Oct. 15, 1977; another $15 million on Oct. 15, 1978, and the remaining $20 million on Oct. 15, 1979.

Funds Given For Museum On Blacks Of Great Plains

Omaha (AP) — The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration has awarded a grant of $101,000 to the Great Plains Black Museum here, according to Rep. John McCollister, R-Neb.

The federal grant is to be matched by an equal amount of money from area sources, and museum officials will meet later this month to plan ways to raise the matching funds.

The museum, when opened, will tell the story of blacks in the Great Plains area, including the Dakotas, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska and parts of other states.

The federal grant will go to pay some staff workers, to make museun acquisitions and for maintenance, said Wilbur Phillips of Omaha, president of the Negro Historical Society of Nebraska.

3 Viet Children Said Doing Well

Waverly School Superintendent Dale Siefkes told the school board at its monthly meeting the three Vietnamese children now enrolled in Waverly schools are doing well.

Siefkes said the current staff and program is proving to be adequate and no additional resources are needed. He said the students receive some individual attention and have been making consistent progress.

In other business, the school board adopted a five-point general statement of goals. Siefkes said the goals were to develop special programs for the handicapped, work towards individually guided education, improve instructional programs for junior and senior high students, pursue staff development programs, and establish procedures for evaluating progress towards these goals.

Siefkes said the board charged the school administrators with developing the specific ideas to implement these goals.

Wearers Know 'How Sweet It Is'

Hickman — James B. Libal's driver education class at Norris High School ran a survey at a recent football game to determine how many drivers were wearing seat belts. The class awarded suckers to the 312 people who were "suckers" not to be buckled up and gave candy bars to the 53 who realize "how sweet it is" to be safe.

Gretna — A group of concerned citizens is making an effort to preserve the old fish hatchery here. Jim Nickerson, Ron Patterson and Francis Carter head a drive to determine possible use for the building, which was constructed in 1914 and has a unique oriental architectural style.

Jonas Family Puzzle Complete

Grand Island — Judi Crosby of Grand Island, Ann Howard of Blair and Donna Brown of Hastings were three of six Jonas children separated by adoption in 1952. After 23 years, the three sisters were finally reunited last weekend. "We were so close but yet so far," Ann said, voicing the feelings for all. Plans are being made for a full reunion on Thanksgiving, to include the other three Jonas children, John of Dallas, Barbara of San Fernando, Calif., and Doris of San Antonio, Tex.

Dam-Canal Project To Begin

Holdrege — The Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District said Tuesday it expects construction to begin later this month on a $6.98 million dam and canal enlargement project here. The district said contracts should be awarded this month and completion is aimed for April of 1978.

Modern Techniques Assure Success When Making Wine at Home

By Holly Spence

From conception to fruition, winemaking is like bringing a child into the world.

"People are used to the idea that it takes nine months to have a baby; now they are going to have to get used to the idea that it takes 10 months to one year to make a good wine," said Barbara McKnight, manager of the Winemaker Shop, 433 So. 13th.

And like prenatal care, winemaking has been modernized.

Modern Help

The home brew expert with crock, fruit and sugar in hand has all sorts of devices to work with nowadays.

"It is hard to not make good wine if you just exercise basic principles," said Barbara, who added there are devices and mixtures to prevent wine turning to vinegar, avoid exploding corks and control the sweetness.

Although there is a financial investment on the "initial outlay" which can vary according to how much money you want to put into it, the equipment is reusable.

She said the first five gallons of wine will cost from $20-30 depending on how much equipment and the type of wine.

"The cost is approximately $1 per fifth for your first batch," she said. "subsequent batches can be made for 40 to 60 cents a fifth using concentrates and as little as 10 cents a fifth using your own fresh fruits."

More Men Make Wine

There is no particular age group that enjoys making wine — "I get them from barefoot knapsacked students to doctors" — but Barbara did admit that more men than women are interested in home winemaking.

"I think that women are getting more interested," she said. "But for men, I think it's the chemistry that's fascinating."

Those who have tried making wines have often been discouraged because they were so sweet, she noted.

"You should always go for a dry wine," she said, adding the sweetness and dryness can be set immediately before bottling by adding sugar or a sugar syrup solution.

Barbara said a stabilizer is needed before the wine is bottled so it will not start fermenting again.

Wine Yeast Used

In addition to the granulated stabilizing controls, modern-day wine making has been improved by the introduction of wine yeast as opposed to baker's yeast which makes wine cloudy and gives it a yeasty taste.

Although many winemakers use fresh fruits during the summers, there is an upsurge in the use of concentrates for those who have a continuing interest in winemaking, she said.

The concentrates also are handy because they involve less preparation time than fresh fruits.

After the wine has been bottled, she said "generally the rule of thumb is to wait six months before drinking any."

Follow the Rules

But local wine hobbist Elroy Frank likes "to let it age a year."

Both Frank and Barbara agree that it's difficult to make bad wine if you follow basic rules.

Frank has "done it for the fun of it" since he received the wine making kit as a gift, and it fits in with his gardening hobby.

He prefers fresh fruits to concentrates and has made cherry, plum, grape and orange wines and champagne. One batch of champagne was the result of a wine concoction which was not stabilized before bottling.

Frank, whose "basement smells like a brewery," considers himself a meticulous winemaker, but not as precise as when he brewed his first batch. He separated the qualities of grapes, took the stems off carefully and washed the fruit. He still likes to take the stems off and wash the grapes, although it is said none of these processes are necessary. Now Frank is into using the grapes a second and third time.

Can Be Frustrating

Winemaking also has been a frustrating learning process. He bottled a batch too quickly and all the corks blew out.

"I accused the kids of emptying them," he laughed. One time he poured down the drain what turned out to be six gallons of creme sherry.

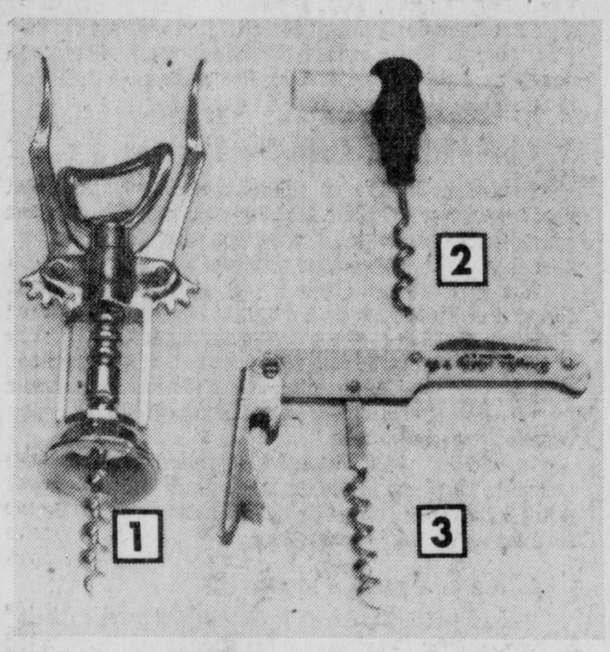

Frank preferred a sweeter wine and did not know it was creme sherry until he received a later Christmas gift that tasted like what he poured down the drain.

Even though his friends are good about saving bottles for him, "I hate to give the wine away because I don't know if it's good."

But most wine makers agree that it's fun to share the wine, whether it is commercial or home brew.

"It's fun when you've done it yourself and get together with friends," commented Barbara.

She said interest in brewing wines at home seems to have increased greatly in the past six or seven years. She also thinks service wives living with their husbands in Europe have brought back the continental custom of drinking wines.

Avoid Mangling Cork, Use Proper Corkscrew

One of the quickest ways to destroy dinner party atmosphere is to use the wrong opener for the wine.

Mangled corks that set floating bits of cork to the wine, the frustration of a cork that has to be shoved into the bottle or a cork that breaks midway in the neck of the bottle — all these situations might be prevented with the right corkscrew.

If you are a super-professional wine lover, you should master the art of using a professional corkscrew (3). It takes a little practice but is easy to slip into your purse or pocket.

The wing-ratchet (1) is recommended as the best corkscrew for home use. They are priced between $1.89 to $2.50 and are easy and slick to use.

Even though this inexpensive corkscrew (2) might look like a money-saver, it's life will be short and using it will cause all sorts of cork-popping frustrations.

I am interested in pursuing a career in farming but land and machinery are expensive. Are there any federal programs or low-cost loans to help me get started?

—Gary Mitchell, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Other than commercial loans, there are three primary sources of credit for the beginning farmer, according to Paul Bachman, vice president of the Federal Land Bank. The land bank, which lends funds of its cooperative members and not government funds, will finance 50% of a real estate purchase at an 8¾% interest rate. The Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) can lend the remaining 50% for the land purchase to qualified borrowers at a 5% interest rate under that agency's Young Farmer program. The FmHA lends federal money. Short-term loans (from a 12-month growing season loan to seven years) on farm machinery are available from the Production Credit Association, also a cooperative lender. The interest rate on these loans fluctuates, but is now 7.95%. All three can be contacted at their Lincoln offices about eligibility requirements.

I've complained twice to the health department about the garbage cans behind Alice's Restaurant on Normal Boulevard. Again this morning the garbage is piled up on the ground and will bring rats into the neighborhood. I didn't get any action from the health department.

—Mr. Clean, Lincoln

There is an empty old house between 328 and 334 on G Street. It's an eyesore for the neighborhood. There are rats in the back yard. We have called the health inspector but can't get anything done. Please help.

—B.P., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dennis Grams, assistant chief of environmental health for the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept., checked out both of these complaints. The problem at Alice's Restaurant, 3822 Normal Blvd., was inadequate storage for solid wastes. Grams said that the restaurant and several nearby businesses had doubled their garbage storage capacity this week and that there should be no further problem there.

The house at 332 G St. has recently been rented to new tenants. Grams said inspectors found some moving and packing materials in the back yard and a pile of dirt and some concrete blocks for the construction of a new porch in the front yard. The new tenants have promised to get garbage containers and dispose of the moving wastes by Thursday. Construction of the new porch, which Grams said had been delayed by problems in getting a building permit, will begin soon. He said the health department periodically will check both locations.

I would like to find out about the lottery tickets in Omaha. Can you buy them here in Lincoln?

—Mrs. Harold Hiatt, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Omaha's Big Green lottery tickets currently are sold only by vendors within the city limits of Omaha. Lottery director Sam Schwartzkopf says no decision will be made on whether the tickets will be sold elsewhere until court cases challenging the lottery's legality are resolved. Tickets cannot be sold through the mail because of federal regulations.

While on vacation in February, I purchased a pair of custom-made mocassins from the Bear Skin Trading Company in Salamanca, N.Y., for $30.98. When I didn't hear from them by April, I wrote to them but received no response. I wrote to them again Aug. 25 but again received no response. I have their receipt for my money.

—G.M. Weinberg, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: A spokesman for the Bear Skin Trading Co. said their records show your order was forwarded to Fred's Leather Shop in Colorado Springs, Colo., where the mocassins were to be manufactured, shortly after you placed your order. The shoes were then to be mailed directly to you within four to six weeks. The New York company promised to send you your money or your mocassins in the next two weeks. ACTION LINE was unsuccessful in its attempt to contact the Colorado Springs firm. If you don't receive your merchandise within the specified time, please contact ACTION LINE again.

4th U.S. Flier, Pilot Has Read Obituary Twice

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Twenty-six pilots who soloed before Dec 17, 1916, were back together for one of the last reunions of Early Birds of Aviation, Inc.

In 1928 there were 568 at the organizational meeting. Ninety-seven survive, with next year's meeting will be their last, they say.

Charles F. Willard, recognized as the fourth American to fly — behind the Wright brothers and Glenn Curtiss — was among them.

"I'm probably the only man who has read his death story twice," the 92-year-old Willard recalled Thursday.

"Once, a crankshaft broke and sliced off the tail of the plane I was flying. I came down headed for a house but ended up in a potato patch. A reporter saw me and phoned in a story I was dead."

On another occasion, he said, a newspaper mistook him for his father who was killed in an aircraft crash.

Art Linkletter Sues Over Sale

DENVER (AP) — Television and radio personality Art Linkletter has filed a damage suit in U.S. District Court claiming 120 dairy cows he leased to a Fort Collins group were sold without his permission.

Linkletter is seeking $72,000 as the sale price of the cattle last November by the Fort Collins Production Credit Association and $960 a month back rent which he alleges he was supposed to have received.

Linkletter is also asking for $50,000 in punitive damages against the firm.

Bodies Recovered

BERCHTESGADEN, West Germany (AP) — Rescue helicopter crews Sunday recovered the bodies of four Austrians whose single-engine private plane hit 8,891-foot Watzmann peak in the Bavarian Alps during dense fog Saturday, West German police reported.

Wine, Cheese Dishes

Now that you're more familiar with the different kinds of wines and cheeses, here are some kitchen-tested recipes using wine, cheese or a combination of the two.

Stuffed Flounder

¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 3-oz. can broiled chopped mushrooms, drained (reserve liquid)
1 7½-oz. can crab meat, drained and cartilage removed ½ cup course saltine cracker crumbs
2 tbsp. snipped parsley
½ tsp. salt
2 lbs. flounder fillets (8)
3 tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
Milk
1/3 cup dry white wine
4 oz. process Swiss cheese, shredded (1 cup)
½ tsp. paprika

In skillet, cook onion in ¼ cup butter till tender, but not brown. Stir drained mushrooms into skillet with flaked crab, cracker crumbs, parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, and dash pepper. Spread mixture over flounder fillets. Roll fillets and place seam side down in 12x7½x2-inch baking dish.

In saucepan, melt 3 tablespoons butter. Blend in flour and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add enough milk to mushroom liquid to make 1½ cups. Add with wine to saucepan. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and bubbles. Pour over fillets.

Bake in hot oven (400°) for 25 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika. Return to oven. Bake 10 minutes longer, or till fish flakes easily with fork. Serves 8.

8-Hour Stew

1 cup cream of mushroom
1 cup tomato bisque
1 cup minestrone
1 cup Burgundy
1 bay leaf
1 package onion soup mix
2 lbs. beef stew meat

Combine the above ingredients. Cook at 250 degrees for eight hours, covered. Serve with noodles.

Swiss Cheese Omelet

3 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 small onion, minced
1 4-oz. can sliced mushrooms, drained
6 eggs
¼ cup Italian dressing
2 tbsp. water
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese

In skillet melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and saute onion and muchrooms until golden. Beat together eggs, Italian dressing, water and Swiss cheese.

Pour egg mixture over onion-mushroom mixture into skillet. It should set at edges at once. Reduce heat slightly. With fork, lift cooked portions at edges so uncooked egg mixture flows underneath. Add remaining butter and rapidly slide pan back and forth over moderate heat until mixture is set, but surface is still moist.

Increase heat to brown bottom quickly. Fold in half and roll out onto heated platter. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Wassail

1 pint cranberry juice cocktail
1 6-oz. frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
2 cups water
1 tbsp. sugar
¼ tsp. allspice
1 bottle dry sauterne or Chablis

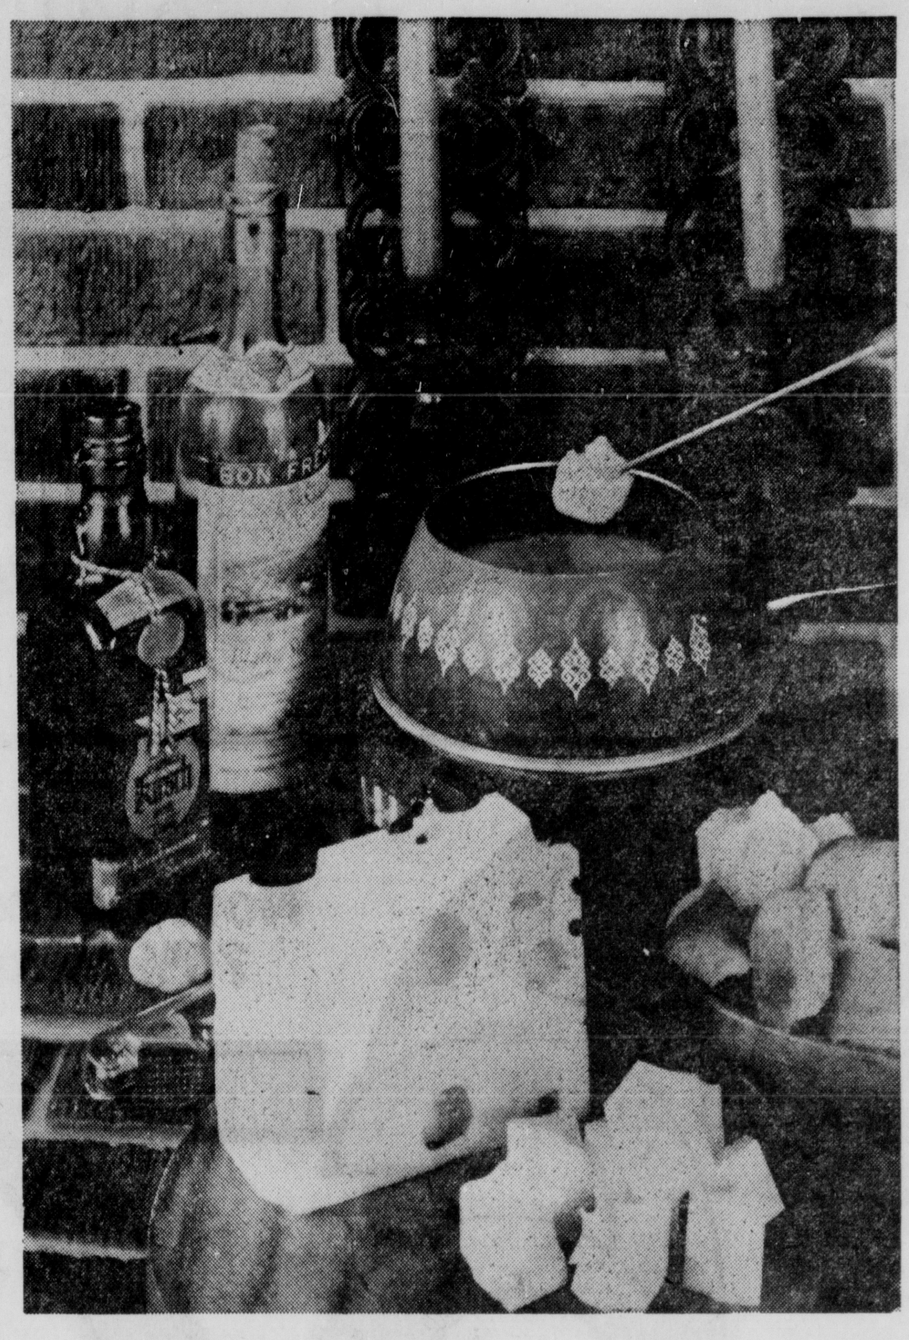

Bring cranberry juice, orange juice, water, sugar, allspice almost to simmering in kettle. Add sauterne and heat through DO NOT BOIL. Pour punch into preheated punch bowl and float thick orange slices studded with whole cloves on top. Can add red food coloring for holiday appearance. Serves 4.

Kiddiwiches

1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup Swiss cheese, finely shredded
1 can (8¼ oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
¼ cup chopped peanuts
12 slices raisin bread
3 tbsp. butter

Combine cream cheese, Swiss cheese, pineapple and nuts. Mix until smooth and of spreading consistency.

Butter raisin bread slices and spread with cheese spread. Cut in quarters. Yield: 6 sandwiches.

Swiss, Cheddar-Blue Fondue

True Swiss Fondue

Clove of garlic
2 cups dry white wine
3 tablespoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons Kirschwasser (cherry brandy)
4 cups (1 lb.) shredded aged Swiss cheese
Nutmeg, white pepper or paprik
Loaf French or Italian bread, cut in chunks with crust on each

Rub a heavy saucepan with garlic. Heat wine in pan, uncovered. In separate dish, dissolve cornstarch in Kirschwasser; set aside.

When foamy bubbles cover surface of heated wine, add cheese gradually, stirring constantly. Heat slowly not allowing fondue to boil. Cook and stir just until you feel a slight resistance to the spoon, then add Kirschwasser-cornstarch mixture. Stir until fondue thickens. Add seasonings to taste.

Transfer to 2-quart fondue pot; serve immediately with bread and fondue forks.

Chocolate Cheese Fondue

¼ cup sweet butter (unsiated)
2 tbsp. cocoa
½ cup sifted powdered sugar
1/3 cup shredded process American cheese
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. vanilla
½ tsp. peppermint extract
¼ tsp. almond extract
½ cup milk, as needed
1 tbsp. brandy
Fondue pot or chafing dish

In a saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Gradually add cocoa and sugar, blending thoroughly to make a smooth sauce. Add cheese, blending well.

Stir in remaining ingredients, gradually adding milk to obtain desired consistency. Add brandy; do not stir. Ignite immediately.

Serve over ice cream or use as a dip with orange segments, miniature marshmallows, strawberries, angel food cake squares, etc. Yield: 4 servings.

Cheddar-Blue Fondue

1 can (10 ½ oz.) condensed tomato soup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3 cups (¾ lb.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
½ cup (2 oz.) crumbled Blue cheese
2 tablespoons dry sherry
French bread or hard rolls, torn in bite-size pieces, each with crust

In heavy saucepan or fondue pot, heat soup and Worcestershire sauce. Stir in cheese, a little at a time, until they begin to melt. Add wine; stirring until cheese is fully melted and wine is blended into mixture. Serve over low heat with bread chunks or hard rolls. Yield: 1¼ cups.

Price Should Be Factor

When Buying Wine, Get What You Like

By C. David Kotok

The one cardinal rule for purchasing wines is to buy what one likes.

The rule is not an excuse for buying and sticking with one brand or even one type of wine. Instead, it is the means of appreciating an adventure with one's tastebuds.

The friend who turns up his nose at any hard drink except scotch on the rocks probably started out with sloe gin after high school football games.

Began With Rose'

In the same way, the acquaintance who meticulously selects and tastes the deep red wine for a dinner out, undoubtedly began with pop wine or a cheap rose'.

The problem for most aspiring wine drinkers is getting past those first seemingly delicious sweet or semi-sweet wines.

Price is and should be a factor. The palate accustomed to $1.89 wine is probably unprepared for the treats of the high priced American varietal or reknown imported wines. High price usually is based on the subtle characteristics of the wine and it takes some training to appreciate those traits.

Buyer Beware

The occasional wine buyer should be dubious of the merchant who immediately suggests a $5 plus bottle to accompany a roast.

The ideal conversation between a merchant and customer concerning a wine to accompany that roast might go like this:

Merchant: What have you had?

Customer: We like rose' and lambrusco. We really have not enjoyed that dry stuff.

Merchant: Do you know if your company drinks a lot of wine.

Customer: I don't think so. Probably about like us.

Merchant: I think you would enjoy an American Gamay or Gamay Beaujolais, or, perhaps, if you want to spend a little more, a French Beaujolais. Since I presume you usually like your wines, cold, I would suggest you put it in the refrigerator about 30 minutes before you plan to eat and open it at least 10 minutes before you serve it.

Puritans might object to chilling a bottle of red wine. But the idea is to allow the customer to enjoy what he or she is drinking. While reds should be served at room temperature for full flavor, the lesser reds lose little by the slight cooling, especially if it then becomes more in line with the customer's drinking habits.

Ask Questions

Wine merchants, friends and a growing list of books and articles should help those serious about enjoying wines. To learn, one must ask questions.

Tell the wine merchant what you plan to serve the wine with, what you have tasted and liked in the past and listen to what he or she tells you about storing, chilling and serving the bottle you both agree on.

The merchant can, and unfortunately, too often does, go for the quick kill and move the customer up to an expensive wine for that special dinner party.

This is self-defeating for the merchant and the customer. The customer will not return until another special party instead of returning often to purchase wines that will affordably go with the family meal.

Taste Matures

Experimenting slowly, a wine drinker's taste matures to the point that the higher priced French, German, Italian and American wines are really worth the difference.

A few words on jug wines. The United States produces the best everyday drinking wines in the world. For the price, jug wines are excellent and last nearly as long as milk.

Jug wines are good to keep on hand to serve at most occasions and are especially excellent for cooking.

People Educated About Wine

Sellers and wine consumers agree that Lincoln lacks restaurants which take the selling of wine seriously, with one exception.

"In Lincoln, one has to develop a taste (for wine) on his own except maybe for the University Club," said Tavlin.

Local advertising-public relations man Bart Lewis, a student of wine study for 10 years, said restaurants make bad decision on wine lists and waiters and waitresses have little or no knowledge when questioned by the diner about wine.

Haddal a Connoisseur

The exception to the rule — the University Club — is managed by Steve Haddal, himself a wine connoisseur, who has traveled the world selecting and studying wines.

"Our wine sales have more than tripled in three years," said Haddal. "It is almost equal in dollar volume to our liquor sales."

While people are generally far better educated about wine, Haddal has seen a tremendous interest in the wine classes he offers at the club and will begin a course on wine in January at the request of the Home Economics Department at the University of Nebraska.

All agreed that as people continue to taste wines, their tastes lean toward the dryer (as opposed to the sweeter) wines and consumers are spending more money experimenting with new wines.

'Tremendous Awareness'

Stoehr thinks that people in the United States "are really going after quality (wines), especially in the last few years."

Haddal added that wine tasting parties as entertainment plus an interest in new and different foods has "made a tremendous awareness" of wine. He said 70% of the meals served at the University Club are accompanied by wine.

"You rarely see a table at night with no wine," he said. "And wine is popular in lieu of a luncheon cocktail."

Haddal said more wine can be consumed with fewer effects than hard liquor and "the social aspect is more enjoyed."

He said older people are still more inclined toward cocktails and less expensive wines.

Clerks Answer Cheese Queries

"as expensive as you want to go," she said.

Leon's usually arranges its trays with smoked Wisconsin Cheddar, domestic Swiss and Danish Grand Toast.

Cheese trays are popular items at both stores during the fall football season. They also are popular at parties and lately at wedding receptions.

Helpful Deli Dollies

Just as Mrs. Birt began to talk about Leon's 50 varieties of cheese, a shopper leaned on the glass of the delicatessen counter.

"I want to buy some cheese, but I never can remember the name. It starts with an h," the shopper said.

"Havardi," Mrs. Birt and Viola Ritchey, another clerk, answered in unison.

"No," the shopper replied. "I think it's like a county in New York."

Then the clerks, nicknamed deli dollies, knew exactly what the shopper needed. Herkimer cheese, named after Herkimer County, New York.

Mrs. Birt says that scene across the delicatessen counter is typical. Clerks don't mind, however; they've gotten accustomed to questions and usually have answers.

No Beer Kaese For Her

Mrs. Ritchey says she has tasted every cheese in the deli. That is, except for Beer Kaese, a cheese with both a strong flavor and strong odor. "They say it tastes as bad as it smells," Mrs. Ritchey said laughing.

One customer at Leon's says her husband leaves the kitchen when she takes the Beer Kaese out of the refrigerator. A male shopper at Barberio's, on the other hand, says the only time he buys the strong cheese is when his wife is out of town.

For a wine tasting party, Leon's clerks recommend serving Golden Rich or Port du Salut. Such cheeses, they say, take away the wine taste.

Barberio's, meanwhile, suggests serving a mild cheese, like Danish Gradost, Baby Swiss, Monterey Jack or Muenster, with white wines. A robust red wine, however, takes a sharp Cheddar, Gouda, Edam or Tilset.

Cheeses For Fondue

For fondue, Leon's suggests Swiss Greyere, a hard cheese. For just plain fun, Leon's clerks suggest string cheese, a block of mozzarella that pulls apart in strings. And there's Curd cheese, small chunks for snacking.

Other specialities include a Cheddar cheese and port wine spread, as well as a cream cheese and lox spread.

At Barberio's, they talk about Canadian Black Diamond Cheddar that has been aged for five years. The longer Cheddar is aged, the sharper its tastes and the lower its fat content, Mrs. Mathison said.

For sandwiches, Mrs. Mathison suggests Provolone, sliced very thin, or Wisconsin Swiss, goes well with ham.

An Occasional Surprise

Her husband, however, still likes good old processed American cheese in his sandwiches. She says he is "hard headed" and not persuaded easily. But she occasionally slips something different in his sandwiches.

"A lot of people don't know what they're missing," Mrs. Mathison says.

Shoppers can find out what they may be missing at Barberio's, Leon's, the University dairy store or countless other groceries in town that sell processed and natural cheeses. Hinky Dinky at Gateway says it offers between 35 and 40 varieties at its deli. Look around.

Lots of Cheese—800 Named Varieties

By Jana Miller

Nancy Mathison has trouble with her husband, Wayne. He's a plain, dependable Velveeta fan. She's the manager of Barberio Cheese House, a cheese connoisseur's delight that features more than 250 imported and domestic varieties.

By the way, Barberio's doesn't sell Velveeta.

T.A. Evans, food science professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, says processed cheese, like Velveeta, is "by far the biggest seller" around.

800 Cheese Varieties

In all, Evans says there are 800 named varieties of cheese.

"They sell more processed cheese than any other," Evans said. "To the majority of people, cheese is just a food. Connoisseurs are in the minority."

Processed cheese, a pasturized blend of natural cheese, is considered convenient and dependable, Evans says. It is creamier and less flavorful than natural cheese, he adds. Processed cheese melts quickly, doesn't mold and is used in sandwiches, casseroles and salads.

On the other hand, Evans says different batches of a natural cheese, such as Cheddar, can vary greatly depending on the quality of milk used and the skill and care of the cheese maker.

University Cheese Operation

"Making cheese is more than a cookbook operation," he says.

Evans supervises the NU Food Science and Technology Dept.'s dairy store on East Campus. The store sells about 30,000 pounds of cheese a year. Most of that cheese is bundled in gift boxes and sent across the country in November and December.

"That isn't much," Evans said, noting that some of the more than one dozen cheese plants in Nebraska produce that much cheese in two or three days. Nebraska ranks 10th in the nation in the production of cheese, he said.

Cheese available at the University's dairy store is made in a food pilot plant in connection with teaching and research programs.

Evans knows the students could sell more cheese, but he won't even guess at how much more

Cheeses In Stock

On hand in a cold storage room adjacent to the tiny dairy store are about 19,000 pounds of Edam, Swiss, Husker, Colby, New York Cheddar and Cheddar cheeses, all made by University students. The Cheddar comes mild or sharp, smoke or garlic flavored, plain or filled with caraway seeds.

Blue, a semi-soft cheese with distinctive blue-green veins, also is available at the dairy store. The sharp and tangy cheese is made in Fairbault, Minn.

A dessert without cheese is like a beautiful woman with only one eye.

A meal without wine is like a day without sunshine.

Anthelme Brillat-Savarin,
1755-1826
From "Physiologie du Gout"

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mathison at Barberio's, a national chain store headquartered in Minneapolis, says Cheddar and Colby are the biggest sellers at the Gateway store. Both are made in the United States.

In all, she said, Barberio's features more than 250 varieties of cheese, ranging from $2 a pound for a processed cheese to $5.25 a pound for Roquefort, imported from France.

Half of Stock Imported

Mrs. Mathison says about half the cheeses available at Barberio's are imported. They come from almost every country in the world, she says. Domestic cheeses usually come from Wisconsin, Minnesota or Illinois.

Domestic and imported cheeses compete for the buyer's attention, Mrs. Mathison said, noting that almost every cheese made in another country has been duplicated in the United States.

"You can't beat Gouda made in Holland," she said, explaining it is creamier and more mellow than Gouda made in the United States. And, she says, there's nothing like the Camembert or Brie made in France.

"But domestic Cheddar is far better than what you can import," she said. The imported is dry and crumbly. Another good domestic cheese, she said, is called farmer cheese or Bond Ost in Swedish.

Camembert, Brie for Dessert

Camembert and Brie are ripened cheeses with soft edible crusts of powdery mold, Mrs Mathison explained They are considered dessert cheeses to be served with wine after a roast, or after the salad, or as a dessert with wine and fruit.

Mrs. Mathison said cheese is best when served at room temperature. Usually, she said, it takes 40 minutes to an hour to warm one pound of cheese to such a temperature

Some cheeses, particularly mild ones, go best with unsalted crackers, she said. "You need something to accent or complement the taste of cheese," she added "If you eat Brie with salty crackers, you ruin the taste."

In addition, Mrs Mathison suggested that wooden toothpicks be placed beside the serving dish, rather than inserted in the cheese cubes "Cheese will pick up a woody flavor from the toothpicks," she explained

Cheese Trays Prepared

Both Barberio's and Leon's Food Mart will prepare cheese trays for customers Barberio's will prepare trays to serve from four persons on up, usually the cost runs about 50¢ a person

"We're noted for our cheese trays," Iona Birt, a clerk at Leon's delicatessen said Leon's cheese trays range from $10 to

Consumer Taste Buds Swing Toward Wines

By Holly Spence

Wine — a new trend? More like an old friend.

As Mitch Tavlin of Mitch Tavlin Liquors said, "The grape has followed man throughout all of civilization."

Among the many references to wine in the Bible is a near-medicinal verse from Timothy: "Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake."

Camaraderie of Wine

And Homer's "Odyssey" touts the camaraderie produced by the fermented grape when he writes "And wine can of their wits the wise beguile, make the sage frolic and the serious smile."

The famed French chemist Louis Pasteur in his explanation that wine is a purer substance than water stated: "Wine is the most healthful and most hygienic of beverages."

But few testimonials are needed nowadays because the wine trend is flourishing. And the consumer seems to be in a better position than the vintner. Publications on wine will tell you that both in this country and in Europe, the market is awash with far more wine than can be consumed.

Too Many Vineyards

The shortages of the late 1960s and early 1970s are clearly over. The United States is suffering from an overexpansion of vineyards and Europe is harvesting bumper crops.

Although there has been a great increase in the consumption of wine throughout the country in the past few years, Dick Stoehr of the N Street Drive-In, sees the impact of wine just hitting the Midwest.

Sellers and consumers of wine agree that people are much more knowledgeable about wine. Interest in wine has become a hobby for some. Others have substituted wine for cocktails. And yet others look at it as part of a meal, a food.

Tavlin said a good combination of wine and food is "a perfect marriage."

Consumption Doubled

He pointed out that the per capita consumption of wine has doubled in the last six to seven years, although Americans are far from the greatest drinkers of wine. He describes American consumption of wine as "insignificant" in the world market.

Stoehr credits "people changing their taste buds" as one of the reasons wine interest has increased. Although he has done some study because 70% of his store volume is in wines, Stoehr feels that people are taking to wine because they want a less harsh bite in their drinks. He also singled out the increase in sales of smoother whisky with less alcohol content.

Although many Lincoln liquor stores of varying sizes stock domestic and imported wines, Stoehr and Tavlin are two of the largest in the city and attempt to specialize in many varieties of wine.

Collegians Interested

"There is a genuine interest in wine at the college level," said Tavlin, with Stoehr agreeing that the sales of sweet pop wines is not what it used to be.

"Younger people — between 19 and 23 — seem to be drinking more expensive wines," added Stoehr. "Twenty years ago I did not even drink wine."

Stoehr said 70% of his wine sales are bottles priced between $2.99 and $3.99. Tavlin, who noted that the study of wine has become "my therapy," said his most popular wines are priced between $4 and $8.

Stoehr said the French wine market "is really coming on strong again" since the prices of imported wines has gone down.

Imported Wine Sales

Although Tavlin has "an affinity for German wines" and feels the French wines have been "over-glamorized." He said he is selling more imported wines because you "can get them for less than similarly described California wines."

His store deals more in direct imports — "we are importers" — but Tavlin does carry a "full line of California wines."

Stoehr believes there are good inexpensive wines and pointed out the new Gallo varietal line that is heavily advertised.

Tavlin considers the Gallo line "transitional," a wine for the beginner, one that he wouldn't want to drink every day.

California Sells Best

The California wines far outsell other domestic wines (usually from New York and Ohio). Although the bottling standards for wine producers are not federally controlled and as stringent as in Europe, the labeling laws and bottling requirements are not as lax in California as other states, Stoehr and Tavlin said.

Special Soup For Children

Cut little cubes of Cheddar cheese. Wrap cubes with dough made from instant biscuit mix, using only enough dough to cover cheese.

Roll into little dumplings and drop into bubbly tomato soup. Cook for 10 to 15 minutes, until dumplings expand and rise to surface.

With every spoonful of soup you will get a little dumpling with a melted cheese surprise inside. Children love to help make the "bags of gold" too.

Take advantage of promotional efforts currently underway to better acquaint you with them Look for special displays! Try an old favorite and discover a new one at the food store where you shop

COLBY AND MONTEREY JACK

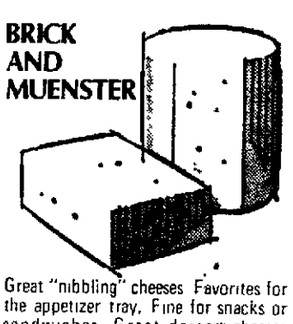

If a mild flavor is desired, either will prove an excellent choice Children love them! Try both for an appetizer or snack, in a sandwich.

EDAM AND GOUDA

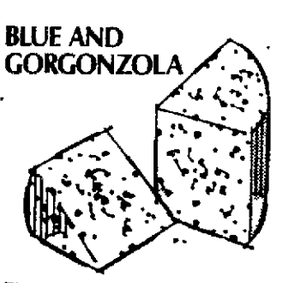

Mellow and colorful additions to any cheese tray Perfect in salads, with crisp vegetables as an appetizer, with oranges and apples for dessert

BRICK AND MUENSTER

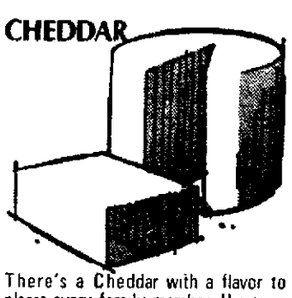

Great "nibbling" cheeses Favorites for the appetizer tray. Fine for snacks or sandwiches Great dessert cheeses especially with melon or Tokay grapes.

BLUE AND GORGONZOLA

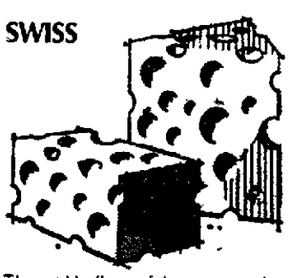

These cheeses with their tangy salty flavors add a gourmet touch to salads Try on hamburger or steak serve with Bosc or Anjou pears for a light dessert

CHEDDAR

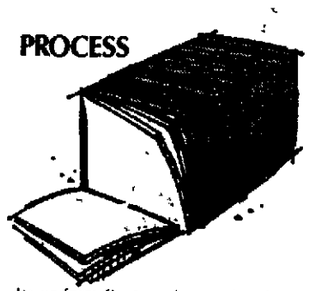

There's a Cheddar with a flavor to please every family member. Use as an appetizer, in salads and sandwiches, in cooked foods and sauces.

SWISS

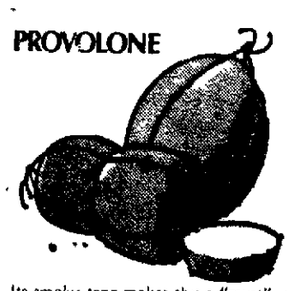

The nut-like flavor of this variety makes it familiar on cheese trays, as a sandwich, in fondues Try as a dessert with green grapes, melons, oranges.

PROCESS

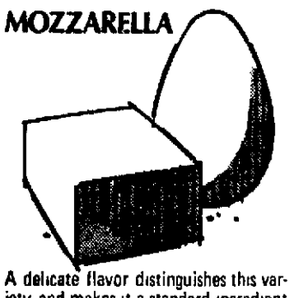

Its uniform flavor and ease of melting result from blending and heating during processing. Perfect for cooked dishes and sauces.

PROVOLONE

Its smoky tang makes this a "must" in foods such as lasagna and ravioli. Wonderful, too, as an appetizer, snack, or dessert with fruit.

MOZZARELLA

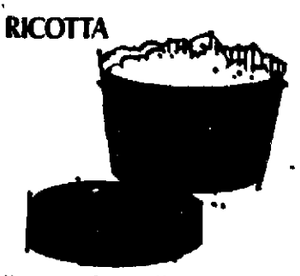

A delicate flavor distinguishes this variety and makes it a standard ingredient in pizza and lasagna. A favorite, too, as a protein rich snack for children.

COLD PACK

Ease of spreading makes this a must for the appetizer tray. A fine compliment to fruits and vegetables. Available with many added flavorings

RICOTTA

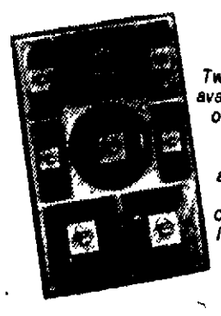

Unique, semi-sweet. Use in salads, dips and cooked dishes. Famous as a preferred ingredient in Italian-style dishes; in desserts such as cheese cake.

PARMESAN AND ROMANO

Known for the zesty flavor they add to other foods. Generally used in grated form. Try on hot vegetables, casseroles, hot breads, soups, salads.

Canned Food = Convenience . . .

Canned food is one of the very first of the convenience foods we all take for granted. Thanks to modern canning techniques we can enjoy a variety of foods all year 'round in safety.

Each of us buy and use about 500 cans and jars of food each year. Doesn't it make good dollar-sense to choose carefully? For economy, select a brand you know represents quality, such as First Pick, Good Value and Rainbow. They can save you money. Read the labels for nutritional information and use instructions. Buy for the intended use and select a size that fits your family's needs. Use the following chart as a guide in choosing the right size.

Modern Techniques Assure Success When Making Wine at Home

By Holly Spence

From conception to fruition, winemaking is like bringing a child into the world.

"People are used to the idea that it takes nine months to have a baby; now they are going to have to get used to the idea that it takes 10 months to one year to make a good wine," said Barbara McKnight, manager of the Winemaker Shop, 433 So. 13th.

And like prenatal care, winemaking has been modernized.

Modern Help

The home brew expert with crock, fruit and sugar in hand has all sorts of devices to work with nowadays.

"It is hard to not make good wine if you just exercise basic principles," said Barbara, who added there are devices and mixtures to prevent wine turning to vinegar, avoid exploding corks and control the sweetness.

Although there is a financial investment on the "initial outlay" which can vary according to how much money you want to put into it, the equipment is reusable.

She said the first five gallons of wine will cost from $20-30 depending on how much equipment and the type of wine.

"The cost is approximately $1 per fifth for your first batch," she said. "subsequent batches can be made for 40 to 60 cents a fifth using concentrates and as little as 10 cents a fifth using your own fresh fruits."

More Men Make Wine

There is no particular age group that enjoys making wine — "I get them from barefoot knapsacked students to doctors" — but Barbara did admit that more men than women are interested in home winemaking.

"I think that women are getting more interested," she said. "But for men, I think it's the chemistry that's fascinating."

Those who have tried making wines have often been discouraged because they were so sweet, she noted.

"You should always go for a dry wine," she said, adding the sweetness and dryness can be set immediately before bottling by adding sugar or a sugar syrup solution.

Barbara said a stabilizer is needed before the wine is bottled so it will not start fermenting again.

Wine Yeast Used

In addition to the granulated stabilizing controls, modern-day wine making has been improved by the introduction of wine yeast as opposed to baker's yeast which makes wine cloudy and gives it a yeasty taste.

Although many winemakers use fresh fruits during the summers, there is an upsurge in the use of concentrates for those who have a continuing interest in winemaking, she said.

The concentrates also are handy because they involve less preparation time than fresh fruits.

After the wine has been bottled, she said "generally the rule of thumb is to wait six months before drinking any."

Follow the Rules

But local wine hobbist Elroy Frank likes "to let it age a year."

Both Frank and Barbara agree that it's difficult to make bad wine if you follow basic rules.

Frank has "done it for the fun of it" since he received the wine making kit as a gift, and it fits in with his gardening hobby.

He prefers fresh fruits to concentrates and has made cherry, plum, grape and orange wines and champagne. One batch of champagne was the result of a wine concoction which was not stabilized before bottling.

Frank, whose "basement smells like a brewery," considers himself a meticulous winemaker, but not as precise as when he brewed his first batch. He separated the qualities of grapes, took the stems off carefully and washed the fruit. He still likes to take the stems off and wash the grapes, although it is said none of these processes are necessary. Now Frank is into using the grapes a second and third time.

Can Be Frustrating

Winemaking also has been a frustrating learning process. He bottled a batch too quickly and all the corks blew out.

"I accused the kids of emptying them," he laughed. One time he poured down the drain what turned out to be six gallons of creme sherry.

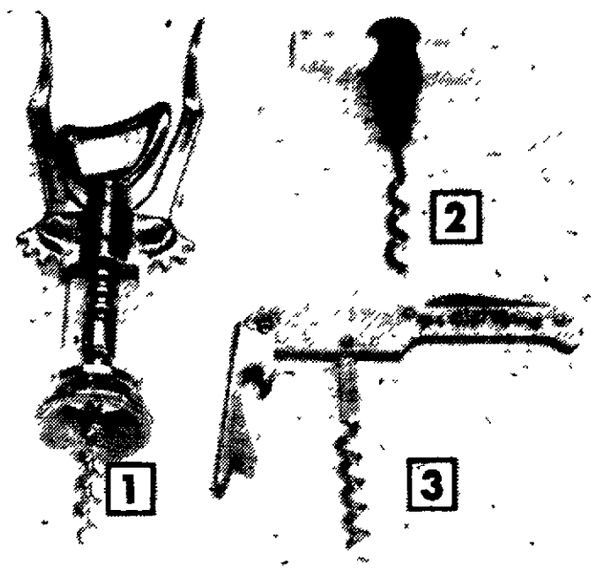

Frank preferred a sweeter wine and did not know it was creme sherry until he received a later Christmas gift that tasted like what he poured down the drain.

Even though his friends are good about saving bottles for him, "I hate to give the wine away because I don't know if it's good."

But most wine makers agree that it's fun to share the wine, whether it is commercial or home brew.

"It's fun when you've done it yourself and get together with friends," commented Barbara.

She said interest in brewing wines at home seems to have increased greatly in the past six or seven years. She also thinks service wives living with their husbands in Europe have brought back the continental custom of drinking wines.

Avoid Mangling Cork, Use Proper Corkscrew

One of the quickest ways to destroy dinner party atmosphere is to use the wrong opener for the wine.

Mangled corks that set floating bits of cork to the wine, the frustration of a cork that has to be shoved into the bottle or a cork that breaks midway in the neck of the bottle — all these situations might be prevented with the right corkscrew.

If you are a super-professional wine lover, you should master the art of using a professional corkscrew (3). It takes a little practice but is easy to slip into your purse or pocket.

The wing-ratchet (1) is recommended as the best corkscrew for home use. They are priced between $1.89 to $2.50 and are easy and slick to use.

Even though this inexpensive corkscrew (2) might look like a money-saver, it's life will be short and using it will cause all sorts of cork-popping frustrations.

Stocks Decline In Light Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Another hitch in plans to prevent New York City's default sent stock prices into their first decline in four sessions Tuesday. Trading was light.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about eight points from Monday's close during most of the session, recovered a bit in the waning moments to finish at 816.51, off 3.15 on the day. The blue-chip index had gained 35.50 in the three previous sessions.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange fell to 13.53 million shares, as against 15.47 million Monday. Losers led gainers 776 to 555 among the 1,789 Big Board issues traded.

"After moving sideways for about four hours, the market began a recovery about as half-hearted as the decline," said Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co.

Zinder and other Wall Street analysts said the primary cause of the market's decline was a court ruling which some said could provoke a severe cash flow crisis—or default—for New York City almost immediately.

A New York court temporarily restrained the state comptroller from buying state notes with pension funds he controls. The purchase had been a part of the state plan to avert a city default.

Other factors in the stock market were profit taking following recent gains and indications that the Federal Reserve may not have eased off on credit as much as had been believed last Friday.

Analysts downplayed President Ford's call Monday night for $28 billion in tax cuts next year, coupled with spending limits. They gave the plan little chance of getting through a Congress concerned about the November 1976 elections.

Middle South Utilities, the Big Board volume leader, closed up ⅛ to 13½ after a 200,000-share block moved at 13¼.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .11 to 86.77.

Steel, paper, chemical, coal, and oil service stocks generally declined, while gold stocks, buoyed up by higher bullion prices, moved up.

Hog Prices Hit Another Record Top

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hog prices, bolstered by another small-side run, hit another record top on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday.

The porker run was estimated at about 3,500 head, with barrows and gilts seeing fairly active trade. The butcher trend was 25-to-75 cents higher, with a lot of sales noted on a 50-cents higher basis.

Forty-nine head of top-graders hitting the scales from 224-to-237-pounds put themselves in the record books when they cleared at $64.75, breaking the old mark of $64.25 set a week ago Monday.

Slightly less desirable handyweights also broke the old mark, bulking from $64.25-$64.50.

Sows weighing in from 300-to-450-pounds turned unevenly steady to as much as $2.00 lower, while weights over 450-pounds earned a steady call. Sow tickets showed markings ranging mainly from $56.00-$59.00.

The cattle run was estimated at about 4,000 head, with steers and heifers seeing moderately active trade. Steers traded on a firm tone, while heifers turned 25-to-50 cents higher, and cows were mostly $1.00 lower.

There were only about 200 sheep on offer, and the trend on the small supply of slaughter lambs was called steady to 25-cents higher, with the advance on wooled offerings. Ewes were rather scarce.

Good, Mixed Support Lifts Farm Futures

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures gained from 1 to 6 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday under good, mixed support.

The demand was associated largely with reports that farmers are not ridding themselves of their newly harvested grain, preferring to hold the commodity on the farm in hopes of higher prices. Some trade letters noted that farm offerings had slowed down the last 2 to 3 days.

Prices were firm to strong on the opening and improved almost steadily through midsession when some mild profit-taking set in. Before the final bell there was another profit-taking move and gains were trimmed by one-third.

Trade was mixed in the major pits and the pace fairly active. There was, however, a slowdown after midsession.

Iced broilers closed steady to about one-third cent a pound higher after a late flurry of profit-taking. Gold futures closed with a gain of about $2 an ounce after a very light traded session.

Wine, Cheese Dishes

Now that you're more familiar with the different kinds of wines and cheeses, here are some kitchen-tested recipes using wine, cheese or a combination of the two.

Stuffed Flounder

¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 3-oz. can broiled chopped mushrooms, drained (reserve liquid)
1 7½-oz. can crab meat, drained and cartilage removed ½ cup coarse saltine cracker crumbs
2 tbsp. snipped parsley
½ tsp. salt
2 lbs. flounder fillets (8)
3 tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
Milk
1/3 cup dry white wine
4 oz. process Swiss cheese, shredded (1 cup)
½ tsp. paprika

In skillet, cook onion in ¼ cup butter till tender, but not brown. Stir drained mushrooms into skillet with flaked crab, cracker crumbs, parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, and dash pepper. Spread mixture over flounder fillets. Roll fillets and place seam side down in 12x7½x2-inch baking dish.

In saucepan, melt 3 tablespoons butter. Blend in flour and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add enough milk to mushroom liquid to make 1½ cups. Add with wine to saucepan. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and bubbles. Pour over fillets.

Bake in hot oven (400°) for 25 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika. Return to oven. Bake 10 minutes longer, or till fish flakes easily with fork. Serves 8.

8-Hour Stew

1 cup cream of mushroom
1 cup tomato bisque
1 cup minestrone
1 cup Burgundy
1 bay leaf
1 package onion soup mix
2 lbs. beef stew meat

Combine the above ingredients. Cook at 200 degrees for eight hours, covered. Serve with noodles.

Swiss Cheese Omelet

3 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 small onion, minced
1 4-oz. can sliced mushrooms, drained
6 eggs
¼ cup Italian dressing
2 tbsp. water
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese

In skillet melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and saute onion and muchrooms until golden. Beat together eggs, Italian dressing, water and Swiss cheese.

Pour egg mixture over onion-mushroom mixture into skillet. It should set at edges at once. Reduce heat slightly. With fork, lift cooked portions at edges so uncooked egg mixture flows underneath. Add remaining butter and rapidly slide pan back and forth over moderate heat until mixture is set, but surface is still moist.

Increase heat to brown bottom quickly. Fold in half and roll out onto heated platter. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Wassail

1 pint cranberry juice cocktail
1 6-oz. frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
2 cups water
1 tbsp. sugar
¼ tsp. allspice
1 bottle dry sauterne or Chablis

Bring cranberry juice, orange juice, water, sugar, allspice almost to simmering in kettle. Add sauterne and heat through DO NOT BOIL. Pour punch into preheated punch bowl and float thick orange slices studded with whole cloves on top. Can add red food coloring for holiday appearance. Serves 4.

Kiddiwiches

1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup Swiss cheese, finely shredded
1 can (8¼ oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
¼ cup chopped peanuts
12 slices raisin bread
3 tbsp. butter

Combine cream cheese, Swiss cheese, pineapple and nuts. Mix until smooth and of spreading consistency.

Butter raisin bread slices and spread with cheese spread. Cut in quarters. Yield: 6 sandwiches.

People Educated About Wine

Sellers and wine consumers agree that Lincoln lacks restaurants which take the selling of wine seriously, with one exception.

"In Lincoln, one has to develop a taste (for wine) on his own except maybe for the University Club," said Tavlin.

Local advertising-public relations man Bart Lewis, a student of wine study for 10 years, said restaurants make bad decision on wine lists and waiters and waitresses have little or no knowledge when questioned by the diner about wine.

Haddal a Connoisseur

The exception to the rule — the University Club — is managed by Steve Haddal, himself a wine connoisseur, who has traveled the world selecting and studying wines.

"Our wine sales have more than tripled in three years," said Haddal. "It is almost equal in dollar volume to our liquor sales."

While people are generally far better educated about wine, Haddal has seen a tremendous interest in the wine classes he offers at the club and will begin a course on wine in January at the request of the Home Economics Department at the University of Nebraska.

All agreed that as people continue to taste wines, their tastes lean toward the dryer (as opposed to the sweeter) wines and consumers are spending more money experimenting with new wines.

'Tremendous Awareness'

Stoehr thinks that people in the United States "are really going after quality (wines), especially in the last few years."

Haddal added that wine tasting parties as entertainment plus an interest in new and different foods has "made a tremendous awareness" of wine. He said 70% of the meals served at the University Club are accompanied by wine.

"You rarely see a table at night with no wine," he said. "And wine is popular in lieu of a luncheon cocktail."

Haddal said more wine can be consumed with fewer effects than hard liquor and "the social aspect is more enjoyed."

He said older people are still more inclined toward cocktails and less expensive wines.

Swiss, Cheddar-Blue Fondue

True Swiss Fondue

Clove of garlic
2 cups dry white wine
3 tablespoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons Kirschwasser (cherry brandy)
4 cups (1 lb.) shredded aged Swiss cheese
Nutmeg, white pepper or paprika
Loaf French or Italian bread, cut in chunks with crust on each

Rub a heavy saucepan with garlic. Heat wine in pan, uncovered. In separate dish, dissolve cornstarch in Kirschwasser; set aside.

When foamy bubbles cover surface of heated wine, add cheese gradually, stirring constantly. Heat slowly not allowing fondue to boil. Cook and stir just until you feel a slight resistance to the spoon, then add Kirschwasser-cornstarch mixture. Stir until fondue thickens. Add seasonings to taste.

Transfer to 2-quart fondue pot; serve immediately with bread and fondue forks.

Chocolate Cheese Fondue

¼ cup sweet butter (unsalted)
2 tbsp. cocoa
½ cup sifted powdered sugar
1/3 cup shredded process American cheese
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. vanilla
½ tsp. peppermint extract
¼ tsp. almond extract
½ cup milk, as needed
1 tbsp. brandy
Fondue pot or chafing dish

In a saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Gradually add cocoa and sugar, blending thoroughly to make a smooth sauce. Add cheese, blending well.

Stir in remaining ingredients, gradually adding milk to obtain desired consistency. Add brandy; do not stir. Ignite immediately.

Serve over ice cream or use as a dip with orange segments, miniature marshmallows, strawberries, angel food cake squares, etc. Yield: 4 servings.

Cheddar-Blue Fondue

1 can (10 ½ oz.) condensed tomato soup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3 cups (¾ lb.) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
½ cup (2 oz.) crumbled Blue cheese
2 tablespoons dry sherry
French bread or hard rolls, torn in bite-size pieces, each with crust

In heavy saucepan or fondue pot, heat soup and Worcestershire sauce. Stir in cheese, a little at a time, until they begin to melt. Add wine; stirring until cheese is fully melted and wine is blended into mixture. Serve over low heat with bread chunks or hard rolls. Yield: 1¼ cups.

Price Should Be Factor

When Buying Wine, Get What You Like

By C. David Kotok

The one cardinal rule for purchasing wines is to buy what one likes.

The rule is not an excuse for buying and sticking with one brand or even one type of wine. Instead, it is the means of appreciating an adventure with one's tastebuds.

The friend who turns up his nose at any hard drink except scotch on the rocks probably started out with sloe gin after high school football games.

Began With Rose'

In the same way, the acquaintance who meticulously selects and tastes the deep red wine for a dinner out, undoubtedly began with pop wine or a cheap rose'.

The problem for most aspiring wine drinkers is getting past those first seemingly delicious sweet or semi-sweet wines.

Price is and should be a factor. The palate accustomed to $1.89 wine is probably unprepared for the treats of the high priced American varietal or reknown imported wines. High price usually is based on the subtle characteristics of the wine and it takes some training to appreciate those traits.

Buyer Beware

The occasional wine buyer should be dubious of the merchant who immediately suggests a $5 plus bottle to accompany a roast.

The ideal conversation between a merchant and customer concerning a wine to accompany that roast might go like this:

Merchant: What have you had?

Customer: We like rose' and lambrusco. We really have not enjoyed that dry stuff.

Merchant: Do you know if your company drinks a lot of wine.

Customer: I don't think so. Probably about like us.

Merchant: I think you would enjoy an American Gamay or Gamay Beaujolais, or, perhaps, if you want to spend a little more, a French Beaujolais. Since I presume you usually like your wines, cold, I would suggest you put it in the refrigerator about 30 minutes before you plan to eat and open it at least 10 minutes before you serve it.

Puritans might object to chilling a bottle of red wine. But the idea is to allow the customer to enjoy what he or she is drinking. While reds should be served at room temperature for full flavor, the lesser reds lose little by the slight cooling, especially if it then becomes more in line with the customer's drinking habits.

Ask Questions

Wine merchants, friends and a growing list of books and articles should help those serious about enjoying wines. To learn, one must ask questions.

Tell the wine merchant what you plan to serve the wine with, what you have tasted and liked in the past and listen to what he or she tells you about storing, chilling and serving the bottle you both agree on.

The merchant can, and unfortunately, too often does, go for the quick kill and move the customer up to an expensive wine for that special dinner party.

This is self-defeating for the merchant and the customer. The customer will not return until another special party instead of returning often to purchase wines that will affordably go with the family meal.

Taste Matures

Experimenting slowly, a wine drinker's taste matures to the point that the higher priced French, German, Italian and American wines are really worth the difference.

A few words on jug wines. The United States produces the best everyday drinking wines in the world. For the price, jug wines are excellent and last nearly as long as milk.

Jug wines are good to keep on hand to serve at most occasions and are especially excellent for cooking.

Clerks Answer Cheese Queries

"as expensive as you want to go," she said.

Leon's usually arranges its trays with smoked Wisconsin Cheddar, domestic Swiss and Danish Grand Toast.

Cheese trays are popular items at both stores during the fall football season. They also are popular at parties and lately at wedding receptions.

Helpful Deli Dollies

Just as Mrs. Birt began to talk about Leon's 50 varieties of cheese, a shopper leaned on the glass of the delicatessen counter.

"I want to buy some cheese, but I never can remember the name. It starts with an h," the shopper said.

"Havardi," Mrs. Birt and Viola Ritchey, another clerk, answered in unison.

"No," the shopper replied. "I think it's like a county in New York."

Then the clerks, nicknamed deli dollies, knew exactly what the shopper needed. Herkimer cheese, named after Herkimer County, New York.

Mrs. Birt says that scene across the delicatessen counter is typical. Clerks don't mind, however; they've gotten accustomed to questions and usually have answers.

No Beer Kaese For Her

Mrs. Ritchey says she has tasted every cheese in the deli. That is, except for Beer Kaese, a cheese with both a strong flavor and strong odor. "They say it tastes as bad as it smells," Mrs. Ritchey said laughing.

One customer at Leon's says her husband leaves the kitchen when she takes the Beer Kaese out of the refrigerator. A male shopper at Barberio's, on the other hand, says the only time he buys the strong cheese is when his wife is out of town.

For a wine tasting party, Leon's clerks recommend serving Golden Rich or Port du Salut. Such cheeses, they say, take away the wine taste.

Barberio's, meanwhile, suggests serving a mild cheese, like Danish Gradost, Baby Swiss, Monterey Jack or Muenster, with white wines. A robust red wine, however, takes a sharp Cheddar, Gouda, Edam or Tilset.

Cheeses For Fondue

For fondue, Leon's suggests Swiss Greyere, a hard cheese. For just plain fun, Leon's clerks suggest string cheese, a block of mozzarella that pulls apart in strings. And there's Curd cheese, small chunks for snacking.

Other specialities include a Cheddar cheese and port wine spread, as well as a cream cheese and lox spread.

At Barberio's, they talk about Canadian Black Diamond Cheddar that has been aged for five years. The longer Cheddar is aged, the sharper its tastes and the lower its fat content, Mrs. Mathison said.

For sandwiches, Mrs. Mathison suggests Provolone, sliced very thin, or Wisconsin Swiss, goes well with ham.

An Occasional Surprise

Her husband, however, still likes good old processed American cheese in his sandwiches. She says he is "hard headed" and not persuaded easily. But she occasionally slips something different in his sandwiches.

"A lot of people don't know what they're missing," Mrs. Mathison says.

Shoppers can find out what they may be missing at Barberio's, Leon's, the University dairy store or countless other groceries in town that sell processed and natural cheeses. Hinky Dinky at Gateway says it offers between 35 and 40 varieties at its deli. Look around.

New Law Covers Billing Errors

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — If you've tried to persuade a computer that it made a mistake on your bill, you'll welcome the new Fair Credit Billing Act. Taking effect Oct. 28, this law prescribes procedures that stores (and other credit-card issuers) must follow when notified of a possible billing error.

If they don't, they forfeit the first $50 of the bill, even if it turns out that no error was made. It's not clear under the law how you claim your $50 forfeit. Best advice: deduct $50 from your bill, and send the store a written explanation for it. If the store keeps trying to collect, complain to the Federal Trade Commission.

"Billing errors" include the usual kind of mistakes that clerks make — like failing to credit a returned purchase, billing you for the same item twice or applying the wrong finance charge.

But it also includes certain acts of unfairness, such as billing you for something that arrived broken and hasn't yet been replaced.

Also, stores can no longer assess a finance charge when a bill, incorrectly sent to your old address, wasn't forwarded in time for you to meet the payment deadline. As long as the store gets your change of address 10 days before the end of the billing period, it's assumed the computer should be able to send your mail to the right house.

Jane Bryant Quinn

If you think there's something wrong with your bill, here are the steps that the store or any other credit-card issuer (like a bank or American Express) must follow:

(1) You should report the error, in writing, right away — but in any case no later than 60 days after billing. Don't telephone; the law applies only to written notifications. Make sure your letter includes your name, address, credit-card number and all the information the store will need to investigate the complaint.

(2) The store must acknowledge your letter within 30 days, unless it can correct your bill before that time. In any case, it must explain the charge to you within 90 days. During this period you don't have to pay any part of the amount in question. You do, however, have to pay any charges not in dispute.

(3) While the error is being investigated, the store can't levy finance charges on the amount in question, or dun you for the money (although they can send their regular statements). Your account can't be closed because of failure to pay, nor can the store report you as delinquent to a credit bureau.

(4) If you're authorized a bank to deduct funds automatically from your account to pay your bank-card bill, notify them of the error within 16 days. Payment will then be stopped or reversed until the dispute is settled. Should you miss the 16-day deadline, the card company is still obligated to investigate the problem within 90 days and refund any money owed.

(5) If it turns out that the store made a mistake, they'll correct the bill immediately (or notify the card issuer within seven days). However, if the bill was correct, you have to pay whatever finance and late charges the credit-card company normally applies.

(6) If you don't accept the store's explanation of the charge, you can still refuse to pay. At that point, however, the card issuer is free to begin normal collection procedures against you.

They may also report your delinquency to a credit bureau. But as long as you tell the store you won't pay, and why, within 10 days after receiving their explanation, they also have to tell the credit bureau that you believe the money is not owed.

(7) If you paid for goods or services with a bank card or other general-purpose card, like American Express, and the merchandise was shoddy, the credit-card company can no longer insist on collecting. Provided that you've made every effort to straighten out the problem with the merchant, you can refuse to pay. At that point, the bank and the merchant are supposed to hassle things out. However, if they both think you're being unreasonable, you can still be sued — and your right not to pay will then depend on whether you can really prove the merchandise was shoddy.

This protection applies only if the cost of the item was over $50, and the transaction took place in your home state or within 100 miles from your home. Exception: the distance limitation does not apply for things you buy directly from a card issuer (like Sears Roebuck), or from mailed ads that urge you to charge your purchases to the card.

(8) A most important point: banks can no longer dip into your savings or checking account against your will to satisfy a bank-card debt, unless they first get a court order. This prevents them from arbitrarily seizing your money to pay a bill in dispute.

Manslaughter Trial Faced By Used Car Seller

Tulsa, Okla. (AP) — A used car dealer was ordered Tuesday to stand trial on manslaughter charges in connection with the deaths of four persons from carbon monoxide poisoning.

The deaths of Stella Louise Evans, 29, and her three small children were blamed on a faulty exhaust system of a car sold by National Motor Co. of Tulsa. The car had been given to Mrs. Evans, a polio victim who could operate an auto only with special controls, by her father.

District Judge Robert Edmiston ruled at the end of a preliminary hearing that Darryl Cates, owner of the firm, must appear for arraignment Oct. 20. He overruled a motion for dismissal of the charge.

Edmiston said a dealer has "the obligation to see that a car meets the standards of the (state) Department of Public Safety before it is sold.

"To fail to fulfill that obligation is criminally irresponsible and culpably negligent."

Cates, who testified at the preliminary hearing, said he knows nothing about inspecting a car. He said he employed a safety inspector licensed by the state and that all cars on his lot are reconditioned and inspected before they are sold.

U.S.-Soviet Grain Talks Continue . . .

Ukraine Wheat Crop Worse

Moscow (UPI) — Negotiations on a long-term agreement covering sale of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union entered their second week Tuesday amid reports from the usually wheat-rich Ukraine that this year's Soviet harvest may be even worse than predicted.

U.S. officials said Charles A. Robinson, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, held his seventh meeting in eight days with Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev. They planned another session for Wednesday, the officials said.

The talks are aimed at reaching an agreement that would set minimum quantities of grain Moscow must purchase from the United States each year. This would end sporadic Soviet buying sprees that U.S. labor leaders claim have pushed up domestic food prices.

President Ford has banned further grain sales to the Soviet Union until the results of the Robinson mission are known. Moscow already has purchased 10 million tons of U.S. grain this year to supplement its poor harvest — which suffered from too little moisture early in the season and too much near the end.

U.S. officials refused to line the extended Robinson discussions with a speech delivered Sept. 30 in Kiev by the first secretary of the Ukrainian Communist Party, Vladimir V. Shcherbitsky.

Full texts of the speech reached Moscow Tuesday, although extracts were available last week.

Shcherbitsky indicated this year's harvest in the Ukraine would be approximately 34 million tons, 4 million tons less than the most pessimistic of reports for the area by Western agricultural experts.

The experts said success or failure of the Ukrainian harvest often is an indicator of how production is going in other major Soviet wheat-producing areas.

By most previous estimates the overall Soviet harvest this year was expected to be 175 million tons — more than 40 million tons short of the planned amount.

The experts said Shcherbitsky's speech could indicate the shortfall is even greater than anticipated.

Between 1971 and 1974 Soviet purchases of grain from the United States averaged 6 million tons annually.

Toyota Prices Rise

Detroit (AP) — Toyota raised suggested retail prices an average $195 of 5.2% for its 1976 cars and trucks.

$5.47 Billion Supplement Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford asked Congress on Tuesday for a supplemental appropriation of $5.472 billion for unemployment insurance programs through Sept. 30, 1977.

Of the sum, $5 billion would be in effect a loan to state unemployment funds and would not count against the federal budget deficit, an official at the Office of Management and Budget said.

The funds are needed, Ford said, for state unemployment insurance programs which have been depleted by high levels of unemployment during the recent economic recession.

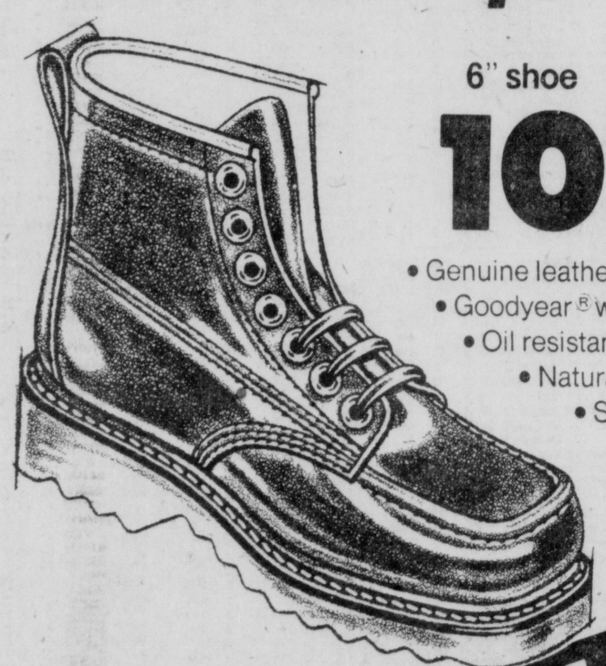

A portion of the funds also would be paid directly by the federal government as its share of unemployment insurance benefits for ex-servicemen, federal employes and some other workers not covered by state unemployment compensation programs.

Some of the money also would be used for increased costs of administering state unemployment programs.

Husker Frosh Blank UNO Junior Varsity, 41-0

By DAVE SITTLER

Omaha — Toward the end of Tuesday night's Nebraska freshmen-UNO Junior Varsity contest, one may suggest UNO might have been wise to cancel the series after last season's initial contest between the two Nebraska schools.

The comment was in reference to the Cornhusker frosh's narrow 6-0 victory over the Mavericks here a year ago.

Expected to be as close a contest again this season, Coach Jim Ross' Cornhuskers ripped UNO 41-0, much to the surprise of a crowd of more than 4,000 who viewed the action at Al Caniglia Stadium.

"We came up here prepared for a tough game," Ross said. "We were lucky to get out of here alive last year.

"But it was one of those cases where we scored early and took advantage of some mistakes which really broke open the gates."

Just as they did while shutting out Kansas State 30-0 two weeks ago, the Cornhusker touchdowns came from a variety of players, with no one scoring more than once.

Former Lincoln High athlete. Mike Washington got Nebraska on the board with 6:09 left in the first stanza on a one-yard run.

Four out of the next five Nebraska scores came via turnovers by the Mavericks, who ended up committing seven key mistakes for the evening.

John Ingram, a 5-9, 170-pounder intercepted quarterback Lee Sapp's pass on the UNO 46-yard line. Returning it the 35, Ingram fumbled, but Nebraska linebacker John Ruud fell on the loose ball.

It took the Husker yearlings only five plays to score, with I-back Rich Berns getting the final three yards on a burst over left tackle.

UNO quickly turned the ball back to the Cornhuskers. On the second play following the touchdown, Maverick quarterback Bruce Perdue's pass was picked off by Nebraska defensive end Gordon Thiessen.

With a fourth and 18 situation and only two seconds remaining in the first quarter, Nebraska's Dean Sukup booted a 35-yard field goal to send the Huskers ahead 17-0.

Sukup, a walkon from Cozad, brought the crowd to its feet near the end of the third quarter when he nailed a 52-yard field goal attempt, setting a new Nebraska freshmen record.

"It started to tail right on me a little at the end but I thought it was good all the way," Sukup said of his record boot.

Sandwiched in between Sukup's booming kick, were touchdowns by Tim Smith, Paul Letcher and Ned Vail, to account for the final 41-0 margain.

Smith, a 6-3, 190-pound split end from Chula Vista, Calif., scored a 70-yard touchdown pass from former Lincoln Southeast quarterback Tim Hagen with 4:53 left in the second quarter.

A minute later, defensive back Paul Letcher, who played his high school ball at Lincoln Northeast, intercepted quarterback Scott Linder's pass and raced 37 yards for the score as Nebraska took a 31-0 halftime lead.

Vail, a walkon quarterback from Dixon, Ill., got the final Nebraska touchdown on a one-yard plunge with 13:16 remaining in the third quarter.

Sukup then booted his 52-yarder in addition to being a perfect four-out-of-four on extra point conversions.

"I think all the Omaha kids on our team were pumped up to win this one and got the rest of team up," Ross said. "But UNO was a hard-hitting bunch, much harder-hitting than Kansas State."

Nebraska was awesome on the ground, rolling up 302 yards rushing to only 88 for UNO.

Leading the way — as he did against Kansas State — was I-back Isiah Hipp, who gained 84 yards on 22 carries. Washington added 66, Berns 50, Dirk Bush 47 and Keith Steward 45 to the balanced attack.

The Cornhusker frosh next travel to Marshalltown, Ia. Oct. 18, to face Marshalltown Junior College.

Reds Defeat Pirates To Win NL Pennant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "He surprised me as much as anybody in the ballpark," said white-haired Sparky Anderson, manager of the 1975 National League champion Cincinnati Reds.

Anderson was talking about the two-strike bunt by outfielder Ken Griffey that set up the winning run in the 10th inning as the Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 and entered the World Series starting Saturday against the Boston Red Sox in Boston.

"All I wanted to do was keep it between the foul lines," said Griffey, who, according to Anderson hadn't bunted in the last two months. "I didn't care where it went as long as it was fair.

In a game of countless dramatic moments, it was Armbrister — an obscure utility player who had 12 hits and two RBI during the season—who wound up the hero.

"Sooner or later, I knew I was going to contribute," said Armbrister, surrounded for the first time in memory by a mob of questioning reporters. "I've been telling them all year it was going to be my turn in the playoffs."

Armbrister said the first pitch from loser Ramon Hernandez was a fastball and he just figured that the Pirates' reliever would come back with another. Hernandez obliged and Armbrister hit the fly that made the Reds National League champions.

Pittsburgh rookie John Candelaria, who pitched superb baseball for the Pirates, relaxed with a beer and seemed outwardly undismayed by a fine performance that just wasn't enough. He said: "Strikeouts don't mean anything. I could have struck out 20 but it wouldn't have meant anything if we lost."

Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh sat in his customary rocking chair, slowly moving back and forth.

"Candy did a helluva job for us, but the Reds showed tonight why they're a good ballclub," said Murtaugh. "They came back and got the big one they needed."

Hernandez said of his crucial balk in the 10th inning: "How could it be a balk? I pitched the same way I always pitched and I never had a balk in the big leagues."

It was a team finish to a game that had been a duel of home runs, highlighted by Candelaria's great performance and a last-of-the ninth rally by Pittsburgh that sent the game into extra innings.

Griffey had led off the 10th with an infield single in front of home plate, advanced to second on a balk by Ramon Hernandez and went to third when Cesar Geronimo grounded out.

Before the inning was over, Pete Rose, whose two-run homer in the eighth had given the Reds a brief 3-2 lead, singled to right and Joe Morgan doubled in the gap between Oliver and right fielder Dave Parker for an insurance run.

The Reds' victory took some of the lustre from a record-tying strikeout performance by young Pirates' pitcher John Candelaria. Candelaria had struck out 14 batters, tying the major league playoff record. before he was relieved in the eighth.

The mark was first set by Detroit's Joe Coleman in 1972. His performance broke the NL playoff mark set in the same year by New York's Tom Seaver.

The Pirates rallied for a game-tying run in the ninth but went down meekly in the bottom of the 10th against Cincinnati reliever Pedro Borbon. Rich Hebner struck out, Oliver grounded out and Willie Randolph also grounded out as the Reds raced from the field pounding each other on the back with their third pennant in the past five years under Manager Sparky Anderson.

Until Rose's shot over the left field fence silenced a crowd of 46,355 at Three Rivers Stadium, the 21-year-old Candelaria had allowed only one hit, but that too was a home run—by Dave Concepcion in the second inning.

The three-game wipeout of the Pirates in the best-of-five game series was only the second since the major league playoff system started in 1969. Ironically, the first, in 1970, was the Reds over the Pirates.

This was the third NL flag in the past five years under Anderson. In their six previous World Series appearances, the Reds won in 1919 over the infamous Chicago Black Sox and last in 1940 over the Detroit Tigers.

Kansas quarterback Nolan Cromwell, who has been the Big Eight back of the week for the past two weeks, will be a target Saturday for the Huskers' Black Shirts.

Osborne, Kiffin Busy Preparing For Kansas

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin has his hands full this week preparing Nebraska's defensive unit for the wishbone offense run by the Kansas Jayhawks.

Head coach Tom Osborne, on the other hand, is faced with helping his offensive coaches prepare for a Kansas defensive unit which last week limited Wisconsin to a single touchdown and the week before shutout Oregon State.

The two teams will be getting together at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Memorial Stadium to open the Big Eight Conference season.

"They're a basic 5-2 front on defense and they don't do anything unusual from a technical standpoint," Osborne said of the Kansas team which has yielded just 35 points for an 8.8 average per game — tops in the Big Eight.

"We'll just have to beat them man-on-man more than some people have so far," he added. "Their defense has been surprisingly strong. They limited Wisconsin to seven points and Wisconsin has been moving the ball throughout the year. They gained almost 400 yards on Missouri."

The Jayhawks, who already have won more (three) games than most people predicted, have a big defensive unit, both on the line and in the secondary. It's a young unit except in the secondary where seniors are cornerbacks Eddie Lewis (6-0, 170) and Steve Taylor (6-4, 210), linebacker Rich Kovatch (6-2, 225), and strong safety Kurt Knoff (6-3, 200).

Knoff is the most celebrated of the group, having made one All-American team last season and earning All-Big Eight selection. He's a three-year starter.

Across the front five, Coach Bud Moore starts a freshman (Franklin King), two sophomores (Tom Dinkel and Jim Emerson) and two juniors (Steve Jones and Mike Butler). The other starter is junior linebacker Terry Beeson.

"Our defense played an excellent game, especially in the second half, at Wisconsin," Moore said. "They turned the ball over to the offense several times in good field position."

In four games, Kansas has yielded just three touchdowns (two of them in the fourth quarter), and 1,016 yards total offense in 291 plays, a meager average of 3.4 yards per play.

The defense had to carry the Jayhawks early because of an inexperienced offensive line, a new offensive system, and a new quarterback in Nolan Cromwell.

In the only loss to Washington State (18-14), the KU offense lost three fumbles, gained only 210 yards in total offense and ran just 53 plays to 81 by Washington State. That put pressure on the defense.

The shutout against Oregon State caused Beaver coach Dee Andros to comment: "They're a helluva defensive team. We were getting beat up front. We moved the ball better against Southern California."

Against USC, Orgon State controlled the ball for 77 plays to the Trojans' 65, but against Kansas had it for only 58 plays to KU's 77.

RATINGS

by Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

Class C-1

1—Plainview (5-0)
2—Centennial (4-1)
3—Wahoo Neumann (4-1)
4—O. Holy Name (3-1-1)
5—Battle Creek (5-0)
6—Oshkosh (4-1)
7—Norfolk Catholic (4-0)
8—Gibbon (4-0)
9—Fremont Bergan (3-2)
10—Wilber (4-1)

Comment — Neumann advances from sixth to third after handling Class B's previously unbeaten Platteview. Wilber replaces Geneva in top 10. Centennial hosts Class B Norris and Neumann hosts B unbeaten Columbus Scotus Friday.

Class C-2

1—Scribner (5-0)
2—Grant (4-1)
3—Alma (5-0)
4—O'Neill SM (4-0-1)
5—Cambridge (5-0)
6—Pleasanton (5-0)
7—Friend (4-0-1)
8—Ponca (5-0)
9—Henderson (3-0-2)
10—Neb. City Lourdes (4-0-1)

Comment — Ponca surfaces for the first time this season. It has recorded five consecutive shutouts. No. 5 Cambridge also has five shutouts, but three have been against Class D schools. Nebraska City Lourdes is another ratings newcomer.

Class D

1—Alliance St. Agnes (5-0)
2—Nelson (4-0-1)
3—Lawrence (4-1)
4—Callaway (5-0)
5—Fairmont (3-1)
6—Homer (4-0)
7—Loomis (5-0)
8—Wolbach (3-1)
9—Falls City SH (2-1-1)
10—Oxford (3-2)

Comment — Fairmont advances while Oxford slides. Wolbach and Falls City Sacred Heart re-enter top 10 as Shickley and Sterling exit. Top matchups Friday are Clay Center at Lawrence and Fairmont at Polk.

Eight-Man

1—Adams (5-0)
2—Elgin (5-0)
3—Ruskin (5-0)
4—Shelby (5-0)
5—Sidney St. Pat's (5-0)
6—Davenport (4-1)
7—Giltner (4-1)
8—Harrisburg (5-0)
9—Wheatland (5-1)
10—Odell (4-0)

Comment — Davenport makes first ratings appearance after toppling previously second-ranked Giltner, 28-20. Davenport's only loss is to No. 3 Ruskin. High-scoring and unbeaten Trumbull has top 10 opportunity Friday night in game at Giltner.

Red Sox Trip A's, 5-3, Win AL's Pennant

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox became the new champions of the American League Tuesday night because they played better baseball than he old champs—the Oakland A's.

"It was as simple as that," said A's manager Alvin Dark. "They outplayed us in everyway and they deserve to be champions."

This was after the Red Sox combined key hits from players who have been doing it all season long, a fine defensive play in left by old pro Carl Yastrzemski and 7 1-3 innings of fine pitching by Rick Wise into a 5-3 victory over the three-time World Champion A's.

There had been some concern over whether Yaz could play left field in spacious Oakland Coliseum, but it was his play in the eighth that cut down a growing A's rally and probably saved the day for the Red Sox, who completed a three-game sweep and won their first pennant since 1967.

"See, I told you I could play left field," Yaz said of his fine play. "I don't believe even now we won the Series and I can't at all believe we swept them."

Yaz and Rico Petrocelli are the only remnnants of the 1967 championship club and they seemed a bit more appreciative of the victory than their younger teammates.

Denny Doyle, Carlton Fisk, Petrocelli and Cecil Cooper each drove in a run and the Red Sox picked up an insurance run on a wild pitch by reliever Paul Lindblad.

The A's, who had won division titles the last five years and the world title the last three with victories over the Reds, Mets and Dodgers, didn't go down without a fight, although it seemed foredoomed they could not beat the Red Sox, a fine team perfectly blended with veteran and young players.

Wise, pitching with nine days of rest, was tough on the A's, who lost all three games of the 1975 championship series. Wise, who won 19 games during the regular season, left in the eighth when the A's scored twice to close the gap to two runs.

Still, the former Phillies and Cardinals star, appearing in his first postseason play ever, held Oakland to six hits and one of the three runs off him was unearned.

Before the Series even began the A's were big favorites because they were the seasoned players and the Red Sox were mere upstarts. But it never turned out that way, because it was the A's who acted as if this was all very new to them.

In the first game loss to the Red Sox in Boston, the A's made four errors and in the second game defeat they were outmuscled although it was Oakland that had the big power hitters in Sal Bando, Reggie Jackson, Gene Tenace, Joe Rudi and Billy Williams.

In Tuesday night's loss, the Red Sox simply outplayed Oakland in every facet of the game, and as A's skipper Alvin Dark said, "we were outplayed every way. They were the better team and they deserve their victory."

Wise and Ken Holtzman, trying to come back on two days rest after being chased in the opener last Saturday, had the Red Sox stopped until the fourth when a two-base error in left field by Claudell Washington after two outs and a single by Petrocelli produced Boston's first run.

In the fifth, the Red Sox chased Holtzman, who simply ran out of gas. A double by Rick Burleson after one out started a three-run rally that proved decisive.

Doyle singled Burleson home after another out and a single by Carl Yastrzemski finished Holtzman. Fisk greeted reliever Jim Todd with a single that scored Doyle and a wild pitch by Lindblad, who took over for Todd, got Yaz home.

Yaz proved a bigger hero in the eighth when the A's made a strong bid to overhaul the Red Sox.

Cesar Tovar started the rally for Oakland and went to second on a groundout and to third when Doyle fumbled a roller to second by Washington for an error. Bando scored Tovar with a hit to deep short and Washington scored on a long single to left by Jackson.

On the hit, Yaz dove for the ball and smothered it, preventing Bando from scoring and Jackson from winding up with a triple.

"That was the big play in the field," said winning manager Darrell Johnson. "If Yaz doesn't get that ball, they are only a run back and Jackson has to make it to third, but he didn't."

It was the ninth pennant in Red Sox history and the third since Tom Yawkey bought the club in 1932. In many ways, it could be the sweetest because no one figured the Red Sox could win a division flag let alone beat the World Champion A's three straight in the playoffs.

"Heck, we beat an awfully good ball club," said Johnson. "Forget the scores. The A's are as good a team as there is in baseball but right now I think we might be a bit better."

Wahoo Neumann's Grid Fortunes Changed

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

John Lawlor arrived at Wahoo Neumann three years ago.

He had coached five years at Norfolk Catholic and three at Pender, then spent a year attending law school at Creighton.

"I was broke," he recalls, "so I got back in the business."

Friends might have wondered why. Neumann is what's known in the high school sports world as a perennial loser. Since it first opened its doors in 1964, it's been stuck with that unwanted tag.

Not that Neumann hasn't earned it. Before this season, the Wahoo Catholic school had won only seven football games in six years.

In 11 years of football, Neumann had only 23 wins to show for it. That's an average of only two wins a year.

One Winning Season

There's been only one winning season (6-3 in 1967) in more than a decade. There's been two years when Neumann didn't win a game (0-9 in 1969 and 1972).

Lawlor knew what it was like. That winless '72 club was his first at Neumann.

Work needed to be done, he says. There was no freshman football program. Lawlor started one. There was no weight room. Lawlor saw to it there was one.

Three years and five wins later, Neumann is reaping the benefits of a faster-paced program. It's off to a fast 4-1 start and ranks third behind Plainview and Centennial in the Sunday Journal and Star's Class C-1 ratings.

It has beaten three Class B teams — North Bend (42-7), Omaha Paul VI (20-14) and last week conquered then unbeaten and rated Platteview (32-8).

Equally impressive is Neumann's 33-7 handling of fellow Class C-rated Fremont Bergan. Its only blemish is a 20-18 loss to Class B David City Aquinas.

"I thought we might smoke out some people after last week," Lawlor says of his team's win over Platteview. "Things are getting pretty lively around here. People are starting to notice.

"If we can do the unbelievable this weekend (I really don't like to call it that because it is possible), then we'll really be over the hump," says Lawlor.

Neumann faces its stiffest challenge yet Friday night, hosting Columbus Scotus, Class B's fourth-rated unbeaten powerhouse.

"Objectively," Lawlor assesses, "we have better people in two or three positions and Scotus has the rest. They have more speed and more depth, but there's not that big difference like there has been.

"Before," he adds, "we had just been mauled by Bergan and Platteview, then tried to get ready for Scotus. This year, it's different."

"We haven't really been that bad the last two years," he insists. "We've almost been there, but just haven't been able to pull ourselves over."

Although Neumann is pointing towards Scotus in a big way, Lawlor also has his sights set on the following week's match against Omaha Cathedral.

A win there likely would give Neumann the American division title in the Centennial Conference and a league playoff berth.

Conference Titles

His teams at Norfolk Catholic and Pender earned conference championships and he'd like to make it a sweep.

If he does, maybe the trophy should go to the small town of Weston. Lawlor estimates that 80 per cent of Neumann's football team is from there.

"We also draw from Malmo and bus some in from Prague," he points out.

People in those communities should stand up and be recognized. Neumann's not a loser anymore.

Stocks Decline In Light Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Another hitch in plans to prevent New York City's default sent stock prices into their first decline in four sessions Tuesday. Trading was light.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about eight points from Monday's close during most of the session, recovered a bit in the waning moments to finish at 816.51, off 3.15 on the day. The blue-chip index had gained 35 50 in the three previous sessions.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange fell to 13.53 million shares, as against 15.47 million Monday. Losers led gainers 776 to 555 among the 1,789 Big Board issues traded.

"After moving sideways for about four hours, the market began a recovery about as half-hearted as the decline," said Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co.

Zinder and other Wall Street analysts said the primary cause of the market's decline was a court ruling which some said could provoke a severe cash flow crisis—or default—for New York City almost immediately.

A New York court temporarily restrained the state comptroller from buying state notes with pension funds he controls. The purchase had been a part of the state plan to avert a city default.

Other factors in the stock market were profit taking following recent gains and indications that the Federal Reserve may not have eased off on credit as much as had been believed last Friday.

Analysts downplayed President Ford's call Monday night for $28 billion in tax cuts next year, coupled with spending limits. They gave the plan little chance of getting through a Congress concerned about the November 1976 elections.

Middle South Utilities, the Big Board volume leader, closed up ⅛ to 13⅛ after a 200,000-share block moved at 13¼.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost .11 to 86.77.

Steel, paper, chemical, coal, and oil service stocks generally declined, while gold stocks, buoyed up by higher bullion prices, moved up.

Hog Prices Hit Another Record Top

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hog prices, bolstered by another small-side run, hit another record top on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday.

The porker run was estimated at about 3,500 head, with barrows and gilts seeing fairly active trade. The butcher trend was 25-to-75 cents higher, with a lot of sales noted on a 50-cents higher basis.

Forty-nine head of top-graders hitting the scales from 224-to-237-pounds put themselves in the record books when they cleared at $64.75, breaking the old mark of $64.25 set a week ago Monday.

Slightly less desirable handyweights also broke the old mark, bulking from $64.25-$64.50.

Sows weighing in from 300-to-450-pounds turned unevenly steady to as much as $2.00 lower, while weights over 450-pounds earned a steady call. Sow tickets showed markings ranging mainly from $56 00-$59.00.

The cattle run was estimated at about 4,000 head, with steers and heifers seeing moderately active trade. Steers traded on a firm tone, while heifers turned 25-to-50 cents higher, and cows were mostly $1.00 lower.

There were only about 200 sheep on offer, and the trend on the small supply of slaughter lambs was called steady to 25-cents higher, with the advance on wooled offerings. Ewes were rather scarce.

Good, Mixed Support Lifts Farm Futures

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures gained from 1 to 6 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday under good, mixed support.

The demand was associated largely with reports that farmers are not ridding themselves of their newly harvested grain, preferring to hold the commodity on the farm in hopes of higher prices. Some trade letters noted that farm offerings had slowed down the last 2 to 3 days.

Prices were firm to strong on the opening and improved almost steadily through midsession when some mild profit-taking set in. Before the final bell there was another profit-taking move and gains were trimmed by one-third.

Trade was mixed in the major pits and the pace fairly active. There was, however, a slowdown after midsession.

Iced broilers closed steady to about one-third cent a pound higher after a late flurry of profit-taking. Gold futures closed with a gain of about $2 an ounce after a very light traded session.

Ficken's Running Boosts Davenport

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Coaches, players and fans aren't the only ones talking about Kelly Ficken's performance for Davenport last weekend against Giltner.

The school's administration is equally excited about the senior halfback's determination.

Davenport superintendent Jim Heller nominated Ficken for the Sunday Journal and Star's prep Player of the Week award for his role in a 28-20 win over Giltner, then unbeaten and the state's second-ranked eight-man team.

"He's an athlete who gives his team 100 per cent every game," says Heller. "He's beat to a pulp after every game."

In helping Devenport land an eight-man rating, Ficken rushed for 249 yards and a 13.2 per carry average against Giltner.

Heller points out that Ficken's 42-yard touchdown produced a 6-6 tie in the first half. "Then, on a third and long situation midway through the third quarter, he had a 71-yard touchdown to tie it again, 20-20."

Ficken sprinted 54 yards for a touchdown midway through the fourth quarter to complete the upset.

"He also intercepted a pass on his own 10-yard line with 51 seconds left in the game to keep us from a possible tie," Heller says of Ficken.

"He's an elusive runner," evaluates Heller, former football coach at Mead. "He's hard to bring down. He gets hit, then comes out of the pile.

"He's also got a nose for the football," adds Heller. "He's averaging 15 tackles a game (five unassisted) and he plays safety. He's very deserving of recognition."

Ficken was a second team Class D all-state basketball selection last winter after averaging more than 30 points a game.

Others who'll receive Player of the Week cards include:

Gary Hager, Lincoln Southeast — Junior split end caught 11 passes for 91 yards, one touchdown and conversion and also intercepted a pass in Knights' third straight win, 14-6, over Lincoln High.

Phil Swenson, Bellevue — Senior 227-pound tight end, who lost his starting job two weeks ago, came off the bench in the second half to catch a 13-yard touchdown pass in Chieftans' 7-0 win over then No. 1 Omaha Benson.

Mark Wittler, Fairbury — Senior quarterback ran, passed, punted and placekicked Jeffs to 20-13 upset win over Crete. His 45-yard pass interception touchdown in the fourth quarter was the difference.

Mike Delka, Superior — Wildcat I-back played only three quarters in lopsided win over Hastings Adams Central, but amassed 293 yards rushing, including touchdown sprints of 20, 23, 60 and 85 yards.

Junior Hohensee, Norris — Senior back rushed for 178 yards on 19 carries and scored on runs of 8 and 51 yards in team's 25-9 win over Wymore Southern. He also led Norris in tackles with nine solos and seven assists and recovered a fumble.

Rick Weitzel, Mitchell — Only 5-7 and 130 pounds, he had an outstanding game at defensive back in 28-12 win over Morrill. He finished with seven solo tackles, six assists, intercepted a pass and recovered a fumble. He also scored a touchdown.

Kevin Bomar, Norfolk Catholic — Senior linebacker is leading tackler for unbeaten Class C-1 team. So far, he's blocked two punts and averaged 12 tackles a game. In last two victories, he's been credited with 33 tackles, two fumble recoveries and an interception for a touchdown.

Gary Ernest, Hastings St. Cecilia — Junior fullback sparked team's first win fo the season with 168 yards rushing on 26 carries and two touchdowns against Raymond Central. He's played every position in the St. Cecilia backfield since his brother, Ron, broke a collerbone in the first game.

Stuart Kozal, Rushville — In consecutive wins over Crawford and Hemingford, junior back has rushed for 372 yards rushing on only 19 carries, an almost 20-yard per carry average. He also hit 9 of 14 passes for 131 more yards and a touchdown.

Leroy Klipp, Fairmont — Senior halfback rushed for 106 yards on 19 carries and scored three touchdowns, one on a 50-yard pass interception, as Class D-rated team defeated Shickley, 32-12.

Bob Hutsell, Hampton — Senior halfback, just 5-6 and 130, rushed for 165 yards on 25 carries and scored two touchdowns in 30-12 win over McCool Junction. It was his third straight 100-plus yard rushing performance since moving from blocking back.

Chuck Sukovaty, Hayes Center — Threw a 25-yard scoring pass and was credited with 10 tackles in team's 14-12 Southern Frontier Conference win over previously unbeaten Eustis.

Matt Tabke, Maxwell — Senior halfback scored 28 of team's 29 points in a 29-20 win over Mullen. Finished with 132 yards rushing on 26 carries, caught two passes for 51 yards and was credited with 11 solo tackles and six assists.

Offense Lead To Hastings

Kearney — All Nebraska college teams have now won this year after Concordia dumped Dana Saturday night. And all teams have lost as least one after Midland raced past Hastings.

Conference races begin in earnest this week as the Nebraska College Conference and Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference teams play one another.

In team offense Hastings retains the lead, although Midland held the Broncos to a minus 7 yards rushing. Wayne used a romp past Dakota State to jump into second spot. Midland still remains the rushing leader while Hastings leads in passing.

Kansas Switches Turner

By Associated Press

Linebacker Jeff Turner was switched to noseguard for the injured Dennis Balagna as the Kansas football team prepared Tuesday for Nebraska.

Balagna suffered a severe ankle sprain in the Wisconsin game, and was a doubtful starter.

Coach Bud Moore also said he hasn't made a decision whether to take John O'Rear or Bob Swift to Lincoln as punter.

Wide receiver Richard McAuliffe is still out with a shoulder injury, and Waddell Smith has been starting for him.

Oklahoma

Oklahoma head coach Barry Switzer announced Tuesday that starting fullback Jim Littrell would not play Saturday when the Sooners take on the Texas Longhorns in the Cotton Bowl.

"Jim can't practice and won't be able to play this weekend," said Switzer.

"Junior Jim Culbreath will take his place and Horace Ivory reserve right halfback will back him up."

The Sooners worked mainly on the Texas defensive front Tuesday, a defense different from any they've faced in four games this season.

Texas uses an eight man front requiring different offensive blocking schemes.

Missouri

Tony Galbreath, stellar running back who missed Missouri's game against Michigan because of an injury, worked out with the Tigers Tuesday and coach Al Onofrio termed it a "pleasant surprise."

Galbreath first went on the field without pads but ran so well, Onorfrio said, he was sent back to don full gear.

Defensive tackle Keith Morrisey, who also missed the Michigan game, worked out despite a sore knee.

Candelaria Respected By Reds

Pittsburgh (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds became National League champions Tuesday night but not before gaining an immense amount of respect for young John Candelaria.

"Make no mistake about it," said Joe Morgan, "that kid pitched one helluva game. I never thought he was so overpowering before. I had never faced him — only saw him in batting practice."

Candelaria, the 21-year-old rookie from Brooklyn, N.Y., whom Pirates' manager Danny Murtaugh entrusted with stopping the Reds' sweep, struck out a major league playoff-tying record 14 batters before finally succumbing to a two-run homer by Pete Rose in the eighth.

"That's probably the greatest performance by a lefty against us all year," said Rose. "He really made only two bad pitches."

"It was an inside pitch he threw to me," Rose said. "I know he didn't want to get it in there. I wasn't trying for a homer but rather hoped I could hit a double off the wall."

Morgan, who was injured and out of the lineup the only times Candelaria faced the Reds this year, said he felt the young southpaw probably fell victim to all the pressure put on him. "He was revved up and ready to go — really over powering," Morgan said. "But I think in the eighth, he just kind of began to feel the strain."

Although Rose's homer finished Candelaria for the night, the cool youngster could not be blamed for the Pirates' ultimate defeat which came in the 10th inning when the Reds pushed across the winning runs. Ed Armbrister drove home the first run by delivering a pinch hit sacrifice fly.

"All I was thinking up there was 'get a piece of it,' Armbrister said. "I wanted to bring Ken (Griffey) home from third and once I got the butterflies out of my stomach, I knew I'd hit the ball somewhere to do just that."

Kansas State

Injuries have forced some position changes in the Kansas State backfield, coach Ellis Rainsberger announced Tuesday.

Reserve fullback Jim Couch has a sprained knee and Rainsberger said KSU probably will apply for a hardship case on the senior, who probably won't play again this season.

Tailback Roscoe Scobey has been moved to backup fullback, Rainsberger said, and the tailback post is "up for grabs."

Offensive tackle Mark Zier and offensive guard Shelby Henderson also are on the injury list.

Johnson Defends Removing Wise

OAKLAND (UPI) — "I thought I did it just right," Darrell Johnson said Tuesday night after his Boston Red Sox advanced to the World Series with a 5-3 victory over the Oakland A's.

Johnson, a highly successful minor league manager but only in his second season at the Red Sox helm, was talking about the key eighth inning when he took out starter Rick Wise and brought in fireballer Dick Drago.

With Boston leading by four runs, the A's began a rally that saw them close to within the final margin with one out, runners on first and third and the go-ahead run at the plate in the person of Joe Rudi.

That's when Johnson made his move. He waved in Drago and the usually hard-throwing righthander changed his strategy and went with a sinker.

It worked as Rudi flit the first pitch into a double play to end the inning and move the Red Sox to within three outs of returning to the World Series for the first time since 1967.

"Of course, I was trying to get Rudi to hit into a double play," Drago said. "It was a one-shot pitch, a sinker low and away. I threw it where I wanted it and he hit it where we wanted it. That's all there was to it.

"But let me tell you, it was like a lifetime out there. The whole game seemed like an eternity."

Wise wasn't particularly displeased about being taken out.

"I can't blame the manager," the bespectacled pitcher said. "They were rallying and they had their power hitter up. It was the right move and it paid off. That's what counts.

"I wasn't particularly tired, but I wanted to make sure we won. I was disappointed I didn't win 20 games during the regular season (he finished at 19-11) so I told my friends and teammates that the 20th win would be the one that put us in the world series. I was right."

Johnson came to Wise's defense. "We booted the ball around the infield (an error and a close play at first), so it wasn't his fault. I just felt it was time to bring in a fresh horse. All I know is that Rick went out there and pitched well. We've excelled all year long so I knew we could do it."

East Spikers Extend Skein

The Lincoln East volleyball team, behind the 15 point performance of Debbie Gade downed Lincoln High, 7-15, 15-10 and 15-11 to extend the East winning streak to 16 games in a row.

Debbie Van Dusen scored 14 points for the losers.

The Lincoln High reserves kept a winning streak of their own going by scoring a 15-9, 15-9 win over the East reserves.

Lincoln East, now 7-0 on the season, will face Fremont at 6:30 Thursday at East High.

Rocket Girls Trip Southeast

Northeast's girls' volleyball team upped its record to 4-2 Tuesday night downing Southeast 15-13, 15-13 at the Rocket gym.

Pam Samuelson paced the winner's attack scoring seven points while Southeast was led by Janet Llewellyn's 11 points.

The Knights won the reserve match 13-15, 16-14, 15-12.

Red Sox Effort Praised By A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — The expletives were not deleted in the Oakland dressing room Tuesday night but they were subdued by a saddened group of ex-champions.

"I feel sad," said A's third baseman and captain Sal Bando. "But they played better than we did and deserved every bit of it. I will be rooting for them in the Series. I think they will go all the way. They are a very good club and I wish them the best."

Most of his team mates agreed, as did Oakland manager Alvin Dark.

"They outplayed us," Dark said. "I think the Red Sox can do it. They played just great against us. They just played great baseball."

"The Red Sox are red hot," said Reggie Jackson. "They are really hot. And I don't care who they say is the most valuable player. There is nobody plays that outfield like that (Carl) Yastrzemski. Nobody has thrown me out better than he has. He just took charge of that field and did everything."

Outfielder Bill North, who went hitless in the series, also had high praise for Yastrzemski.

"Yaz gave every ounce," he said. "I hit the ball as good as I could but it was their defense, led by Yaz, that shut us off. They just shut down our offense. Everything I hit—and that goes for Campy and Claudell Washington too—they just took. Do you realize that the three of us did not steal a base during the series. You can't steal first, you know. It was definitely their defense that did it."

It was a quiet dressing room, but there was no bitterness. The A's went out in three, but they went out like champions—three-time champions.

Their heads were high, they had praise for the excellence of their opposition and they knew they had given their best effort.

Second baseman Phil Garner expressed their determination by quietly repeating the old cliche—"Wait 'til next year."

Big Eight Race Tough

"It's going to take an awfully good football team to win the Big Eight Conference championship," Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said Tuesday after putting his Cornhuskers through a day of preparations for Saturday's league opener against Kansas.

"Maybe the champion won't be undefeated, but whoever wins it will be deserving of the national championship," he said. "And, maybe because we beat each other in the conference, the national championship will go to someone else."

The Big Eight's stature already has been proven with just two non-conference games remaining. League teams have posted a 26-4 record with outsiders for an all-time record. The best previous mark was 25-6-1 in 1973.

The four losses have come at the hands of Michigan, Texas A & M, UCLA and Washington State. All but WSU have been ranked in the top ten at one time or another this year.

Oklahoma, which plays Texas in Dallas on Saturday, and Colorado, which visits Miami of Florida Friday night, could become upset victims in the final two non-league contests.

The Buffaloes have to be deflated after coming so close against the Sooners. If the Miami loss to Nebraska didn't take too much out of Carl Selmer's team, the Hurricanes have enough ability to win. And they always play well in the Orange Bowl.

Ball Control For NU

When you think of ball-control football teams you think of those clubs that don't throw the ball much and grind it out on the ground.

Well, Nebraska mixed rushes with passes (19 of them) last Saturday against Miami and still had an amazing control of the ball, both timewise and playwise.

For example, from the time Vince Ferragamo came in at quarterback to start the second half until he had directed the Huskers to a 31-9 lead with 5:46 to play, Nebraska had controlled the ball 18 minutes, 21 seconds to Miami's 5:53.

Even with things not going well for Terry Luck in the first half, the Huskers had the ball 16:32 to Miami's 13:28 in the first 30 minutes. The game total was 36:50 for NU to 23:10 for Miami.

Playwise, Nebraska has had a big edge in every game, leading LSU 78-53, Indiana 91-53, TCU 93-59 and Miami 84-62.

With the passing mixed with rushing against Miami, the game was more exciting than the three-yards and a cloud of dust style of Ohio State.

Three yards and a cloud of dust, incidentally, equals fourth down and one.

Catching Up On Sports

Randy Lessman, Nebraska's junior punter from Sioux City, Ia., got off his worst kick of the season, 22 yards into the wind to open the game last Saturday, but he finished the afternoon with a 43.7 yard average on seven boots.

That brought his season average on 21 punts to 41.4 yards a punt. He averaged 37.9 last year on 44 kicks.

Opponents have returned punts just six punts a total of eight yards as a result of the fine height and distance Lessman is getting.

Third and fourth down conversions: It's always interesting to see how quarterbacks do in converting third down plays into first downs. Terry Luck is 33 of 54 and Vince Ferragamo is 14 of 19.

Until last Saturday, Nebraska's game against Stanford in the Rose Bowl in 1941 had brought out the record crowd to see a Big Eight team (91,000). The Missouri-Michigan game in Ann Arbor drew 104,578. The only way the Huskers could get the record back would be to play at Michigan or go back to the Rose Bowl, which drew 106,721 last Jan. 1.

Speaking of punting again, despite Lessman's hefty average, there are three Big Eight kickers with better marks: Cliff Parsley of Oklahoma State 44.2, Jim Goble of Missouri, 42.00, and Tinker Owens of Oklahoma, 41.8.

Huskers Defense No. 2

From News Wires

The Nebraska football team remained second in rushing and total defense in the nation behind Texas A&M in this week's weekly NCAA statistics.

The fifth-ranked Texas Longhorns continue to dominate the NCAA's offensive statistics for major colleges this week by leading the nation in total offense, rushing offense and scoring.

The Longhorns have gained 1,580 yards rushing in four games for an average of 465.7 yards total offense. Colorado, the No. 12 team, follows the Longhorns with 1,756 yards and 15 touchdowns and Arizona State is third with 1,726 yards.

Texas is far ahead of second-ranked Oklahoma in scoring offense. The Longhorns have totaled 177 points while Oklahoma has 149 points. Nebraska is third with 142 points.

Buckeyes Vault To Top

From News Wires

Woody Hayes, perhaps mindful of the experiences of his last three Ohio State squads, terms the Buckeyes' selection as the nation's No. 1 college football power "a rather precarious one now."

Nebraska retained No. 4 while Texas jumped two spots to fifth. Texas A&M stayed in sixth and Alabama moved from ninth to seventh. Michigan rode a victory over Missouri from 12th to eighth.

Penn State moved from 10th to ninth and prepares to meet No. 10 West Virginia in an Eastern showdown Saturday.

Told of Ohio State's ranking after a coaches' meeting Tuesday, Hayes responded, "That means everybody will be pointing harder at us.

"I feel like the fellow who was tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail. He said if it weren't for the honor, he would just have soon walked."

It marked the third consecutive season the Big Ten power has been No. 1. The Buckeyes paced the rankings for eight weeks before a 10-10 tie at Michigan in 1973. Last fall, Michigan State ambushed them 16-13, costing them the national lead.

Did Hayes learn from those games?

"You always learn something from games like those," replied Hayes in a deserted team meeting room. "The thing you have to do is have consistency. And it's nearly impossible to maintain consistency for 11 games."

Hayes has called the current Ohio State schedule, especially the first part, the toughest of his 25 seasons with the Buckeyes. Victims have been Michigan State, Penn State, North Carolina and UCLA.

"This team has played as well as any I've had up to this point," said the coach of three national champions. "I think the tougher schedule helped. They were under the gun from the very start.

Colorado jumped four positions to 12th after the close fight with the Sooners.

Texas didn't hurt itself with its 61-7 rout of Utah State; the 4-0 Longhorns jumped two places to fifth as previous No. 5 Missouri fell out of the top 10 with their 31-7 shellacking by Michigan.

Texas A&M, 4-0, remained sixth with a 10-0 shutout of stubborn Kansas State and got the last No. 1 designation; when Notre Dame lost to Michigan State 10-3, it knocked the Fighting Irish out of the top 10 as well and let Alabama, Penn State, Oklahoma State and Michigan climb into the top 10. The Crimson Tide, 3-1, climbed up two places to Seventh, the Nittany Lions, 4-1, and 4-0 Cowboys — the third Big Eight team to achieve top 10 ranking this week — moved up one spot each to ninth and 10th, respectively, and the Wolverines' decisive victory, boosting them to 2-0-2, sent them into eighth, six places higher than a week ago.

Missouri is 18th and Kansas, also a newcomer, is 20th, the sixth Big Eight team to make the top 20.

Elrod Wins National Honor

FOOTBALL

Oklahoma defensive end Jimbo Elrod was selected as The Associated Press' national lineman of the week for his efforts in the Sooners' 21-20 win over Colorado. Elrod had 19 trackles against the Buffs including two for losses totaling 11 yards.

Kansas quarterback Nolan Cromwell was the unanimous choice as the Big Eight Conference offensive player for the second consecutive week. Cromwell, a safety turned quarterback, gained 187 yards in 20 carries and scored two touchdowns in the Jayhawks' 41-7 upset of Wisconsin. Cromwell beat out five other players including Nebraska quarterback Vince Ferragamo.

The WFL, faced with an attendance problem it has so far found insurmountable, is considering asking four of its 10 clubs to take a 40 per cent pay cut.

Controversy was settled over the starting time of Saturday's nationally-televised Michigan-Michigan State game. If Boston hosts the World Series' first game Saturday, the football game, televised on ABC, will start at 3:10 p.m., EDT. If the first Series game is in Oakland, the kickoff will stay at 12:50 p.m., EDT.

Quarterback Virgil Carter, who was sent packing from the Chicago Bears in 1969 after making a vulgar remark about the organization, will be given a tryout with the team, the Bears announced.

The Houston Oilers cut wide receiver Elmo Wright from their roster and added receiver Nate Hawkins, whom they cut Sept. 2.

Richard Wood, a rookie linebacker with the New York Jets, pleaded guilty to theft, the charges stemming from use of a stolen airplane ticket last January.

BASEBALL

Joe Morgan of Cincinnati and Tom Seaver of New York have been voted National League player and pitcher of the year in a poll of NL players conducted by the Sporting News, the publication announced.

The Cincinnati Reds announced that all World Series tickets have been sold and are in the mail for the games scheduled in Riverfront Stadium Oct. 14, 15 and 16.

Texas Ranger general manager Danny O'Brien told the Spokane Daily Chronicle that the ballclub's affiliation with the Spokane Indians AAA team will last as long as owner "Bill Cutler wants it to last."

BASKETBALL

Clemson basketball coach Bill Foster said the three-year probation handed down by the NCAA against the Tigers could bring his team together and result in a good team. The probation resulted from basketball recruiting violations by former head coach Tates Locke and other officials.

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

TENNIS

Two challenge matches featuring Jimmy Connors will be played in Las Vegas within the next four months, it was learned. Connors will team with Chris Evert to play a mixed doubles match against Billy Jean King and Marty Riessen at Caesar's Palace Dec. 6. On Feb. 28, Connors will meet either Manuel Orantes of Spain or Vitas Gerulaitas in a match that could net Connors up to $750,000.

Third-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania and fourth-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden won their matches in the second round of the $75,000 Madrid Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Two Granted Extra Season

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference announced Tuesday that an additional year of eligibility has been granted two athletes under the hardship rule.

The two are Frank Perbeck, track and field athlete at Kansas State, and Jeremiah Daugherty, a gymnast at Kansas.

The league's governing body also increased from 26 to 27 the number of basketball games its teams can schedule during the regular season.

New Law Covers Billing Errors

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — If you've tried to persuade a computer that it made a mistake on your bill, you'll welcome the new Fair Credit Billing Act. Taking effect Oct. 28, this law prescribes procedures that stores (and other credit-card issuers) must follow when notified of a possible billing error.

If they don't, they forfeit the first $50 of the bill, even if it turns out that no error was made. It's not clear under the law how you claim your $50 forfeit. Best advice: deduct $50 from your bill, and send the store a written explanation for it. If the store keeps trying to collect, complain to the Federal Trade Commission.

"Billing errors" include the usual kind of mistakes that clerks make — like failing to credit a returned purchase, billing you for the same item twice or applying the wrong finance charge.

But it also includes certain acts of unfairness, such as billing you for something that arrived broken and hasn't yet been replaced.

Also, stores can no longer assess a finance charge when a bill, incorrectly sent to your old address, wasn't forwarded in time for you to meet the payment deadline. As long as the store gets your change of address 10 days before the end of the billing period, it's assumed the computer should be able to send your mail to the right house.

Jane Bryant Quinn

If you think there's something wrong with your bill, here are the steps that the store or any other credit-card issuer (like a bank or American Express) must follow:

(1) You should report the error, in writing, right away — but in any case no later than 60 days after billing. Don't telephone; the law applies only to written notifications. Make sure your letter includes your name, address, credit-card number and all the information the store will need to investigate the complaint.

(2) The store must acknowledge your letter within 30 days, unless it can correct your bill before that time. In any case, it must explain the charge to you within 90 days. During this period you don't have to pay any part of the amount in question. You do, however, have to pay any charges not in dispute.

(3) While the error is being investigated, the store can't levy finance charges on the amount in question, or dun you for the money (although they can send their regular statements). Your account can't be closed because of failure to pay, nor can the store report you as delinquent to a credit bureau.

(4) If you're authorized a bank to deduct funds automatically from your account to pay your bank-card bill, notify them of the error within 16 days. Payment will then be stopped or reversed until the dispute is settled. Should you miss the 16-day deadline, the card company is still obligated to investigate the problem within 90 days and refund any money owed.

(5) If it turns out that the store made a mistake, they'll correct the bill immediately (or notify the card issuer within seven days). However, if the bill was correct, you have to pay whatever finance and late charges the credit-card company normally applies.

(6) If you don't accept the store's explanation of the charge, you can still refuse to pay. At that point, however, the card issuer is free to begin normal collection procedures against you.

They may also report your delinquency to a credit bureau. But as long as you tell the store you won't pay, and why, within 10 days after receiving their explanation, they also have to tell the credit bureau that you believe the money is not owed.

(7) If you paid for goods or services with a bank card or other general-purpose card, like American Express, and the merchandise was shoddy, the credit-card company can no longer insist on collecting. Provided that you've made every effort to straighten out the problem with the merchant, you can refuse to pay. At that point, the bank and the merchant are supposed to hassle things out. However, if they both think you're being unreasonable, you can still be sued — and your right not to pay will then depend on whether you can really prove the merchandise was shoddy.

This protection applies only if the cost of the item was over $50, and the transaction took place in your home state or within 100 miles from your home. Exception: the distance limitation does not apply for things you buy directly from a card issuer (like Sears Roebuck), or from mailed ads that urge you to charge your purchases to the card.

(8) A most important point: banks can no longer dip into your savings or checking account against your will to satisfy a bank-card debt, unless they first get a court order. This prevents them from arbitrarily seizing your money to pay a bill in dispute.

Manslaughter Trial Faced By Used Car Seller

Tulsa, Okla. (AP) — A used car dealer was ordered Tuesday to stand trial on manslaughter charges in connection with the deaths of four persons from carbon monoxide poisoning.

The deaths of Stella Louise Evans, 29, and her three small children were blamed on a faulty exhaust system of a car sold by National Motor Co. of Tulsa. The car had been given to Mrs. Evans, a polio victim who could operate an auto only with special controls, by her father.

District Judge Robert Edmiston ruled at the end of a preliminary hearing that Darryl Cates, owner of the firm, must appear for arraignment Oct. 20. He overruled a motion for dismissal of the charge.

Edmiston said a dealer has "the obligation to see that a car meets the standards of the (state) Department of Public Safety before it is sold.

"To fail to fulfill that obligation is criminally irresponsible and culpably negligent."

Cates, who testified at the preliminary hearing, said he knows nothing about inspecting a car. He said he employed a safety inspector licensed by the state and that all cars on his lot are reconditioned and inspected before they are sold.

U.S.-Soviet Grain Talks Continue . . .

Ukraine Wheat Crop Worse

Moscow (UPI) — Negotiations on a long-term agreement covering sale of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union entered their second week Tuesday amid reports from the usually wheat-rich Ukraine that this year's Soviet harvest may be even worse than predicted.

U.S. officials said Charles A. Robinson, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, held his seventh meeting in eight days with Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev. They planned another session for Wednesday, the officials said.

The talks are aimed at reaching an agreement that would set minimum quantities of grain Moscow must purchase from the United States each year. This would end sporadic Soviet buying sprees that U.S. labor leaders claim have pushed up domestic food prices.

President Ford has banned further grain sales to the Soviet Union until the results of the Robinson mission are known. Moscow already has purchased 10 million tons of U.S. grain this year to supplement its poor harvest — which suffered from too little moisture early in the season and too much near the end.

U.S. officials refused to line the extended Robinson discussions with a speech delivered Sept. 30 in Kiev by the first secretary of the Ukrainian Communist Party, Vladimir V. Shcherbitsky.

Full texts of the speech reached Moscow Tuesday, although extracts were available last week.

Shcherbitsky indicated this year's harvest in the Ukraine would be approximately 34 million tons, 4 million tons less than the most pessimistic of reports for the area by Western agricultural experts.

The experts said success or failure of the Ukrainian harvest often is an indicator of how production is going in other major Soviet wheat-producing areas.

By most previous estimates the overall Soviet harvest this year was expected to be 175 million tons — more than 40 million tons short of the planned amount.

The experts said Shcherbitsky's speech could indicate the shortfall is even greater than anticipated.

Between 1971 and 1974 Soviet purchases of grain from the United States averaged 6 million tons annually.

Toyota Prices Rise

Detroit (AP) — Toyota raised suggested retail prices an average $195 of 5.2% for its 1976 cars and trucks.

$5.47 Billion Supplement Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford asked Congress on Tuesday for a supplemental appropriation of $5.472 billion for unemployment insurance programs through Sept. 30, 1977.

Of the sum, $5 billion would be in effect a loan to state unemployment funds and would not count against the federal budget deficit, an official at the Office of Management and Budget said.

The funds are needed, Ford said, for state unemployment insurance programs which have been depleted by high levels of unemployment during the recent economic recession.

A portion of the funds also would be paid directly by the federal government as its share of unemployment insurance benefits for ex-servicemen, federal employes and some other workers not covered by state unemployment compensation programs.

Some of the money also would be used for increased costs of administering state unemployment programs.

Exon Boosts Agri-Power For Good Of U.S. Dollar

"Agri-power, a new source of pride for the American farmer, will definitely add to the stability of the American dollar."

That prediction from Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon was made before a gathering of members of Alpha Tau Alpha, an agriculture honor fraternity on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus, Tuesday night.

Exon's remarks were delivered in the general support of expanded ag education through vocational agricluture programs in the state.

"There are presently only 137 voc-ag programs in the state with 150 instructors and 8,000 students," Exon noted. "There is a crying need for more teachers in this field which is filled with tremendous opportunity," he said.

"People have got to stand on their two feet and tell the story, especially the story of the young farmer," Exon said.

In expanding on this remark he told the group of a 30-minute documentary which he has had filmed for viewing in the large urban areas of the nation where "the working man has forgotten that less of his disposable income is being spent on food today than in 1921."

"We want the free enterprise system to work in agriculture, and it will if we can educate these people.

"Fence-row to fence-row production will work only if the federal government lets the farmer have freedom of marketing, and then free enterprise will prosper," Exon concluded.

Blue Angels To Show Off Flying Skills

The Blue Angels, the Navy's precision flying team, will appear at 2 p.m. Oct. 18 and 19 at the Lincoln Municipal Airport in commemoration of the Navy's 200th anniversary.

Each two-hour show will feature the Blue Angels' flying skills along with ground displays of aircraft. Free parking is available, and spectators will be required to be on the west side of the airfield.

The shows are sponsored by the Naval Recruiting Command and the Lincoln Navy League as part of the Lincoln-Lancaster County bicentennial celebration.

Man, 21, Hurt In Bike Crash

Timothy Ford, 21, of 1626 Sumner, was listed in good condition with a broken right shoulder at Lincoln General Hospital Tuesday night after his bicycle collided with a car on 17th between H and J Sts., police said.

Police said Ford was northbound on 17th when his bicycle collided with a northbound car making a left turn into a driveway. The car was driven by Helen M. Hestermann, 60, of rural Adams, police said.

More Jobs Needed

Knoxville, Tenn. (AP) — More jobs in the private sector and not expanded federal programs are what is needed for the nation's economic recovery, Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop said.

Husker Frosh Blank UNO Junior Varsity, 41-0

By DAVE SITTLER

Omaha — Toward the end of Tuesday night's Nebraska freshmen-UNO Junior Varsity contest, one may suggest UNO might have been wise to cancel the series after last season's initial contest between the two Nebraska schools.

The comment was in reference to the Cornhusker frosh's narrow 6-0 victory over the Mavericks here a year ago.

Expected to be as close a contest again this season, Coach Jim Ross' Cornhuskers ripped UNO 41-0, much to the surprise of a crowd of more than 4,000 who viewed the action at Al Caniglia Stadium.

"We came up here prepared for a tough game," Ross said. "We were lucky to get out of here alive last year.

"But it was one of those cases where we scored early and took advantage of some mistakes which really broke open the gates."

Just as they did while shutting out Kansas State 30-0 two weeks ago, the Cornhusker touchdowns came from a variety of players, with no one scoring more than once.

Former Lincoln High athlete. Mike Washington got Nebraska on the board with 6:09 left in the first stanza on a one-yard run.

Four out of the next five Nebraska scores came via turnovers by the Mavericks, who

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports

ended up committing seven key mistakes for the evening.

John Ingram, a 5-9, 170-pounder intercepted quarterback Lee Sapp's pass on the UNO 46-yard line. Returning it the 35, Ingram fumbled, but Nebraska linebacker John Ruud fell on the loose ball.

It took the Husker yearlings only five plays to score, with I-back Rich Berns getting the final three yards on a burst over left tackle.

UNO quickly turned the ball back to the Cornhuskers. On the second play following the touchdown, Maverick quarterback Bruce Perdue's pass was picked off by Nebraska defensive end Gordon Thiessen.

With a fourth and 18 situation and only two seconds remaining in the first quarter, Nebraska's Dean Sukup booted a 35-yard field goal to send the Huskers ahead 17-0.

Sukup, a walkon from Cozad, brought the crowd to its feet near the end of the third quarter when he nailed a 52-yard field goal attempt, setting a new Nebraska freshmen record.

"It started to tail right on me a little at the end but I thought it was good all the way," Sukup said of his record boot.

Sandwiched in between Sukup's booming kick, were touchdowns by Tim Smith, Paul Letcher and Ned Vail, to account for the final 41-0 margain.

Smith, a 6-3, 190-pound split end from Chula Vista, Calif., scored a 70-yard touchdown pass from former Lincoln Southeast quarterback Tim Hagen with 4:53 left in the second quarter.

A minute later, defensive back Paul Letcher, who played his high school ball at Lincoln Northeast, intercepted quarterback Scott Linder's pass and raced 37 yards for the score as Nebraska took a 31-0 halftime lead.

Vail, a walkon quarterback from Dixon, Ill., got the final Nebraska touchdown on a one-yard plunge with 13:16 remaining in the third quarter.

Sukup then booted his 52-yarder in addition to being a perfect four-out-of-four on extra point conversions.

"I think all the Omaha kids on our team were pumped up to win this one and got the rest of team up," Ross said. "But UNO was a hard-hitting bunch, much harder-hitting than Kansas State."

Nebraska was awesome on the ground, rolling up 302 yards rushing to only 88 for UNO.

Leading the way — as he did against Kansas State — was I-back Isiah Hipp, who gained 84 yards on 22 carries. Washington added 66, Berns 50, Dirk Bush 47 and Keith Steward 45 to the balanced attack.

The Cornhusker frosh next travel to Marshalltown, Ia. Oct. 18, to face Marshalltown Junior College.

Reds Defeat Pirates To Win NL Pennant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "He surprised me as much as anybody in the ballpark," said white-haired Sparky Anderson, manager of the 1975 National League champion Cincinnati Reds.

Anderson was talking about the two-strike bunt by outfielder Ken Griffey that set up the winning run in the 10th inning as the Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 and entered the World Series starting Saturday against the Boston Red Sox in Boston.

"All I wanted to do was keep it between the foul lines," said Griffey, who, according to Anderson hadn't bunted in the last two months. "I didn't care where it went as long as it was fair.

In a game of countless dramatic moments, it was Armbrister — an obscure utility player who had 12 hits and two RBI during the season—who wound up the hero.

"Sooner or later, I knew I was going to contribute," said Armbrister, surrounded for the first time in memory by a mob of questioning reporters. "I've been telling them all year it was going to be my turn in the playoffs."

Armbrister said the first pitch from loser Ramon Hernandez was a fastball and he just figured that the Pirates' reliever would come back with another. Hernandez obliged and Armbrister hit the fly that made the Reds National League champions.

Pittsburgh rookie John Candelaria, who pitched superb baseball for the Pirates, relaxed with a beer and seemed outwardly undismayed by a fine performance that just wasn't enough. He said: "Strikeouts don't mean anything. I could have struck out 20 but it wouldn't have meant anything if we lost."

Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh sat in his customary rocking chair, slowly moving back and forth.

"Candy did a helluva job for us, but the Reds showed tonight why they're a good ballclub," said Murtaugh. "They came back and got the big one they needed."

Hernandez said of his crucial balk in the 10th inning: "How could it be a balk? I pitched the same way I always pitched and I never had a balk in the big leagues."

It was a team finish to a game that had been a duel of home runs, highlighted by Candelaria's great performance and a last-of-the ninth rally by Pittsburgh that sent the game into extra innings.

Griffey had led off the 10th with an infield single in front of home plate, advanced to second on a balk by Ramon Hernandez and went to third when Cesar Geronimo grounded out.

Before the inning was over, Pete Rose, whose two-run homer in the eighth had given the Reds a brief 3-2 lead, singled to right and Joe Morgan doubled in the gap between Oliver and right fielder Dave Parker for an insurance run.

The Reds' victory took some of the lustre from a record-tying strikeout performance by young Pirates' pitcher John Candelaria. Candelaria had struck out 14 batters, tying the major league playoff record, before he was relieved in the eighth.

The mark was first set by Detroit's Joe Coleman in 1972. His performance broke the NL playoff mark set in the same year by New York's Tom Seaver.

The Pirates rallied for a game-tying run in the ninth but went down meekly in the bottom of the 10th against Cincinnati reliever Pedro Borbon. Rich Hebner struck out, Oliver grounded out and Willie Randolph also grounded out as the Reds raced from the field pounding each other on the back with their third pennant in the past five years under Manager Sparky Anderson.

Until Rose's shot over the left field fence silenced a crowd of 46,355 at Three Rivers Stadium, the 21-year-old Candelaria had allowed only one hit, but that too was a home run—by Dave Concepcion in the second inning.

The three-game wipeout of the Pirates in the best-of-five game series was only the second since the major league playoff system started in 1969. Ironically, the first, in 1970, was the Reds over the Pirates.

This was the third NL flag in the past five years under Anderson. In their six previous World Series appearances, the Reds won in 1919 over the infamous Chicago Black Sox and last in 1940 over the Detroit Tigers.

Kansas quarterback Nolan Cromwell, who has been the Big Eight back of the week for the past two weeks, will be a target Saturday for the Huskers' Black Shirts.

Red Sox Trip A's, 5-3, Win AL's Pennant

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox became the new champions of the American League Tuesday night because they played better baseball than he old champs—the Oakland A's.

"It was as simple as that," said A's manager Alvin Dark. "They outplayed us in everyway and they deserve to be champions."

This was after the Red Sox combined key hits from players who have been doing it all season long, a fine defensive play in left by old pro Carl Yastrzemski and 7 1-3 innings of fine pitching by Rick Wise into a 5-3 victory over the three-time World Champion A's.

There had been some concern over whether Yaz could play left field in spacious Oakland Coliseum, but it was his play in the eighth that cut down a growing A's rally and probably saved the day for the Red Sox, who completed a three-game sweep and won their first pennant since 1967.

"See, I told you I could play left field," Yaz said of his fine play "I don't believe even now we won the Series and I can't at all believe we swept them "

Yaz and Rico Petrocelli are the only remnnants of the 1967 championship club and they seemed a bit more appreciative of the victory than their younger teammates.

Denny Doyle, Carlton Fisk, Petrocelli and Cecil Cooper each drove in a run and the Red Sox picked up an insurance run on a wild pitch by reliever Paul Lindblad.

The A's, who had won division titles the last five years and the world title the last three with victories over the Reds. Mets and Dodgers, didn't go down without a fight, although it seemed foredoomed they could not beat the Red Sox, a fine team perfectly blended with veteran and young players.

Wise, pitching with nine days of rest, was tough on the A's, who lost all three games of the 1975 championship series. Wise, who won 19 games during the regular season, left in the eighth when the A's scored twice to close the gap to two runs.

Still, the former Phillies and Cardinals star, appearing in his first postseason play ever, held Oakland to six hits and one of the three runs off him was unearned.

Before the Series even began the A's were big favorites because they were the seasoned players and the Red Sox were mere upstarts. But it never turned out that way, because it was the A's who acted as if this was all very new to them.

In the first game loss to the Red Sox in Boston, the A's made four errors and in the second game defeat they were outmuscled although it was Oakland that had the big power hitters in Sal Bando, Reggie Jackson, Gene Tenace, Joe Rudi and Billy Williams.

In Tuesday night's loss, the Red Sox simply outplayed Oakland in every facet of the game, and as A's skipper Alvin Dark said, "we were outplayed every way. They were the better team and they deserve their victory."

Wise and Ken Holtzman, trying to come back on two days rest after being chased in the opener last Saturday, had the Red Sox stopped until the fourth when a two-base error in left field by Claudell Washington after two outs and a single by Petrocelli produced Boston's first run.

In the fifth, the Red Sox chased Holtzman, who simply ran out of gas. A double by Rick Burleson after one out started a three-run rally that proved decisive.

Doyle singled Burleson home after another out and a single by Carl Yastrzemski finished Holtzman Fisk greeted reliever Jim Todd with a single that scored Doyle and a wild pitch by Lindblad, who took over for Todd, got Yaz home.

Yaz proved a bigger hero in the eighth when the A's made a strong bid to overhaul the Red Sox.

Cesar Tovar started the rally for Oakland and went to second on a groundout and to third when Doyle fumbled a roller to second by Washington for an error. Bando scored Tovar with a hit to deep short and Washington scored on a long single to left by Jackson.

On the hit, Yaz dove for the ball and smothered it, preventing Bando from scoring and Jackson from winding up with a triple.

"That was the big play in the field," said winning manager Darrell Johnson. "If Yaz doesn't get that ball, they are only a run back and Jackson has to make it to third, but he didn't."

It was the ninth pennant in Red Sox history and the third since Tom Yawkey bought the club in 1932. In many ways, it could be the sweetest because no one figured the Red Sox could win a division flag let alone beat the World Champion A's three straight in the playoffs.

"Heck, we beat an awfully good ball club," said Johnson. "Forget the scores. The A's are as good a team as there is in baseball but right now I think we might be a bit better."

RATINGS

by Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

Class C-1

1—Plainview (5-0)
2—Centennial (4-1)
3—Wahoo Neumann (4-1)
4—O. Holy Name (3-1-1)
5—Battle Creek (5-0)
6—Oshkosh (4-1)
7—Norfolk Catholic (4-0)
8—Gibbon (4-0)
9—Fremont Bergan (3-2)
10—Wilber (4-1)

Comment — Neumann advances from sixth to third after handling Class B's previously unbeaten Platteview. Wilber replaces Geneva in top 10. Centennial hosts Class B Norris and Neumann hosts B unbeaten Columbus Scotus Friday.

Class C-2

1—Scribner (5-0)
2—Grant (4-1)
3—Alma (5-0)
4—O'Neill SM (4-0-1)
5—Cambridge (5-0)
6—Pleasanton (5-0)
7—Friend (4-0-1)
8—Ponca (5-0)
9—Henderson (3-0-2)
10—Neb. City Lourdes (4-0-1)

Comment — Ponca surfaces for the first time this season. It has recorded five consecutive shutouts. No. 5 Cambridge also has five shutouts, but three have been against Class D schools. Nebraska City Lourdes is another ratings newcomer.

Class D

1—Alliance St. Agnes (5-0)
2—Nelson (4-0-1)
3—Lawrence (4-1)
4—Callaway (5-0)
5—Fairmont (3-1)
6—Homer (4-0)
7—Loomis (5-0)
8—Wolbach (3-1)
9—Falls City SH (2-1-1)
10—Oxford (3-2)

Comment — Fairmont advances while Oxford slides. Wolbach and Falls City Sacred Heart re-enter top 10 as Shickley and Sterling exit. Top matchups Friday are Clay Center at Lawrence and Fairmont at Polk.

Eight-Man

1—Adams (5-0)
2—Elgin (5-0)
3—Ruskin (5-0)
4—Shelby (5-0)
5—Sidney St. Pat's (5-0)
6—Davenport (4-1)
7—Giltner (4-1)
8—Harrisburg (5-0)
9—Wheatland (5-1)
10—Odell (4-0)

Comment — Davenport makes first ratings appearance after toppling previously second-ranked Giltner, 28-20. Davenport's only loss is to No. 3 Ruskin. High-scoring and unbeaten Trumbull has top 10 opportunity Friday night in game at Giltner.

Osborne, Kiffin Busy Preparing For Kansas

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin has his hands full this week preparing Nebraska's defensive unit for the wishbone offense run by the Kansas Jayhawks.

Head coach Tom Osborne, on the other hand, is faced with helping his offensive coaches prepare for a Kansas defensive unit which last week limited Wisconsin to a single touchdown and the week before shutout Oregon State.

The two teams will be getting together at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Memorial Stadium to open the Big Eight Conference season.

"They're a basic 5-2 front on defense and they don't do anything unusual from a technical standpoint," Osborne said of the Kansas team which has yielded just 35 points for an 8.8 average per game — tops in the Big Eight.

"We'll just have to beat them man-on-man more than some people have so far," he added. "Their defense has been surprisingly strong. They limited Wisconsin to seven points and Wisconsin has been moving the ball throughout the year. They gained almost 400 yards on Missouri."

The Jayhawks, who already have won more (three) games than most people predicted, have a big defensive unit, both on the line and in the secondary. It's a young unit except in the secondary where seniors are cornerbacks Eddie Lewis (6-0, 170) and Steve Taylor (6-4, 210), linebacker Rich Kovatch (6-2, 225), and strong safety Kurt Knoff (6-3, 200).

Knoff is the most celebrated of the group, having made one All-American team last season and earning All-Big Eight selection. He's a three-year starter.

Across the front five, Coach Bud Moore starts a freshman (Franklin King), two sophomores (Tom Dinkel and Jim Emerson) and two juniors (Steve Jones and Mike Butler). The other starter is junior linebacker Terry Beeson.

"Our defense played an excellent game, especially in the second half, at Wisconsin," Moore said. "They turned the ball over to the offense several times in good field position."

In four games, Kansas has yielded just three touchdowns (two of them in the fourth quarter), and 1,016 yards total offense in 291 plays, a meager average of 3.4 yards per play.

The defense had to carry the Jayhawks early because of an inexperienced offensive line, a new offensive system, and a new quarterback in Nolan Cromwell.

In the only loss to Washington State (18-14), the KU offense lost three fumbles, gained only 210 yards in total offense and ran just 53 plays to 81 by Washington State. That put pressure on the defense.

The shutout against Oregon State caused Beaver coach Dee Andros to comment: "They're a helluva defensive team. We were getting beat up front. We moved the ball better against Southern California."

Against USC, Orgon State controlled the ball for 77 plays to the Trojans' 65, but against Kansas had it for only 58 plays to KU's 77.

Wahoo Neumann's Grid Fortunes Changed

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

John Lawlor arrived at Wahoo Neumann three years ago.

He had coached five years at Norfolk Catholic and three at Pender, then spent a year attending law school at Creighton.

"I was broke," he recalls, "so I got back in the business."

Friends might have wondered why. Neumann is what's known in the high school sports world as a perennial loser. Since it first opened its doors in 1964, it's been stuck with that unwanted tag.

Not that Neumann hasn't earned it. Before this season, the Wahoo Catholic school had won only seven football games in six years.

In 11 years of football, Neumann had only 23 wins to show for it. That's an average of only two wins a year.

One Winning Season

There's been only one winning season (6-3 in 1967) in more than a decade. There's been two years when Neumann didn't win a game (0-9 in 1969 and 1972).

Lawlor knew what it was like. That winless '72 club was his first at Neumann.

Work needed to be done, he says. There was no freshman football program. Lawlor started one. There was no weight room. Lawlor saw to it there was one.

Three years and five wins later, Neumann is reaping the benefits of a faster-paced program. It's off to a fast 4-1 start and ranks third behind Plainview and Centennial in the Sunday Journal and Star's Class C-1 ratings.

It has beaten three Class B teams — North Bend (42-7), Omaha Paul VI (20-14) and last week conquered then unbeaten and rated Platteview (32-8).

Equally impressive is Neumann's 33-7 handling of fellow Class C-rated Fremont Bergan. Its only blemish is a 20-18 loss to Class B David City Aquinas.

"I thought we might smoke out some people after last week," Lawlor says of his team's win over Platteview. "Things are getting pretty lively around here. People are starting to notice.

"If we can do the unbelievable this weekend (I really don't like to call it that because it is possible), then we'll really be over the hump," says Lawlor.

Neumann faces its stiffest challenge yet Friday night, hosting Columbus Scotus, Class B's fourth-rated unbeaten powerhouse.

"Objectively," Lawlor assesses, "we have better people in two or three positions and Scotus has the rest. They have more speed and more depth, but there's not that big difference like there has been.

"Before," he adds, "we had just been mauled by Bergan and Platteview, then tried to get ready for Scotus. This year, it's different."

"We haven't really been that bad the last two years," he insists. "We've almost been there, but just haven't been able to pull ourselves over."

Although Neumann is pointing towards Scotus in a big way, Lawlor also has his sights set on the following week's match against Omaha Cathedral.

A win there likely would give Neumann the American division title in the Centennial Conference and a league playoff berth.

Conference Titles

His teams at Norfolk Catholic and Pender earned conference championships and he'd like to make it a sweep.

If he does, maybe the trophy should go to the small town of Weston. Lawlor estimates that 80 per cent of Neumann's football team is from there.

"We also draw from Malmo and bus some in from Prague," he points out.

People in those communities should stand up and be recognized. Neumann's not a loser anymore.

Ficken's Running Boosts Davenport

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Coaches, players and fans aren't the only ones talking about Kelly Ficken's performance for Davenport last weekend against Giltner.

The school's administration is equally excited about the senior halfback's determination.

Davenport superintendent Jim Heller nominated Ficken for the Sunday Journal and Star's prep Player of the Week award for his role in a 28-20 win over Giltner, then unbeaten and the state's second-ranked eight-man team.

"He's an athlete who gives his team 100 per cent every game," says Heller. "He's beat to a pulp after every game."

In helping Devenport land an eight-man rating, Ficken rushed for 249 yards and a 13.2 per carry average against Giltner.

Heller points out that Ficken's 42-yard touchdown produced a 6-6 tie in the first half. "Then, on a third and long situation midway through the third quarter, he had a 71-yard touchdown to tie it again, 20-20."

Ficken sprinted 54 yards for a touchdown midway through the fourth quarter to complete the upset.

"He also intercepted a pass on his own 10-yard line with 51 seconds left in the game to keep us from a possible tie," Heller says of Ficken.

"He's an elusive runner," evaluates Heller, former football coach at Mead. "He's hard to bring down. He gets hit, then comes out of the pile.

"He's also got a nose for the football," adds Heller. "He's averaging 15 tackles a game (five unassisted) and he plays safety. He's very deserving of recognition."

Ficken was a second team Class D all-state basketball selection last winter after averaging more than 30 points a game.

Others who'll receive Player of the Week cards include:

Gary Hager, Lincoln Southeast — Junior split end caught 11 passes for 91 yards, one touchdown and conversion and also intercepted a pass in Knights' third straight win, 14-6, over Lincoln High.

Phil Swenson, Bellevue — Senior 227-pound tight end, who lost his starting job two weeks ago, came off the bench in the second half to catch a 13-yard touchdown pass in Chieftans' 7-0 win over then No. 1 Omaha Benson.

Mark Wittler, Fairbury — Senior quarterback ran, passed, punted and placekicked Jeffs to 20-13 upset win over Crete. His 45-yard pass interception touchdown in the fourth quarter was the difference.

Mike Delka, Superior — Wildcat I-back played only three quarters in lopsided win over Hastings Adams Central, but amassed 293 yards rushing, including touchdown sprints of 20, 23, 60 and 85 yards.

Junior Hohensee, Norris — Senior back rushed for 178 yards on 19 carries and scored on runs of 8 and 51 yards in team's 25-9 win over Wymore Southern. He also led Norris in tackles with nine solos and seven assists and recovered a fumble.

Rick Weitzel, Mitchell — Only 5-7 and 130 pounds, he had an outstanding game at defensive back in 28-12 win over Morrill. He finished with seven solo tackles, six assists, intercepted a pass and recovered a fumble. He also scored a touchdown.

Kevin Bomar, Norfolk Catholic — Senior linebacker is leading tackler for unbeaten Class C-1 team. So far, he's blocked two punts and averaged 12 tackles a game. In last two victories, he's been credited with 33 tackles, two fumble recoveries and an interception for a touchdown.

Gary Ernest, Hastings St. Cecilia — Junior fullback sparked team's first win to the season with 168 yards rushing on 26 carries and two touchdowns against Raymond Central. He's played every position in the St. Cecilia backfield since his brother, Ron, broke a collerbone in the first game.

Stuart Kozal, Rushville — In consecutive wins over Crawford and Hemingford, junior back has rushed for 372 yards rushing on only 19 carries, an almost 20-yard per carry average. He also hit 9 of 14 passes for 131 more yards and a touchdown.

Leroy Klipp, Fairmont — Senior halfback rushed for 106 yards on 19 carries and scored three touchdowns, one on a 50-yard pass interception, as Class D-rated team defeated Shickley, 32-12.

Bob Hutsell, Hampton — Senior halfback, just 5-6 and 130, rushed for 165 yards on 25 carries and scored two touchdowns in 30-12 win over McCool Junction. It was his third straight 100-plus yard rushing performance since moving from blocking back.

Chuck Sukovaty, Hayes Center — Threw a 25-yard scoring pass and was credited with 10 tackles in team's 14-12 Southern Frontier Conference win over previously unbeaten Eustis.

Matt Tabke, Maxwell — Senior halfback scored 28 of team's 29 points in a 29-20 win over Mullen. Finished with 132 yards rushing on 26 carries, caught two passes for 51 yards and was credited with 11 solo tackles and six assists.

Offense Lead To Hastings

Kearney — All Nebraska college teams have now won this year after Concordia dumped Dana Saturday night. And all teams have lost as least one after Midland raced past Hastings.

Conference races begin in earnest this week as the Nebraska College Conference and Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference teams play one another.

In team offense Hastings retains the lead, although Midland held the Broncos to a minus 7 yards rushing. Wayne used a romp past Dakota State to jump into second spot. Midland still remains the rushing leader while Hastings leads in passing.

Kansas Switches Turner

By Associated Press

Linebacker Jeff Turner was switched to noseguard for the injured Dennis Balagna as the Kansas football team prepared Tuesday for Nebraska.

Balagna suffered a severe ankle sprain in the Wisconsin game, and was a doubtful starter.

Coach Bud Moore also said he hasn't made a decision whether to take John O'Rear or Bob Swift to Lincoln as punter.

Wide receiver Richard McAuliffe is still out with a shoulder injury, and Waddell Smith has been starting for him.

Oklahoma

Oklahoma head coach Barry Switzer announced Tuesday that starting fullback Jim Littrell would not play Saturday when the Sooners take on the Texas Longhorns in the Cotton Bowl.

"Jim can't practice and won't be able to play this weekend," said Switzer.

"Junior Jim Culbreath will take his place and Horace Ivory reserve right halfback will back him up."

The Sooners worked mainly on the Texas defensive front Tuesday, a defense different from any they've faced in four games this season.

Texas uses an eight man front requiring different offensive blocking schemes.

Missouri

Tony Galbreath, stellar running back who missed Missouri's game against Michigan because of an injury, worked out with the Tigers Tuesday and coach Al Onofrio termed it a "pleasant surprise."

Galbreath first went on the field without pads but ran so well, Onorfrio said, he was sent back to don full gear.

Defensive tackle Keith Morrisey, who also missed the Michigan game, worked out despite a sore knee.

Kansas State

Injuries have forced some position changes in the Kansas State backfield, coach Ellis Rainsberger announced Tuesday.

Reserve fullback Jim Couch has a sprained knee and Rainsberger said KSU probably will apply for a hardship case on the senior, who probably won't play again this season.

Tailback Roscoe Scobey has been moved to backup fullback, Rainsberger said, and the tailback post is "up for grabs."

Offensive tackle Mark Zier and offensive guard Shelby Henderson also are on the injury list.

Candelaria Respected By Reds

Pittsburgh (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds became National League champions Tuesday night but not before gaining an immense amount of respect for young John Candelaria.

"Make no mistake about it," said Joe Morgan, "that kid pitched one helluva game. I never thought he was so overpowering before. I had never faced him — only saw him in batting practice."

Candelaria, the 21-year-old rookie from Brooklyn, N.Y., whom Pirates' manager Danny Murtaugh entrusted with stopping the Reds' sweep, struck out a major league playoff-tying record 14 batters before finally succumbing to a two-run homer by Pete Rose in the eighth.

"That's probably the greatest performance by a lefty against us all year," said Rose. "He really made only two bad pitches."

"It was an inside pitch he threw to me," Rose said. "I know he didn't want to get it in there. I wasn't trying for a homer but rather hoped I could hit a double off the wall."

Morgan, who was injured and out of the lineup the only times Candelaria faced the Reds this year, said he felt the young southpaw probably fell victim to all the pressure put on him. "He was revved up and ready to go — really over powering," Morgan said. "But I think in the eighth, he just kind of began to feel the strain."

Although Rose's homer finished Candelaria for the night, the cool youngster could not be blamed for the Pirates' ultimate defeat which came in the 10th inning when the Reds pushed across the winning runs. Ed Armbrister drove home the first run by delivering a pinch hit sacrifice fly.

"All I was thinking up there was 'get a piece of it,' Armbrister said. "I wanted to bring Ken (Griffey) home from third and once I got the butterflies out of my stomach, I knew I'd hit the ball somewhere to do just that."

Red Sox Effort Praised By A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — The expletives were not deleted in the Oakland dressing room Tuesday night but they were subdued by a saddened group of ex-champions.

"I feel sad," said A's third baseman and captain Sal Bando. "But they played better than we did and deserved every bit of it. I will be rooting for them in the Series. I think they will go all the way. They are a very good club and I wish them the best."

Most of his team mates agreed, as did Oakland manager Alvin Dark.

"They outplayed us," Dark said "I think the Red Sox can do it. They played just great against us. They just played great baseball."

"The Red Sox are red hot," said Reggie Jackson. "They are really hot. And I don't care who they say is the most valuable player. There is nobody plays that outfield like that (Carl) Yastrzemski. Nobody has thrown me out better than he has. He just took charge of that field and did everything."

Outfielder Bill North, who went hitless in the series, also had high praise for Yastrzemski.

"Yaz gave every ounce," he said. "I hit the ball as good as I could but it was their defense, led by Yaz, that shut us off. They just shut down our offense. Everything I hit—and that goes for Campy and Claudell Washington too—they just took. Do you realize that the three of us did not steal a base during the series. You can't steal first, you know. It was definitely their defense that did it."

It was a quiet dressing room, but there was no bitterness. The A's went out in three, but they went out like champions—three-time champions.

Their heads were high, they had praise for the excellence of their opposition and they knew they had given their best effort.

Second baseman Phil Garner expressed their determination by quietly repeating the old cliche—"Wait 'til next year."

Johnson Defends Removing Wise

OAKLAND (UPI) — "I thought I did it just right," Darrell Johnson said Tuesday night after his Boston Red Sox advanced to the World Series with a 5-3 victory over the Oakland A's.

Johnson, a highly successful minor league manager but only in his second season at the Red Sox helm, was talking about the key eighth inning when he took out starter Rick Wise and brought in fireballer Dick Drago.

With Boston leading by four runs, the A's began a rally that saw them close to within the final margin with one out, runners on first and third and the go-ahead run at the plate in the person of Joe Rudi.

That's when Johnson made his move. He waved in Drago and the usually hard-throwing righthander changed his strategy and went with a sinker.

It worked as Rudi hit the first pitch into a double play to end the inning and move the Red Sox to within three outs of returning to the World Series for the first time since 1967.

"Of course, I was trying to get Rudi to hit into a double play," Drago said. "It was a one-shot pitch, a sinker low and away. I threw it where I wanted it and he hit it where we wanted it. That's all there was to it.

"But let me tell you, it was like a lifetime out there. The whole game seemed like an eternity."

Wise wasn't particularly displeased about being taken out.

"I can't blame the manager," the bespectacled pitcher said. "They were rallying and they had their power hitter up. It was the right move and it paid off. That's what counts.

"I wasn't particularly tired, but I wanted to make sure we won. I was disappointed I didn't win 20 games during the regular season (he finished at 19-11) so I told my friends and teammates that the 20th win would be the one that put us in the world series. I was right."

Johnson came to Wise's defense. "We booted the ball around the infield (an error and a close play at first), so it wasn't his fault. I just felt it was time to bring in a fresh horse. All I know is that Rick went out there and pitched well. We've excelled all year long so I knew we could do it."

East Spikers Extend Skein

The Lincoln East volleyball team, behind the 15 point performance of Debbie Gade downed Lincoln High, 7-15, 15-10 and 15-11 to extend the East winning streak to 16 games in a row.

Debbie Van Dusen scored 14 points for the losers.

The Lincoln High reserves kept a winning streak of their own going by scoring a 15-9, 15-9 win over the East reserves.

Lincoln East, now 7-0 on the season, will face Fremont at 6:30 Thursday at East High.

Rocket Girls Trip Southeast

Northeast's girls' volleyball team upped its record to 4-2 Tuesday night downing Southeast 15-13, 15-13 at the Rocket gym.

Pam Samuelson paced the winner's attack scoring seven points while Southeast was led by Janet Llewellyn's 11 points.

The Knights won the reserve match 13-15, 16-14, 15-12.

Big Eight Race Tough

"It's going to take an awfully good football team to win the Big Eight Conference championship," Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said Tuesday after putting his Cornhuskers through a day of preparations for Saturday's league opener against Kansas.

"Maybe the champion won't be undefeated, but whoever wins it will be deserving of the national championship," he said. "And, maybe because we beat each other in the conference, the national championship will go to someone else."

The Big Eight's stature already has been proven with just two non-conference games remaining. League teams have posted a 26-4 record with outsiders for an all-time record. The best previous mark was 25-6-1 in 1973.

The four losses have come at the hands of Michigan, Texas A & M, UCLA and Washington State. All but WSU have been ranked in the top ten at one time or another this year.

Oklahoma, which plays Texas in Dallas on Saturday, and Colorado, which visits Miami of Florida Friday night, could become upset victims in the final two non-league contests.

The Buffaloes have to be deflated after coming so close against the Sooners. If the Miami loss to Nebraska didn't take too much out of Carl Selmer's team, the Hurricanes have enough ability to win. And they always play well in the Orange Bowl.

Ball Control For NU

When you think of ball-control football teams you think of those clubs that don't throw the ball much and grind it out on the ground.

Well, Nebraska mixed rushes with passes (19 of them) last Saturday against Miami and still had an amazing control of the ball, both timewise and playwise.

For example, from the time Vince Ferragamo came in at quarterback to start the second half until he had directed the Huskers to a 31-9 lead with 5:46 to play, Nebraska had controlled the ball 18 minutes, 21 seconds to Miami's 5:53.

Even with things not going well for Terry Luck in the first half, the Huskers had the ball 16:32 to Miami's 13:28 in the first 30 minutes. The game total was 36:50 for NU to 23:10 for Miami.

Playwise, Nebraska has had a big edge in every game, leading LSU 78-53, Indiana 91-53, TCU 93-59 and Miami 84-62.

With the passing mixed with rushing against Miami, the game was more exciting than the three-yards and a cloud of dust style of Ohio State.

Three yards and a cloud of dust, incidentally, equals fourth down and one.

Catching Up On Sports

Randy Lessman, Nebraska's junior punter from Sioux City, Ia , got off his worst kick of the season, 22 yards into the wind to open the game last Saturday, but he finished the afternoon with a 43.7 yard average on seven boots.

That brought his season average on 21 punts to 41.4 yards a punt. He averaged 37.9 last year on 44 kicks.

Opponents have returned punts just six punts a total of eight yards as a result of the fine height and distance Lessman is getting.

Third and fourth down conversions: It's always interesting to see how quarterbacks do in converting third down plays into first downs. Terry Luck is 33 of 54 and Vince Ferragamo is 14 of 19.

Until last Saturday, Nebraska's game against Stanford in the Rose Bowl in 1941 had brought out the record crowd to see a Big Eight team (91,000). The Missouri-Michigan game in Ann Arbor drew 104,578. The only way the Huskers could get the record back would be to play at Michigan or go back to the Rose Bowl, which drew 106,721 last Jan. 1.

Speaking of punting again, despite Lessman's hefty average, there are three Big Eight kickers with better marks: Cliff Parsley of Oklahoma State 44.2, Jim Goble of Missouri, 42.00, and Tinker Owens of Oklahoma, 41.8.

Huskers Defense No. 2

From News Wires

The Nebraska football team remained second in rushing and total defense in the nation behind Texas A&M in this week's weekly NCAA statistics.

The fifth-ranked Texas Longhorns continue to dominate the NCAA's offensive statistics for major colleges this week by leading the nation in total offense, rushing offense and scoring.

The Longhorns have gained 1,580 yards rushing in four games for an average of 465.7 yards total offense. Colorado, the No. 12 team, follows the Longhorns with 1,756 yards and 15 touchdowns and Arizona State is third with 1,726 yards.

Texas is far ahead of second-ranked Oklahoma in scoring offense. The Longhorns have totaled 177 points while Oklahoma has 149 points. Nebraska is third with 142 points.

Buckeyes Vault To Top

From News Wires

Woody Hayes, perhaps mindful of the experiences of his last three Ohio State squads, terms the Buckeyes' selection as the nation's No. 1 college football power "a rather precarious one now."

Nebraska retained No. 4 while Texas jumped two spots to fifth. Texas A&M stayed in sixth and Alabama moved from ninth to seventh. Michigan rode a victory over Missouri from 12th to eighth.

Penn State moved from 10th to ninth and prepares to meet No. 10 West Virginia in an Eastern showdown Saturday.

Told of Ohio State's ranking after a coaches' meeting Tuesday, Hayes responded, "That means everybody will be pointing harder at us.

"I feel like the fellow who was tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail. He said if it weren't for the honor, he would just have soon walked."

It marked the third consecutive season the Big Ten power has been No. 1. The Buckeyes paced the rankings for eight weeks before a 10-10 tie at Michigan in 1973. Last fall, Michigan State ambushed them 16-13, costing them the national lead.

Did Hayes learn from those games?

"You always learn something from games like those," replied Hayes in a deserted team meeting room. "The thing you have to do is have consistency. And it's nearly impossible to maintain consistency for 11 games."

Hayes has called the current Ohio State schedule, especially the first part, the toughest of his 25 seasons with the Buckeyes. Victims have been Michigan State, Penn State, North Carolina and UCLA.

"This team has played as well as any I've had up to this point," said the coach of three national champions. "I think the tougher schedule helped. They were under the gun from the very start.

Colorado jumped four positions to 12th after the close fight with the Sooners.

Texas didn't hurt itself with its 61-7 rout of Utah State; the 4-0 Longhorns jumped two places to fifth as previous No. 5 Missouri fell out of the top 10 with their 31-7 shellacking by Michigan.

Texas A&M, 4-0, remained sixth with a 10-0 shutout of stubborn Kansas State and got the last No. 1 designation; when Notre Dame lost to Michigan State 10-3, it knocked the Fighting Irish out of the top 10 as well and let Alabama, Penn State, Oklahoma State and Michigan climb into the top 10. The Crimson Tide, 3-1, climbed up two places to Seventh, the Nittany Lions, 4-1, and 4-0 Cowboys — the third Big Eight team to achieve top 10 ranking this week — moved up one spot each to ninth and 10th, respectively, and the Wolverines' decisive victory, boosting them to 2-0-2, sent them into eighth, six places higher than a week ago.

Missouri is 18th and Kansas, also a newcomer, is 20th, the sixth Big Eight team to make the top 20.

Elrod Wins National Honor

FOOTBALL

Oklahoma defensive end Jimbo Elrod was selected as The Associated Press' national lineman of the week for his efforts in the Sooners' 21-20 win over Colorado. Elrod had 19 tackles against the Buffs including two for losses totaling 11 yards.

Kansas quarterback Nolan Cromwell was the unanimous choice as the Big Eight Conference offensive player for the second consecutive week. Cromwell, a safety turned quarterback, gained 187 yards in 20 carries and scored two touchdowns in the Jayhawks' 41-7 upset of Wisconsin. Cromwell beat out five other players including Nebraska quarterback Vince Ferragamo.

The WFL, faced with an attendance problem it has so far found insurmountable, is considering asking four of its 10 clubs to take a 40 per cent pay cut.

Controversy was settled over the starting time of Saturday's nationally-televised Michigan-Michigan State game. If Boston hosts the World Series' first game Saturday, the football game, televised on ABC, will start at 3:10 p.m., EDT. If the first Series game is in Oakland, the kickoff will stay at 12:50 p.m., EDT.

Quarterback Virgil Carter, who was sent packing from the Chicago Bears in 1969 after making a vulgar remark about the organization, will be given a tryout with the team, the Bears announced.

The Houston Oilers cut wide receiver Elmo Wright from their roster and added receiver Nate Hawkins, whom they cut Sept. 2.

Richard Wood, a rookie linebacker with the New York Jets, pleaded guilty to theft, the charges stemming from use of a stolen airplane ticket last January.

BASEBALL

Joe Morgan of Cincinnati and Tom Seaver of New York have been voted National League player and pitcher of the year in a poll of NL players conducted by the Sporting News, the publication announced.

The Cincinnati Reds announced that all World Series tickets have been sold and are in the mail for the games scheduled in Riverfront Stadium Oct. 14, 15 and 16.

Texas Ranger general manager Danny O'Brien told the Spokane Daily Chronicle that the ballclub's affiliation with the Spokane Indians AAA team will last as long as owner "Bill Cutler wants it to last."

BASKETBALL

Clemson basketball coach Bill Foster said the three-year probation handed down by the NCAA against the Tigers could bring his team together and result in a good team. The probation resulted from basketball recruiting violations by former head coach Tates Locke and other officials.

Morning Briefing

A Sports Roundup

TENNIS

Two challenge matches featuring Jimmy Connors will be played in Las Vegas within the next four months, it was learned. Connors will team with Chris Evert to play a mixed doubles match against Billy Jean King and Marty Riessen at Caesar's Palace Dec. 6. On Feb. 28, Connors will meet either Manuel Orantes of Spain or Vitas Gerulaitas in a match that could net Connors up to $750,000.

Third-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania and fourth-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden won their matches in the second round of the $75,000 Madrid Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Two Granted Extra Season

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference announced Tuesday that an additional year of eligibility has been granted two athletes under the hardship rule.

The two are Frank Perbeck, track and field athlete at Kansas State, and Jeremiah Daugherty, a gymnast at Kansas.

The league's governing body also increased from 26 to 27 the number of basketball games its teams can schedule during the regular season.

Exon Boosts Agri-Power For Good Of U.S. Dollar

"Agri-power, a new source of pride for the American farmer, will definitely add to the stability of the American dollar."

That prediction from Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon was made before a gathering of members of Alpha Tau Alpha, an agriculture honor fraternity on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus, Tuesday night.

Exon's remarks were delivered in the general support of expanded ag education through vocational agriculture programs in the state.

"There are presently only 137 voc-ag programs in the state with 150 instructors and 8,000 students," Exon noted. "There is a crying need for more teachers in this field which is filled with tremendous opportunity," he said.

"People have got to stand on their two feet and tell the story, especially the story of the young farmer," Exon said.

In expanding on this remark he told the group of a 30-minute documentary which he has had filmed for viewing in the large urban areas of the nation where "the working man has forgotten that less of his disposable income is being spent on food today than in 1921."

"We want the free enterprise system to work in agriculture, and it will if we can educate these people.

"Fence-row to fence-row production will work only if the federal government lets the farmer have freedom of marketing, and then free enterprise will prosper," Exon concluded.

Blue Angels To Show Off Flying Skills

The Blue Angels, the Navy's precision flying team, will appear at 2 p.m. Oct. 18 and 19 at the Lincoln Municipal Airport in commemoration of the Navy's 200th anniversary.

Each two-hour show will feature the Blue Angels' flying skills along with ground displays of aircraft. Free parking is available, and spectators will be required to be on the west side of the airfield.

The shows are sponsored by the Naval Recruiting Command and the Lincoln Navy League as part of the Lincoln-Lancaster County bicentennial celebration.

Man, 21, Hurt In Bike Crash

Timothy Ford, 21, of 1626 Sumner, was listed in good condition with a broken right shoulder at Lincoln General Hospital Tuesday night after his bicycle collided with a car on 17th between H and J Sts., police said.

Police said Ford was northbound on 17th when his bicycle collided with a car making a left turn into a driveway. The car was driven by Helen M. Hestermann, 60, of rural Adams, police said.

More Jobs Needed

Knoxville, Tenn. (AP) — More jobs in the private sector and not expanded federal programs are what is needed for the nation's economic recovery, Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop said.

BY FIRESTONE

1. RANDOLPH-ST. TERESA AREA

Special features in this two bedroom home include central air, lots of cupboard space, finished family room in basement, plus ¾ bath and room for two more bedrooms. Possibility of loan assumption.

2. OUTSTANDING

Split Level, beautifully situated in Wedgewood. Everything this home has to offer is better than new. Completely finished lower level with bar, professionally landscaped yard, and a fantastic covered deck make this a one in a million home.

3. MINI-ACREAGE

This cute and clean two bedroom home is sitting in the middle of three tree shaded lots in Alvo. Very low taxes and school bus stops at the corner. A perfect home for the young family or retired. Priced in the teens.

4. BEAUTIFULLY DIFFERENT

Is what you'll think when you step into this brand new split level home in Colonial Hills. The construction is top-notch and the fireplace and unusual decorations will make you proud to call this "your home".

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Wednesday

At the Track: Sagittarius jockeys get racing luck, find openings. Scorpio jockeys are likely to bring in favorites, while Leo riders are up on long-shot winners. If born under Sagittarius, stick with number 4. Cancer might win with number 8. Libra could show a profit with number 2.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on journeys, studies, long-distance communications. Be parepared for change, travel, variety. Gemini, Virgo persons could be very much in picture. Creative activity, including writing, is favored. Event occurs which leads to greater fulfillment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money you thought was "lost" finds its way to you. Emphasis is on investment, tax relief, financial status of partner, mate. Purchase of luxury or home item could be on your schedule. Art object, coin or precious stone might be featured.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on publicity, public relations, special arrangements, agreements — and marital status. See in light of actuality. Don't imagine that others will automatically live up to expectations. Delegating too many duties could lead to embarrassing situation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Practical matters dominate. Don't attempt to skip basic issues. Remember work-health resolutions. Keep appointments, including medical-dental. Older individual is willing lend benefit of experience. Pride should not be permitted to block progress.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Youngster who is precocious wants to be guided but won't admit it. You are in position to get favorable attention, to also be recognized for past efforts. Aries, Libra could figure prominently. You get what you deserve — and it may be better than anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ideas can be solidified. You get chance to express yourself in independent, creative manner. Key is to let go, to be honest, to get to heart of matters. Now you can imprint your own style. Know it, do it and be sure about it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relatives may make claims all at once. Key is to maintain balance and humor. Short trips, messages, calls are on agenda. Hunch plays important role. Intuitive intellect cannot be ignored. Money and past commitments combine to play major role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on collection, payment, recovery of what was apparently lost. Money, dividends, interest rates command more attention than usual. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in picture. You learn about costs, potential and what can be expected in form of returns from investment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on independence, originality, new starts in new directions. Personality, personal appearance — these are spotlighted. You are now able to shake off restrictive influences. You will be free and creative!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What occurs is mostly subtle, clandestine, behind the scenes. Gemini, Virgo and Libra figure prominently. You gain access to "privileged information." You learn about hidden factors, what can be expected, what will continue to be "buried."

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on friends, hopes, wishes, ability to recognize real allies. Separate fair-weather friends from those who actually care about your welfare. Taurus, Libra persons figure in important ways. You get accolade, gift — or kiss.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on career, dealings with one who is a perfectionist. Another Pisces — and a Virgo — figure prominently. Your standing is elevated. You handle additional duties but reward factor also is greater.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are capable of organizing, of getting priorites in order. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. In November, you might change residence, you make adjustments at home. You are capable of combining artistic and practical efforts — you help people understand their own creative powers. If single, next year could be your marriage year.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Inmates May Go To Omaha YWCA

Omaha (UPI) — The Douglas County Board Tuesday authorized a staff-study on the feasibility of moving women inmates to the old YWCA facilities in central Omaha.

A study showing substandard conditions at the current women's facility at 11th and Dodge was presented to the board two weeks ago, and at that time, Commissioner Michael Albert said conditions for female prisoners were "inhumane and atrocious."

At present the third floor of the YWCA house is being used as a dormitory for work release inmates from the Nebraska Women's Reformatory in York. The board's study will seek to determine whether the back unit containing 26 rooms could be used to house the 14 women now at 11th and Dodge.

Board Chairman George Buglewicz, who also heads the board's corrections committee, noted the Henry Doorly Zoo recently constructed a $2 million facility to house members of the cat family.

"They're spending $2 million for a cat house at the zoo," Buglewicz said, "and we're housing humans in conditions less than that."

Robert Venable, a former inmate at the county's Clearview Release Center in Omaha, said conditions for male inmates were "just as bad" as those for women.

Albert responded, "Your concern is an important one, but there's no question that females housed together are in just as atrocious conditions" as those of male inmates.

On another matter, Buglewicz said he would attempt to tighten the gap between the physical and mental emphasis placed on tests for county corrections officers.

Mrs. Phyllis Seigel of Omaha has complained to the board that "discrepancies" exists in sheriff's merit commission requirements for corrections officers and has filed a sex discrimination suit against the County Corrections Department."

On Sept. 22, Mrs. Seigel told the board a "perfect score" on the broad jump, for example, could be between 50 and 100 points and questioned if the point score depended on the "whim of the scorer."

Mrs. Seigel said the most points she could earn for "brains" was 130, while she could earn 515 points for "brawn."

Dr. Gaylen Kutchel, a Nebraska-Omaha corrections consultant to the board, defended the 70% physical-30% mental test score ratio. He said there may be a situation where a corrections officer has to "enter into a combative situation with a person in his custody."

Mrs. Seigel was in the audience, but didn't comment. Buglewicz told Kutchel, however, "We can't tell you what to do, but I for one will attempt to make that change so that mental agility does outweigh physical agility."

Mrs. Seigel had further complained about receiving a notice for the test shortly before it was held. Kutchel said he couldn't remember "exactly" when the notices went out, but he said the test notices were all mailed at the same time.

He said it was "conceivable" that Mrs. Seigel had only four days notice "but then so did the others."

Rod Owners Keep Body Maker Busy

Gibbon (AP) — Dwight Bond, 29, has a new idea for an old business.

He manufactures fiberglass replicas of old Ford auto metal parts.

Owners of rodders, modernized cars made before 1948, have been keeping Bond's five-man garage busy. The customers are spread around the country.

The use of fiberglass instead of the original metal parts gives customers "a unique opportunity," Bond said, since the "great expense of completely restored bodies prevents most people from owning them."

Also, antique car owners are reluctant to drive them in traffic because of the valuable original parts, Bond said.

Even so, he plans to end making custom parts and will manufacture fiberglass molds for the sake of economy.

Since making fiberglass replicas of rare body parts is usually less expensive for customers than repairing originals, Bond foresees a continuing business boom.

The family hobby of street rodding has accelerated. He noted that a recent national convention of street rodders drew more than 3,700 cars.

W Vietnamese War veteran, Bond got his start when he was given a Model A Ford in high school. He has been collecting parts from antique cars since then.

Judge Panel To Rule On Minor's Abortion

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

A three-judge panel is expected to decide this week whether to issue a permanent injunction or temporary restraining order against enforcement of a Nebraska statute of requiring parental consent for abortions on minors.

At a hearing Tuesday in the U.S. District Court in Lincoln, the judges took under advisement a case filed by "Jane Doe," a 17-year-old resident of Lincoln foster home who is 10 to 12 weeks pregnant and seeking an abortion over her parents' objections.

The suit alleges that Nebraska Statute 28-4151 violates Jane Doe's constitutional rights of privacy.

The law says that, "no abortion shall be performed . . . on any minor child in the State of Nebraska without . . . consent of parent or guardian."

This Week Only

Jane Doe's physician told U.S. District Judges Robert Van Pelt and Warren K. Urbom and Judge Donald Ross of the Eighth District Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis., Mo., that the abortion could safely be conducted "throughout the remainder of this week, but probably no longer."

Dr. Y. Scott Moore, Lincoln physician, testified that his patient is "just barely within the first trimester" of pregnancy and "possibly outside it," in which case he could not perform the preferred procedure to terminate the pregnancy.

He said he would not perform the abortion without either parental consent or a restraining order. The suit claims that Jane Doe's parents have refused to allow an abortion on the grounds of conscience and morality.

Terry K. Barber, attorney for the plaintiff, told the court that the state law discriminates against unwed minor children and invades their privacy.

Age 'Arbitrary'

"For no good reason an arbitrary age is set," he said, contrasting the requirement of parental consent for abortions with the lack of required consent for treatment of a minor with venereal disease.

The judges are delaying their decision until a brief is filed Wednesday morning on behalf of the defendants.

Judge Ross instructed Terry Schaaf, assistant state attorney general, to include in his brief whether the attorney general issued an opinion on the parental consent requirement while the bill was pending.

He also is to find out if the state would take action against the physician should a restraining order or permanent injunction be issued and the abortion performed, and the U.S. Supreme Court subsequently found the statute constitutional.

Judges and attorneys for plaintiff and defense alike promised to research implications of recent U.S. Supreme Court action overturning a district court decision in Missouri, In a similar case, the Supreme Court ordered a temporary restraining order allowing a minor to obtain an abortion without parental consent.

Similar laws requiring parental consent for abortions on minors have been found unconstitutional in seven states.

Campaign Law May Help Dyas

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Strategists in the approaching U.S. Senate campaign of Hess Dyas believe the new federal campaign spending law will work to the Democratic candidate's advantage in a 1976 Senate contest.

The 1974 law will limit total spending by the Republican and Democratic senatorial nominees to $360,000 each.

Without the limit, a Dyas campaign strategy booklet suggests, the Republican nominee (who the Dyas campaign expects to be Congressman John McCollister) "could raise and spend at least twice that amount."

Hess Dyas

'Our Advantage'

Thus, the federal spending limit, "represents a revolutionary change for Nebraska politics, and it is clearly to our advantage," the booklet states.

The 13-page campaign strategy outline has been distributed to a number of key Democrats across the state.

"In the past in Nebraska, the Republican candidates for the Senate have had a tremendous advantage over the Democrats in terms of money available for campaigns," the booklet states.

"In 1970, Frank Morrison was outspent nine dollars to one by Roman Hruska, and in 1972 Terry Carpenter was outspent eight dollars to one by Carl Curtis."

Almost Impossible

That financial disadvantage made it almost impossible for the Democratic nominee to compete, according to the booklet.

But next year, with the Dyas campaign's ability to raise money, as shown by its $130,000 congressional campaign in 1974, and the federal limit on spending, the financial odds can be evened, it was suggested.

The limits are $140,000 for the primary campaign, and $220,000 for the general election.

Dyas strategists believe they can raise close to the $360,000 limit.

'Open To Attacks'

McCollister, they say, has a legislative record that is "clearly open to attack."

The Second District congressman "generally supports the interests of large corporations and oil companies, opposes some people-oriented programs that have worked to meet the needs of people, opposes the interests of agriculture and supports virtually every request of the Defense Department," the brochure states.

". . . as an incumbent, Congressman McCollister can and should be blamed for the problems that plague this country.

"The issues of a stagnant economy and high priced energy will haunt McCollister throughout the campaign."

'Saddled With Burden'

Dyas strategists also believe McCollister "will be saddled with the burden" of what they see as the growing unpopularity of Republican Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis.

They also point to the narrowing of Republican and Democratic voter registration totals (the GOP advantage has dropped to about 15,000), the lack of a Republican Senate incumbent for the first time since 1954 and anticipated organizational improvements in a Dyas campaign.

Dyas plans to walk the state from late March through early July, establishing along the way 1,000 neighborhood precinct headquarters. They will be serviced by 10 full-time field organizers.

Court Hears Interstate Speed Rules Argued

By The Associated Press

An attorney told the Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday that the Legislature could set a different penalty for speeding on interstate highways than for speeding in front of a school.

Attorney Ed Carter, representing the judges of the Lincoln Municipal Court, spoke in favor of the reduced penalty for interstate highway speeders during oral arguments on a complex case designed to test the constitutionality of the law.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Steven Smith said the provision of Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' amendment which exempt persons traveling less than 65 m.p.h. on interstate highways from $8 in court costs is unconstitutional. He did not attack the portions of the law that limit the fine to $10 or eliminate points under Nebraska's 12-point drivers license revocation program.

Smith said the class setting up the type of speeders who were exempted from court costs was in no way related to the collecting of court costs. He said that violated the Nebraska Constitution's prohibition against special or local laws.

"Anybody who drives on the interstate is subject to this result," Carter said.

He drew an analogy to the attorney general's argument by saying it was like claiming the state's laws against murder were unconstitutional because they only apply to people who maliciously kill others.

Special Fund Established For Victim Of Blast

North Bend — A special fund has been established to assist with household and family expenses of Michael Murphy while he recuperates in St. Elizabeth Burn Center in Lincoln.

Murphy was injured in the Far-Mar-Co Elevator explosion in Lincoln Sept. 26, and remains in fair condition.

Those interested in making a donation should contact the Platte Valley Bank in North Bend.

Supreme Court Nixes Cook Reconsideration

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday rejected a request to reconsider its decision of July 27 to suspend G. Bradford Cook, a Nixon administration chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, from the practice of law for three years.

The decision to reject reconsideration was handed down without comment, according to George Turner, clerk of the state's high court.

The Supreme Court handed down the suspension in July after finding that Cook, a Lincoln native, "knowingly testified falsely" before a U.S. District Court grand jury in 1973.

Specifically, the court found that Cook lied about not discussing a commission case pending against financier Robert Vesco which charged him with "looting" mutual funds. Involved in the case was a contribution made to President Nixon by Vesco. The money was later returned.

Under the terms of the suspension handed down by the court, Cook won't be allowed any connection with the legal profession. At the end of the three years, Cook must prove that he hasn't been directly or indirectly connected with the practice of law in any state before the suspension will be lifted.

Cook's attorneys had argued that at the very least the suspension should have been effective on May 16, 1973, the date he voluntarily suspended himself from the practice of law and started cooperating with authorities.

Group Opposes Marijuana Laws

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln student government body has approved the NU Hemp Constitution, which reportedly may be a political group as of Nov. 2, 1976.

The NU Hemp Organization goal is to eliminate marijuana laws, legalize marijuana and permit growing it as a cash crop in Nebraska, according to the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN).

Staff Negligence Cited In Report

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

An investigation into the drowning death of an 11-year-old retarded girl cites apparent incidents of negligence by the Lancaster County Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) staff.

In releasing the county sheriff's office investigation, County Attorney Ron Lahners said that no charges will be filed in connection with the death, but admitted that the report indicated staff negligence.

Carrie Lynn Zweerink, a LOMR client, drowned at Pawnee Lake during a July 3 field trip.

The Lancaster County Board Tuesday afternoon rejected a $250,000 claim for damages in connection with the drowning. The claim was filed by attorneys for the girl's mother, Carol Hier.

The claim rejection is the first step in a future civil suit, and attorneys for Mrs. Hier have said they intend to file a damage suit in Lancaster County District Court.

The board made it clear that the rejection was simply a part of the legal process.

The lengthy sheriff's investigation, compiled by Deputy Marjorie Blue, shows that only two lifejackets were available for the 17 clients attending the field trip.

Two witnesses at the lake also reported that the 10 staff members were not doing an adequate job of supervising all the children, that two children without lifejackets were placed on a raft and allowed to float, unsupervised, and that some children had no adults within eight or ten feet of them.

Mrs. Judy Bennet, a LOMR substitute teacher who was swimming with her own children at the lake, and another mother, Mrs. Carole L. Flaniagin, both described lax supervision during the swimming period in the sheriff's office report.

Though there were no written procedures for swimming outings, LOMR staff members had been verbally told that every child in the water was to wear a lifejacket and that there should be a one adult-one child ratio in the water, the report said.

Staff members involved in the field trip were sent letters of reprimand from LOMR Director Bob Smith, but no staff members were fired, the report stated.

Nuernberger Invites Public To Comment

The Lancaster County engineer is not a man to wait for others to make up their minds.

He intends to push on with a public information meeting on the county's one and six-year road plans, even without County Board approval.

The public will be invited to share their views on county road and bridge projects during an Oct. 22 public information meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, Engineer Marv Nuernberger said Tuesday.

Originally, Nuernberger had proposed that the board and the City-County Planning Commission hold the public meeting jointly, since both bodies must eventually take action on the guideline for future county road improvements.

But the meeting idea got bogged down in debates over whether Nuernberger was actually going to offer a plan or simply have a wide open discussion on any and all possible road projects.

County Board Chairman Jan Gauger voiced fear that Nuernberger was using the open meeting approach to pressure commissioners into raising his departmental budgets.

The battle continued for several weekly meetings.

"I just can't wait for them," said Nuernberger Tuesday, after making arrangements for the Oct. 22 meeting date.

Nuernberger said he does intend to submit a specific one-year plan to the public at the meeting. "But a five-year plan is going to be rougher than a boot because I don't know how much money I will have to work with," said Nuernberger, again pointing out the sore subject of cuts to his proposed budget.

3 Planners Approved By County

The Lancaster County Board unanimously approved the reappointment of three City-County Planning Commission members Tuesday.

Reappointed for four-year terms were George Williamson, chairman, James Hacker and Bruce Nims. The three men have already been confirmed by the City Council.

The planning commission and other advisory groups should be more broad based, have better geographic, economic and special interest representation, said Commissioner Bruce Hamilton, who voted for the reappointments with "some reluctance."

Board Chairman Jan Gauger said she hoped the commission would redefine its procedures regarding declaring conflicts of interest.

Both City Council members and County Board members had received complaints about conflicts of interest relating to Williamson.

Mrs. Gauger said she has also received complaints of alleged closed meetings of the planning commission. The County Board has vocally denounced closed meetings by its advisory groups.

School Boards Group To Eye Abolish Request

The Nebraska State School Boards Association next month will take up a resolution asking the Unicameral to abolish the Professional Practices Commission.

The NSSBA resolution said the commission was created to allow educators to police their own profession, but the State Board of Education does not have to abide by the commission's decisions.

It said the State Board of Education "has not been consistently responsive to commission recommendations."

State Education Commissioner Dr. Anne Campbell, and Max Drier, executive director of the Professional Practices Commission, said that in spite of a highly publicised case earlier this year, the state board has upheld 96% of the commission's rulings.

Seale Reappointed

Lincoln Superintendent of Building Inspections Charles G. Seale was reappointed to the research committee of the International Conference of Building Officials at its annual meeting in Anaheim, Calif.

Ex-Nebraska Woman Now Iowa Trooper

A Nebraska native is one of the first women to become an Iowa Highway Patrol trooper.

Jen Saunders, 24, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Saunders of Jackson, was sworn in Monday in Des Moines along with two other women and 29 men.

Miss Saunders, a graduate of Ponca High School and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln criminal justice program, was working as a security guard at the J.C. Penney store in Sioux City, Iowa, when she was accepted by the patrol.

There were 35 women applicants for the 750 openings on the patrol.

The female troopers will be dressed similarly to the male officer, a patrol spokesman said. The only difference will be women will wear side-zipper pants instead of traditional trousers.

Green Receives Almost 6 Years For 90 Minutes

For ninety minutes of freedom, Michael H. Green Tuesday received almost six more years of prison.

Green, 19, who escaped from the Nebraska Penal Complex June 5 and allegedly stole two cars, robbed a gun store, abducted a clerk and emptied a revolver at police, was sentenced to five years and eight months at the Penal Complex by Lancaster County District Court Judge Samuel Van Pelt.

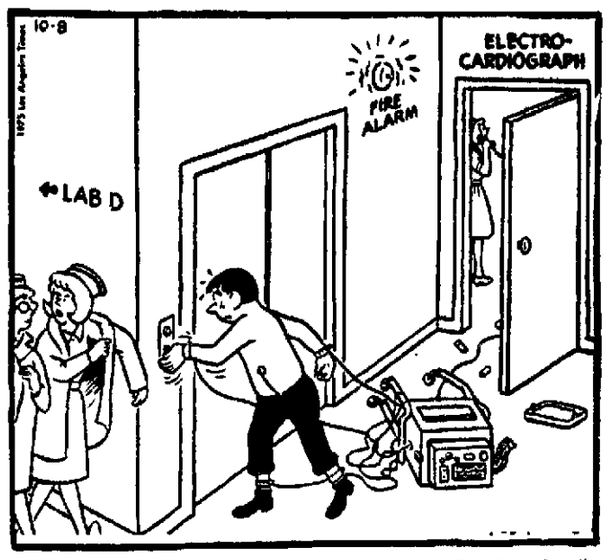

Green had earlier pleaded guilty to escape from the Penal Complex, robbery and assaulting a law enforcement officer with a deadly weapon.

A kidnaping charge was dropped after the guilty pleas, according to District Court records.

Van Pelt handed down a one-year sentence on the escape charge, three years for robbery and 20 months for the assaulting an officer. The sentences are to run consecutively.

Forecast for Wednesday

At the Track: Sagittarius jockeyes get racing luck, find openings. Scorpio jockeys are likely to bring in favorites, while Leo riders are up on long-shot winners. If born under Sagittarius, stick with number 4. Cancer might win with number 8. Libra could show a profit with number 2.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Accent on journeys, studies, long-distance communications. Be parepared for change, travel, variety. Gemini, Virgo persons could be very much in picture. Creative activity, including writing, is favored. Event occurs which leads to greater fulfillment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Money you thought was "lost" finds its way to you. Emphasis is on investment, tax relief, financial status of partner, mate. Purchase of luxury or home item could be on your schedule. Art object, coin or precious stone might be featured.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20). Accent on publicity, public relations, special arrangements, agreements — and marital status. See in light of actuality. Don't imagine that others will automatically live up to expectations. Delegating too many duties could lead to embarrassing situation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Practical matters dominate. Don't attempt to skip basic issues. Remember work-health resolutions. Keep appointments, including medical-dental. Older individual is willing lend benefit of experience. Pride should not be permitted to block progress.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Youngster who is precocious wants to be guided but won't admit it. You are in position to get favorable attention, to also be recognized for past efforts. Aries, Libra could figure prominently. You get what you deserve — and it may be better than anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Ideas can be solidified. You get chance to express yourself in independent, creative manner. Key is to let go, to be honest, to get to heart of matters. Now you can imprint your own style. Know it, do it and be sure about it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relatives may make claims all at once. Key is to maintain balance and humor. Short trips, messages, calls are on agenda. Hunch plays important role. Intuitive intellect cannot be ignored. Money and past commitments combine to play major role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Accent on collection, payment, recovery of what was apparently lost. Money, dividends, interest rates command more attention than usual. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in picture. You learn about costs, potential and what can be expected in form of returns from investment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on independence, originality, new starts in new directions. Personality, personal appearance — these are spotlighted. You are now able to shake off restrictive influences. You will be free and creative!

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): What occurs is mostly subtle, clandestine, behind the scenes. Gemini, Virgo and Libra figure prominently. You gain access to "privileged information." You learn about hidden factors, what can be expected, what will continue to be "buried."

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 18). Emphasis on friends, hopes, wishes, ability to recognize real allies. Separate fair-weather friends from those who actually care about your welfare. Taurus, Libra persons figure in important ways. You get accolade, gift — or kiss.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on career, dealings with one who is a perfectionist. Another Pisces — and a Virgo — figure prominently. Your standing is elevated. You handle additional duties but reward factor also is greater.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are capable of organizing, of getting priorites in order. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. In November, you might change residence, you make adjustments at home. You are capable of combining artistic and practical efforts — you help people understand their own creative powers. If single, next year could be your marriage year.

To Your Good Health:

Carrots, Vision Not Unrelated

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a young girl, a high school junior of 16, and I want to join the Air Force to be a pilot. I am told you have to have 20/20 vision, which I do not have.

Would carrots help to improve my sight? I know this may sound way out, but could you answer this? — Miss F. W.

Not really way out, just a widespread misconception.

Carrots are a good source of vitamin A, which occurs in carrots as carotene. The substance is present in other foods (sweet potatoes and egg yolk are examples) but carrots are particularly high in it. Also, vitamin A is important in night vision, which is dependent on the proper production of what is called "visual purple" in the retina of the eye.

The manufacture of "visual purple" begins the moment a person enters a dimly-lighted room, but without sufficient vitamin A, it will not be produced in proper amounts. The result is impaired night vision.

However, the body needs only a certain amount of the vitamin to produce the quantity of pigment required, and any in excess of that received in a good diet would not help vision. Munching carrots to excess can produce a yellowish tinge in the skin. An examiner might think you were jaundiced.

A deviation from normal daylight vision is usually the result of a refractive error, a physical problem that can be corrected by eye glasses.

You have an interesting career goal for a young girl, and I wish you great success. You have time before you reach the required age for enlistment, so go to an eye doctor and find out if your eye defect is correctible with lenses.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please give me some information about acute intermittent porphyria. That is my doctor's diagnosis, but no one seems to know much about it. Also, what are the chances that it can be inherited by my children? How dangerous are the attacks, and how can one avoid them? — M.S.T.

Porphyrins are pigments that give color to various tissues, such as the red of hemoglobin and the green of bile. Porphyria, the disease, is a disturbance in the body's metabolism of these substances. The term, "acute intermittent," means that your attacks tend to occur with suddenness and at widely varying intervals.

The disorder is inherited, although persons carrying the defect in the genes need not necessarily display the symptoms of the disease.

An attack of porphyria brings abdominal pain, vomiting, weakness and nervousness.

Not much really is known about it except that use of medication such as barbiturates, sulfa drugs, estrogen (as in contraceptive pills) can precipitate an attack. Alcohol, too, seems to cause attacks.

Treatment consists mainly of tranquilizers. Small doses of the drug, reserpine, can be used as a preventive.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 71 years old. Two months ago I had a tumor removed, so they performed an hysterectomy. Should I take hormone and calcium pills? What good would they do for me? I feel fine. — A. B.

Ordinarily, hormone replacement is necessary if the ovaries are removed along with the uterus. But this applies usually to younger people.

You are 71, and your ovaries started to decline in hormone production at least 20 years ago, so your system has by now probably adjusted to the waning supply. Removal of the ovaries now would be no great shock to your system. You can get the calcium you need from high calcium foods.

I can see no point then in your taking either the hormones or the calcium, especially since you are feeling fit.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If you body retains fluid in the tissues and you take four diuretics a day to relieve it, and your blood chemistry is okay, is it the circulatory system that is at fault? Could it be a sluggish thyroid?

If it is the circulation at fault, how do you solve the problem? — Mrs. E. A.

The causes of water retention are many and varied. Excessive salt intake, of course, is one. Use of the contraceptive pill is another. The increase in estrogen production before a period can also cause a retention problem, and yes, a low thyroid activity can, as you suggest in your letter, be a factor. Liver disease is another possibility.

If it is a circulatory disorder your doctor should be able to detect that and prescribe appropriate medication — digitalis, for example.

Do you have varicose veins? This can be a cause, and if so, it can be corrected surgically. If it is the thyroid causing it, then thyroid medication can control the situation.

For starters, your doctor is trying to use the diuretics to see if this simple approach will be sufficient. However, I doubt that it would be a permanent solution unless your retention is only temporary, or one related to a recurrent event, as with your menstraul cycle.

That's a lot to think about, but water retention is a complex matter, and usually water pills are not the answer alone.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Color blindness affects about three per cent of the young boys in America according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

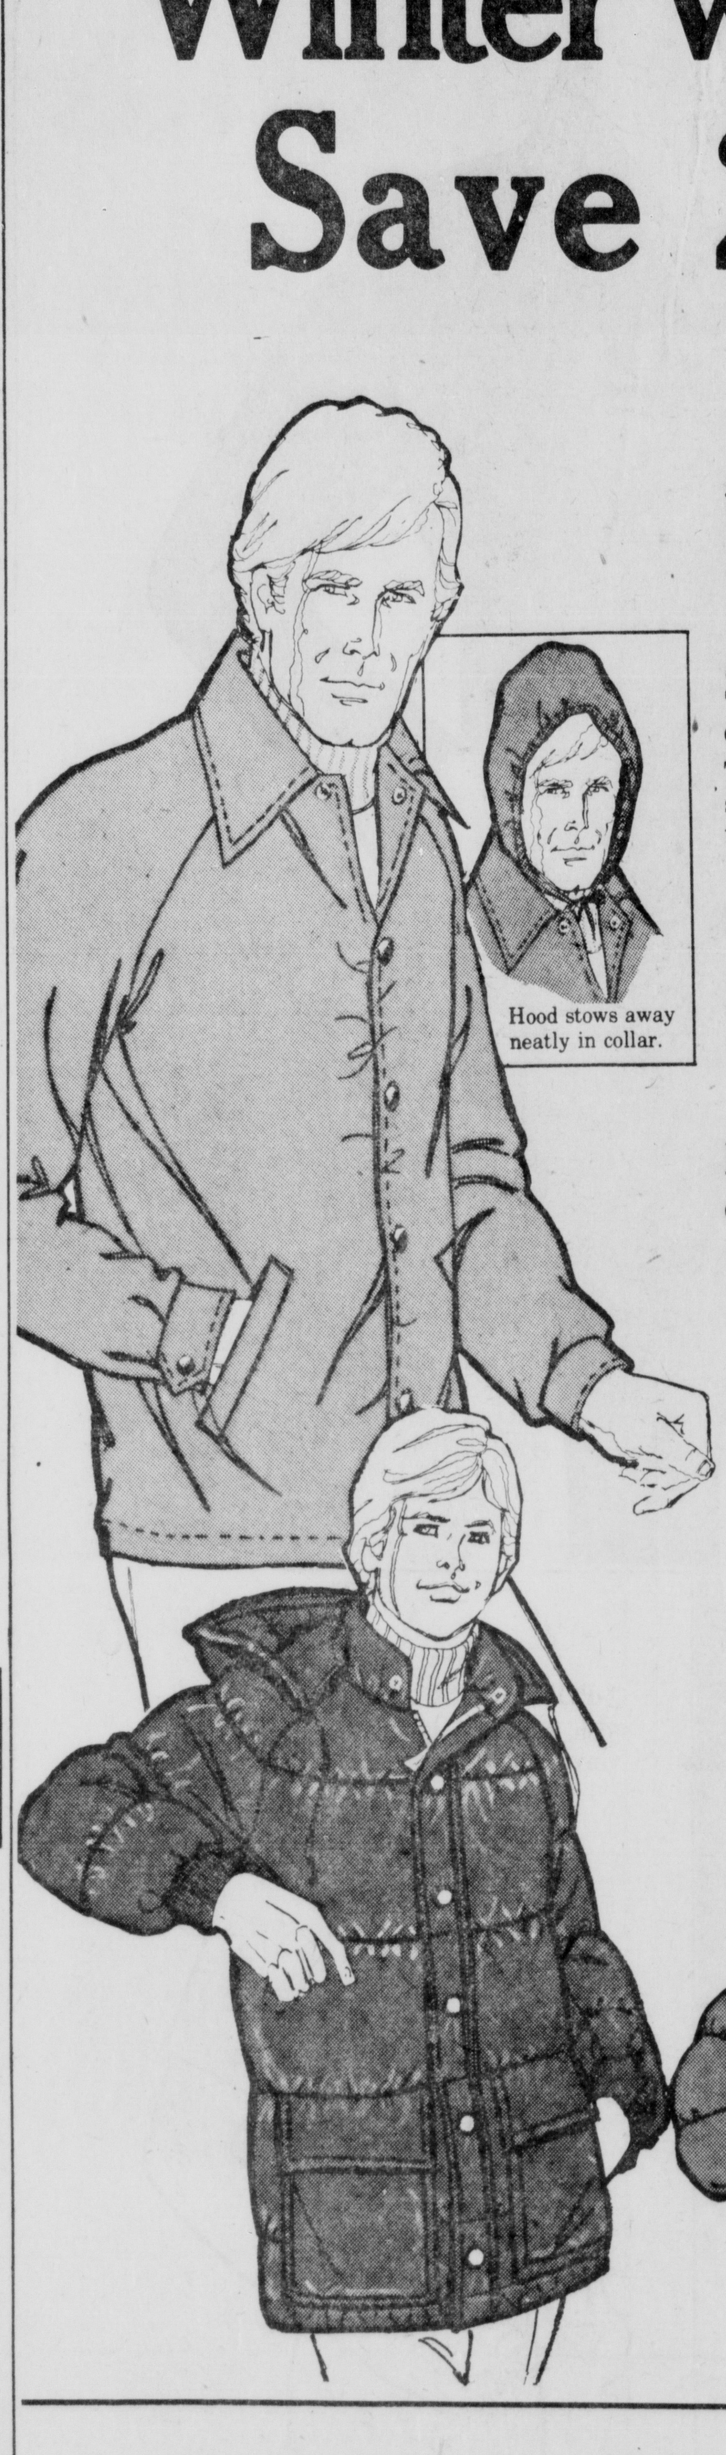

Color blindness should not upset a person as long as he knows he is color blind. There is nothing that can be done to improve color vision. As far as medical practitioners know, color blindness does not change.

The Nebraska Medical Association reports there are several varieties of color blindness. The most common is called "red-green" because the individual finds it difficult to distinguish red from green. Rarer types prevent differentiation of other pairs of colors. Total color blindness is very rare. Total color blindness means the individual distinguishes only shades of gray and black as in a photograph.

The Nebraska Medical Association suggests that a color blind person be guided into a trade or profession where color vision is not important to his work.

Inmates May Go To Omaha YWCA

Omaha (UPI) — The Douglas County Board Tuesday authorized a staff study on the feasibility of moving women inmates to the old YWCA facilities in central Omaha.

A study showing substandard conditions at the current women's facility at 11th and Dodge was presented to the board two weeks ago, and at that time, Commissioner Michael Albert said conditions for female prisoners were "inhumane and atrocious."

At present the third floor of the YWCA house is being used as a dormitory for work release inmates from the Nebraska Women's Reformatory in York. The board's study will seek to determine whether the back unit containing 26 rooms could be used to house the 14 women now at 11th and Dodge.

Board Chairman George Buglewicz, who also heads the board's corrections committee, noted the Henry Doorly Zoo recently constructed a $2 million facility to house members of the cat family.

"They're spending $2 million for a cat house at the zoo," Buglewicz said, "and we're housing humans in conditions less than that."

Robert Venable, a former inmate at the county's Clearview Release Center in Omaha, said conditions for male inmates were "just as bad" as those for women.

Albert responded, "Your concern is an important one, but there's no question that females housed together are in just as atrocious conditions" as those of male inmates.

On another matter, Buglewicz said he would attempt to tighten the gap between the physical and mental emphasis placed on tests for county corrections officers.

Mrs. Phyllis Seigel of Omaha has complained to the board that "discrepancies" exist in sheriff's merit commission requirements for corrections officers and has filed a sex discrimination suit against the County Corrections Department."

On Sept. 22, Mrs. Seigel told the board a "perfect score" on the broad jump, for example, could be between 50 and 100 points and questioned if the point score depended on the "whim of the scorer."

Mrs. Seigel said the most points she could earn for "brains" was 130, while she could earn 515 points for "brawn."

Dr. Gaylen Kutchel, a Nebraska-Omaha corrections consultant to the board, defended the 70% physical-30% mental test score ratio. He said there may be a situation where a corrections officer has to "enter into a combative situation with a person in his custody."

Mrs. Seigel was in the audience, but didn't comment. Buglewicz told Kutchel, however, "We can't tell you what to do, but I for one will attempt to make that change so that mental agility does outweigh physical agility."

Mrs. Seigel had further complained about receiving a notice for the test shortly before it was held. Kutchel said he couldn't remember "exactly" when the notices went out, but he said the test notices were all mailed at the same time.

He said it was "conceivable" that Mrs. Seigel had only four days notice "but then so did the others."

Rod Owners Keep Body Maker Busy

Gibbon (AP) — Dwight Bond, 29, has a new idea for an old business.

He manufactures fiberglass replicas of old Ford auto metal parts.

Owners of rodders, modernized cars made before 1948, have been keeping Bond's five-man garage busy. The customers are spread around the country.

The use of fiberglass instead of the original metal parts gives customers "a unique opportunity," Bond said, since the "great expense of completely restored bodies prevents most people from owning them."

Also, antique car owners are reluctant to drive them in traffic because of the valuable original parts, Bond said.

Even so, he plans to end making custom parts and will manufacture fiberglass molds for the sake of economy.

Since making fiberglass replicas of rare body parts is usually less expensive for customers than repairing originals, Bond foresees a continuing business boom.

The family hobby of street rodding has accelerated. He noted that a recent national convention of street rodders drew more than 3,700 cars.

W Vietnamese War veteran, Bond got his start when he was given a Model A Ford in high school. He has been collecting parts from antique cars since then.

Judge Panel To Rule On Minor's Abortion

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

A three-judge panel is expected to decide this week whether to issue a permanent injunction or temporary restraining order against enforcement of a Nebraska statute of requiring parental consent for abortions on minors.

At a hearing Tuesday in the U.S. District Court in Lincoln, the judges took under advisement a case filed by "Jane Doe," a 17-year-old resident of Lincoln foster home who is 10 to 12 weeks pregnant and seeking an abortion over her parents' objections.

The suit alleges that Nebraska Statute 28-4151 violates Jane Doe's constitutional rights of privacy.

The law says that, "no abortion shall be performed . . . on any minor child in the State of Nebraska without . . . consent of parent or guardian."

This Week Only

Jane Doe's physician told U.S. District Judges Robert Van Pelt and Warren K. Urbom and Judge Donald Ross of the Eighth District Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis., Mo., that the abortion could safely be conducted "throughout the remainder of this week, but probably no longer."

Dr. Y. Scott Moore, Lincoln physician, testified that his patient is "just barely within the first trimester" of pregnancy and "possibly outside it," in which case he could not perform the preferred procedure to terminate the pregnancy.

He said he would not perform the abortion without either parental consent or a restraining order. The suit claims that Jane Doe's parents have refused to allow an abortion on the grounds of conscience and morality.

Terry K. Barber, attorney for the plaintiff, told the court that the state law discriminates against unwed minor children and invades their privacy.

Age 'Arbitrary'

"For no good reason an arbitrary age is set," he said, contrasting the requirement of parental consent for abortions with the lack of required consent for treatment of a minor with venereal disease.

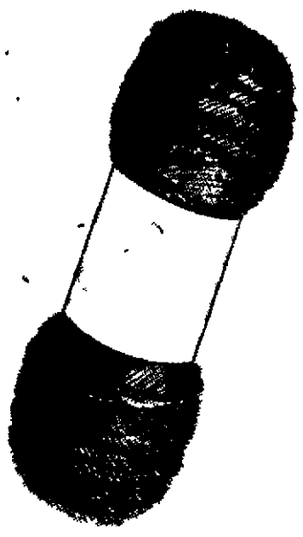

The judges are delaying their decision until a brief is filed Wednesday morning on behalf of the defendants.

Judge Ross instructed Terry Schaaf, assistant state attorney general, to include in his brief whether the attorney general issued an opinion on the parental consent requirement while the bill was pending.

He also is to find out if the state would take action against the physician should a restraining order or permanent injunction be issued and the abortion performed, and the U.S. Supreme Court subsequently found the statute constitutional.

Judges and attorneys for plaintiff and defense alike promised to research implications of recent U.S. Supreme Court action overturning a district court decision in Missouri. In a similar case, the Supreme Court ordered a temporary restraining order allowing a minor to obtain an abortion without parental consent.

Similar laws requiring parental consent for abortions on minors have been found unconstitutional in seven states.

Out For Test Run

Usually when a robot rolls down a street it attracts attention and it was no exception in Spanish Lake, Mo. Two high school seniors at North County Technical School, Jim Prost of Vinita Park and Lou Marino of Spanish Lake are building the robot as a school project. When the robot is finished it will be remote controlled, powered by two auto batteries and able to talk by means of a tape deck.

Robby The Robot Not Taking Over

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — Robby the Robot has a long way to go before becoming competition for the average American worker.

So say robot industry officials in an attempt to ease the worries of blue-collar workers concerned about losing their jobs to machines.

As one expert put it at the fifth annual International Symposium on Industrial Robots, "Robots show somewhat less intelligence than most insects."

The robots only have one arm, with limited use, the exhibits at the symposium showed. Of the dozen models of industrial robots on display at the Illinois Institute of Technology, all were mostly limited to lifting up an object and putting it down nearby.

There were no human-looking automatons that did everything but make coffee—just machines with one long arm, somewhat resembling a big gun barrel, with pincers that could lift and place, lift and place, lift and place.

Robots are doing jobs that people just do not want," said Joseph Engelberger, president of Unimation Inc. of Danbury, Conn. Engelberger said about 1,500 robots are now scattered throughout American industry — not exactly an invasion — with about 50,000 expected in 10 years.

That's a big jump, Engelbarger said, but 50,000 jobs only represent two-tenths of 1% of the entire U.S. labor force.

Robots are being built that can spot weld in auto assembly lines, for example, and others can load machine tools, forge and do other basic factory jobs, such as handling dangerous chemicals in a nuclear reactor.

"But that's still a far cry from a human being," Engelberger said. His firm is the largest manufacturer of robots in the world.

"I really don't think there's anything like a confrontation" between robots and the labor force, he said. Through seminars with various labor unions, he said, "we're working to make sure there isn't."

Test Pilot Inspiration For '$6 Million Man'

FALLON, Nev. (AP) — The "Six Million Dollar Man" is more than just another television series for Bruce Peterson.

He is the survivor of a spectacular crash of a space vehicle shown at the start of each segment of the show. Peterson narrowly escaped death in the 1967 accident, and he had to be partially reconstructed by teams of surgeons.

He inspired the show. But Peterson, 42, a former test pilot undergoing Marine Air Reserve training here, said his surgery didn't include the atomic-powered limbs that make actor Lee Majors the superhuman Steve Austin of "Six Million Dollar Man."

"I just got conventional surgery," Peterson said, laughing.

His skull was fractured, his forehead literally scraped off, right eye partially blinded, teeth and one hand broken.

Plastic surgery to rebuild his face took more than a year and a half.

"I don't think it cost any $6 million to put me back together," he said. In fact, he doesn't know what the actual cost was. His employer now and at the time of the crash, National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), footed the bill.

Peterson was a test pilot for NASA's flight research center at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., at the time of the crash of the M2F2, a wingless, experimental space shuttle.

Now he is director of safety and quality assurance for the research center, and a reserve lieutenant colonel in the Marine Air Reserve.

He remembers little of the accident in which the shuttle went out of control, then slammed into the desert.

"About what is seen on the TV screens every week is what I remember," he said. "That partial footage was taken by the cockpit cameras. I blacked out about the same time the cameras stopped working.

"I was landing, fighting a cross-wind which had sprung up, when I saw a helicopter in my way. I tried to avoid it, and the landing gear caught in the dry lake bed — and right there I thought that was it.

"The next thing I vaguely remember is being trapped in the vehicle upside down."

After Peterson recovered, he continued to fly on a restricted basis for NASA until 1971, doing test work on fighter planes. He is considered in top physical shape by the Federal Aviation Agency and the Marine Corps, despite his damaged eye. He wears a patch over it.

His training here included piloting a Cobra attack helicopter.

Peterson has met the star of the television series just once when they had dinner together. While Peterson was the inspiration for "Six Million Dollar Man," he and Majors have little in common.

Peterson served in the Marines from 1953 to 1957, earned a degree in aeronautical engineering from California State Polytechnic University in San Luis Obispo in 1960 and became a test pilot in 1962.

Majors was a star athlete who got a degree in education from Eastern Kentucky State College and then decided to try acting.

Buddha Statue To Be Golden

Hong Kong (UPI) — A landscape garden with a 150-foot golden statue of Buddha to be built on nearbv Lantao Island has been approved in principle by the governemnt.

But the Hong Kong Tourist Association notes the Po Lin Monastery which plans to build the giant Buddha will have to provide a public roadway from the monastery to the garden, plus free admission. Plans call for the statue to be covered with gold powder.

Campaign Law May Help Dyas

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Strategists in the approaching U.S. Senate campaign of Hess Dyas believe the new federal campaign spending law will work to the Democratic candidate's advantage in a 1976 Senate contest.

The 1974 law will limit total spending by the Republican and Democratic senatorial nominees to $360,000 each.

Without the limit, a Dyas campaign strategy booklet suggests, the Republican nominee (who the Dyas campaign expects to be Congressman John McCollister) "could raise and spend at least twice that amount."

Hess Dyas

'Our Advantage'

Thus, the federal spending limit, "represents a revolutionary change for Nebraska politics, and it is clearly to our advantage," the booklet states.

The 13-page campaign strategy outline has been distributed to a number of key Democrats across the state.

"In the past in Nebraska, the Republican candidates for the Senate have had a tremendous advantage over the Democrats in terms of money available for campaigns," the booklet states.

"In 1970, Frank Morrison was outspent nine dollars to one by Roman Hruska, and in 1972 Terry Carpenter was outspent eight dollars to one by Carl Curtis."

Almost Impossible

That financial disadvantage made it almost impossible for the Democratic nominee to compete, according to the booklet.

But next year, with the Dyas campaign's ability to raise money, as shown by its $130,000 congressional campaign in 1974, and the federal limit on spending, the financial odds can be evened, it was suggested.

The limits are $140,000 for the primary campaign, and $220,000 for the general election.

Dyas strategists believe they can raise close to the $360,000 limit.

'Open To Attacks'

McCollister, they say, has a legislative record that is "clearly open to attack."

The Second District congressman "generally supports the interests of large corporations and oil companies, opposes some people-oriented programs that have worked to meet the needs of people, opposes the interests of agriculture and supports virtually every request of the Defense Department," the brochure states.

". . . as an incumbent, Congressman McCollister can and should be blamed for the problems that plague this country.

"The issues of a stagnant economy and high priced energy will haunt McCollister throughout the campaign."

'Saddled With Burden'

Dyas strategists also believe McCollister "will be saddled with the burden" of what they see as the growing unpopularity of Republican Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis.

They also point to the narrowing of Republican and Democratic voter registration totals (the GOP advantage has dropped to about 15,000), the lack of a Republican Senate incumbent for the first time since 1954 and anticipated organizational improvements in a Dyas campaign.

Dyas plans to walk the state from late March through early July, establishing along the way 1,000 neighborhood precinct headquarters. They will be serviced by 10 full-time field organizers.

Court Hears Interstate Speed Rules Argued

By The Associated Press

An attorney told the Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday that the Legislature could set a different penalty for speeding on interstate highways than for speeding in front of a school.

Attorney Ed Carter, representing the judges of the Lincoln Municipal Court, spoke in favor of the reduced penalty for interstate highway speeders during oral arguments on a complex case designed to test the constitutionality of the law.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Steven Smith said the provision of Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' amendment which exempt persons traveling less than 65 m.p.h. on interstate highways from $8 in court costs is unconstitutional. He did not attack the portions of the law that limit the fine to $10 or eliminate points under Nebraska's 12-point drivers license revocation program.

Smith said the class setting up the type of speeders who were exempted from court costs was in no way related to the collecting of court costs. He said that violated the Nebraska Constitution's prohibition against special or local laws.

"Anybody who drives on the interstate is subject to this result," Carter said.

He drew an analogy to the attorney general's argument by saying it was like claiming the state's laws against murder were unconstitutional because they only apply to people who maliciously kill others.

Special Fund Established For Victim Of Blast

North Bend — A special fund has been established to assist with household and family expenses of Michael Murphy while he recuperates in St. Elizabeth Burn Center in Lincoln.

Murphy was injured in the Far-Mar-Co Elevator explosion in Lincoln Sept. 26, and remains in fair condition.

Those interested in making a donation should contact the Platte Valley Bank in North Bend.

Supreme Court Nixes Cook Reconsideration

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday rejected a request to reconsider its decision of July 27 to suspend G. Bradford Cook, a Nixon administration chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, from the practice of law for three years.

The decision to reject reconsideration was handed down without comment, according to George Turner, clerk of the state's high court.

The Supreme Court handed down the suspension in July after finding that Cook, a Lincoln native, "knowingly testified falsely" before a U.S. District Court grand jury in 1973.

Specifically, the court found that Cook lied about not discussing a commission case pending against financier Robert Vesco which charged him with "looting" mutual funds. Involved in the case was a contribution made to President Nixon by Vesco. The money was later returned.

Under the terms of the suspension handed down by the court, Cook won't be allowed any connection with the legal profession. At the end of the three years, Cook must prove that he hasn't been directly or indirectly connected with the practice of law in any state before the suspension will be lifted.

Cook's attorneys had argued that at the very least the suspension should have been effective on May 16, 1973, the date he voluntarily suspended himself from the practice of law and started cooperating with authorities.

Group Opposes Marijuana Laws

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln student government body has approved the NU Hemp Constitution, which reportedly may be a political group as of Nov. 2, 1976.

The NU Hemp Organization goal is to eliminate marijuana laws, legalize marijuana and permit growing it as a cash crop in Nebraska, according to the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN).

Las Vegas Strip Is Slowly Sinking

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Lush green golf courses, trees and manicured lawns carpet this desert gambling oasis, but there is a price to be paid for turning barren sand into a garden.

Las Vegas is slowly sinking and the famed Las Vegas Strip is going fastest of all.

Studies by the University of Nevada-Las Vegas and the Desert Research Institute show that the Las Vegas Valley is dropping by about two or three inches a year, almost five feet since 1935 when Las Vegas was just a small, parched speck of desert.

Las Vegas is still desert, but when the casinos moved in alongside the massive Lake Mead Reservoir behind Hoover Dam, something had to give and it was the land.

The force of about 12 billion tons of pressure created by Lake Mead combined with an ever accelerating use of the water beneath the desert floor accounts for the subsidence.

One of the major areas of subsdence in the area is the Las Vegas Strip, particularly between the Tropicana Hotel and the Desert Inn.

Experts agree there is no real danger. The faults will not cause earthquakes and most buildings will withstand the slippage.

But cracks have shown up in pavement around the area and in concrete walls and pavement near the strip.

Dr. George Maxey of the Desert Research Institute said the slippage would pose no danger to people living in the area but may cost them money for property damage repairs.

"We think it's important for the people to know about it," he said. "Some real estate agents might not want people to know about it because land values might fall."

The reason the major strip casinos were built on an area that is susceptible to slippage was that land there was cheap when the first hotels went up and the strip just developed around that section.

William Fiero, professor of geology at UNLV, says the biggest problem to face Las Vegas in the coming years is the cause of the slippage, not the slippage itself.

The area is simply running out of water.

"The most pessimistic estimates say we will begin to run out of water by 1990," said Fiero. "The optimistic figures put the dates at about 2020, but there are two things we can do to help: conserve water and import it from distant sources."

Las Vegas currently is implementing a regional water plan to pump water from Lake Mead into the valley, but the federal government restricts the amount of water each state may take, and Fiero estimates the area will begin having to look for other sources despite the project.

The Las Vegas Valley Water District estimates that about 70,000 acre-feet of water is extracted from the water table beneath the surface of the valley annually but only about 25,000 to 35,000 acre-feet is returned.

Fiero said there is also evidence that the entire Las Vegas region is tilting toward Lake Mead.

It would be eons before the first casino tumbles into the lake, but Fiero said there was evidence of some sinking in the immediate area around the man-made lake and some cracks in the earth.

Inquiry Launched Into Moon Church

NEW YORK (AP) — An official inquiry has been launched into operations of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church as a result of various incidents connected with it and complaints that it uses "mind-control" techniques.

One incident involved the manhandling of New Jersey's state insurance commissioner, James J. Sheeran, who says he is seeking a congressional investigation of the group. His three daughters belong to it.

"There is absolute evidence that a kind of brainwashing goes on with these youngsters," he told newsmen this week. He challenged the group to let a board of psychiatrists examine some of the members.

The group, which has repeatedly denied the mind-manipulation accusations, was started in this country in 1972 by Korean visionary Moon, and now claims about 30,000 American followers, mostly young people.

Many of them, called "the family," consider Moon a new messiah, who will start a line of people progressively freed of sin.

A Washington, D.C. court last month dismissed a case in which parents charged their daughter was held through mental-psychological pressures. Legal experts note laws are vague on such matters.

In some states, officials also have checked into activities of branches of the group, without any actions against it, citing constitutional guarantees of free choice in religion.

The new inquiry is in the headquarters territory of the organization in Dutchess County at Tarrytown and Barrytown, N.Y., north of New York City, where the group has acquired intensive land and buildings for training recruits.

Dutchess County Atty. Albert Rosenblatt said there have been "growing complaints from parents of denial of access" and the use of methods they call "brainwashing, mind control and psychological coercion."

He said there also have been various other incidents, including a suicide of one member, an attempted suicide of another and a "disproportionately high number of hospital admissions."

"It all may be perfectly innocent and we haven't concluded there is any wrongdoing," he said, but added that the accumulating incidents prompted the inquiry to determine if evidence should go to a grand jury.

"We want to find out whether the group's tactics do involve some kind of coercion and whether the law should or could intervene." Citing the First Amendment guarantees of free dissemination of ideas, he added:

"It's a delicate area. But we're moved by the outcries of parents that overreaching methods are being used in capturing minds."

The incident involving Sheeran occurred in the predawn hours of Aug. 28, when he went there to try to get a daughter. He claims he was assaulted by several members.

Joe Tully, director of the Barrytown Center, said Sheeran "entered the premises illegally," was loud and violent, hitting him and kicking several other members, but no one hit Sheeran.

Under questioning, however, Tully conceded that a half-dozen members held Sheeran, tied him up and gagged him, holding him until police came.

At a news conference, the three Sheeran daughters, Vicki, 25, Jaime, 24, and Josette, 21, all pretty and blue-eyed, said in a statement:

"The parents are so thoroughly convinced and afraid their children are brainwashed, it is impossible to communicate with them."

Jaime blamed "kidnapers," those who deprogram members, for the strain with parents, and said it was risky to go home "because we might be kidnaped."

Sheeran and his wife, excluded from the conference, waited outside on the steps, later telling reporters the group would not let them see their daughters except at a "neutral place," with the group's permission.

"It's obvious they're kept intensively programmed," he said. "It's like narcotics. Once they're hooked, you can't get them off without professional help."

At one point, church officials brought the daughters to the doorsteps and Sheeran pleaded with them to come home, but they declined.

"We'll call you," Vicki said, and the three withdrew inside.

EPA: Savings Can Be Found In Wastepaper

Washington (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency told the government it could save $10 million a year by recycling some of its own wastepaper.

Under the proposal, most government employes would be told to separate high-grade paper, such as computer printout paper, punch cards and ledger paper, instead of throwing it into the trash. The paper would be sold.

The agency said a program will begin this month at EPA headquarters and in one year initial programs will begin across the country.

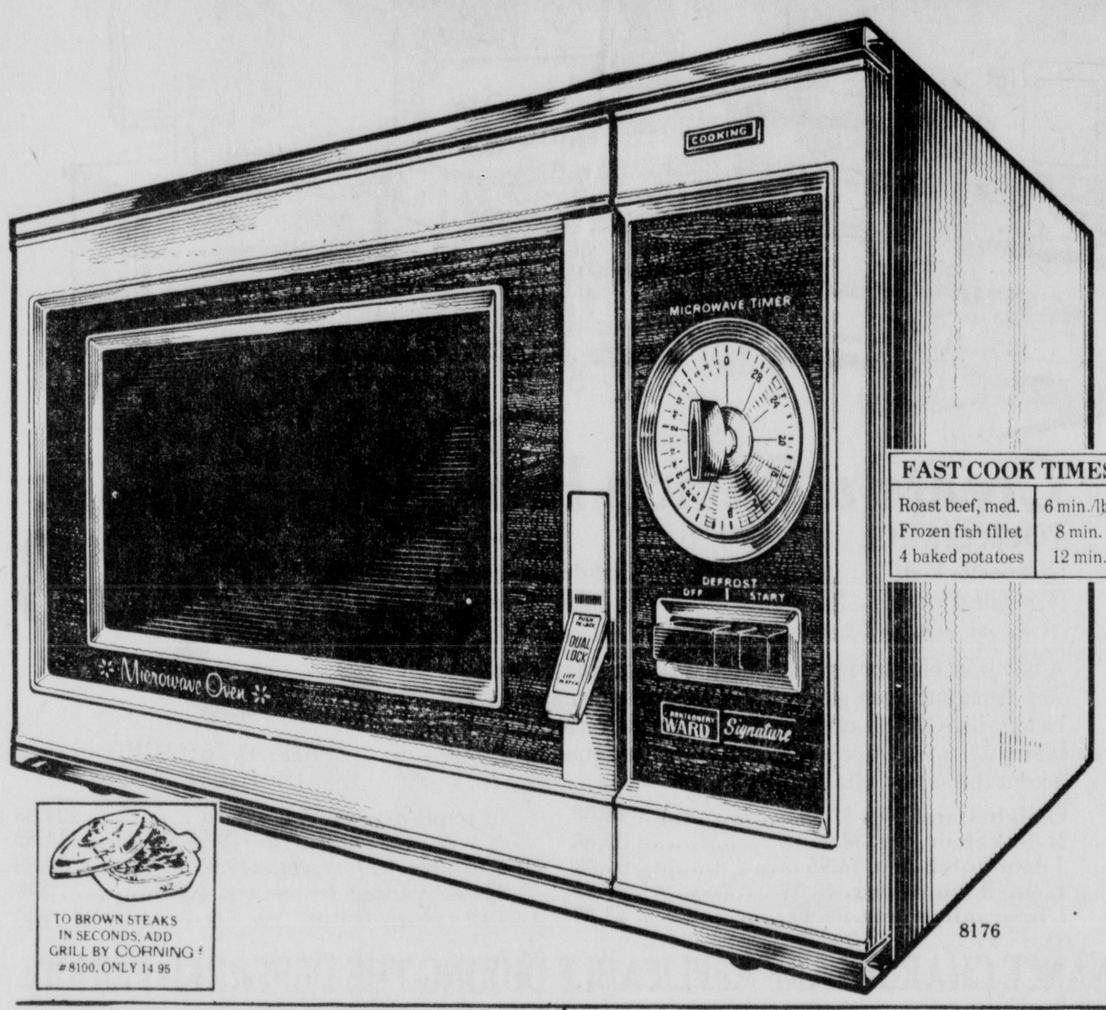

China Trade To Rise

Belgrade (AP) — China's foreign trade is expected to total $15 billion this year, or $1.3 billion more than last year, Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency, reported from Peking.

Staff Negligence Cited In Report

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

An investigation into the drowning death of an 11-year-old retarded girl cites apparent incidents of negligence by the Lancaster County Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) staff.

In releasing the county sheriff's office investigation, County Attorney Ron Lahners said that no charges will be filed in connection with the death, but admitted that the report indicated staff negligence.

Carrie Lynn Zweerink, a LOMR client, drowned at Pawnee Lake during a July 3 field trip.

The Lancaster County Board Tuesday afternoon rejected a $250,000 claim for damages in connection with the drowning. The claim was filed by attorneys for the girl's mother, Carol Hier.

The claim rejection is the first step in a future civil suit, and attorneys for Mrs. Hier have said they intend to file a damage suit in Lancaster County District Court.

The board made it clear that the rejection was simply a part of the legal process.

The lengthy sheriff's investigation, compiled by Deputy Marjorie Blue, shows that only two lifejackets were available for the 17 clients attending the field trip.

Two witnesses at the lake also reported that the 10 staff members were not doing an adequate job of supervising all the children, that two children without lifejackets were placed on a raft and allowed to float, unsupervised, and that some children had no adults within eight or ten feet of them.

Mrs. Judy Bennet, a LOMR substitute teacher who was swimming with her own children at the lake, and another mother, Mrs. Carole L. Flaniagin, both described lax supervision during the swimming period in the sheriff's office report.

Though there were no written procedures for swimming outings, LOMR staff members had been verbally told that every child in the water was to wear a lifejacket and that there should be a one adult-one child ratio in the water, the report said.

Staff members involved in the field trip were sent letters of reprimand from LOMR Director Bob Smith, but no staff members were fired, the report stated.

Nuernberger Invites Public To Comment

The Lancaster County engineer is not a man to wait for others to make up their minds.

He intends to push on with a public information meeting on the county's one and six-year road plans, even without County Board approval.

The public will be invited to share their views on county road and bridge projects during an Oct. 22 public information meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, Engineer Marv Nuernberger said Tuesday.

Originally, Nuernberger had proposed that the board and the City-County Planning Commission hold the public meeting jointly, since both bodies must eventually take action on the guideline for future county road improvements.

But the meeting idea got bogged down in debates over whether Nuernberger was actually going to offer a plan or simply have a wide open discussion on any and all possible road projects.

County Board Chairman Jan Gauger voiced fear that Nuernberger was using the open meeting approach to pressure commissioners into raising his departmental budgets.

The battle continued for several weekly meetings.

"I just can't wait for them," said Nuernberger Tuesday, after making arrangements for the Oct. 22 meeting date.

Nuernberger said he does intend to submit a specific one-year plan to the public at the meeting. "But a five-year plan is going to be rougher than a boot because I don't know how much money I will have to work with," said Nuernberger, again pointing out the sore subject of cuts to his proposed budget.

3 Planners Approved By County

The Lancaster County Board unanimously approved the reappointment of three City-County Planning Commission members Tuesday.

Reappointed for four-year terms were George Williamson, chairman, James Hacker and Bruce Nims. The three men have already been confirmed by the City Council.

The planning commission and other advisory groups should be more broad based, have better geographic, economic and special interest representation, said Commissioner Bruce Hamilton, who voted for the reappointments with "some reluctance."

Board Chairman Jan Gauger said she hoped the commission would redefine its procedures regarding declaring conflicts of interest.

Both City Council members and County Board members had received complaints about conflicts of interest relating to Williamson.

Mrs. Gauger said she has also received complaints of alleged closed meetings of the planning commission. The County Board has vocally denounced closed meetings by its advisory groups.

School Boards Group To Eye Abolish Request

The Nebraska State School Boards Association next month will take up a resolution asking the Unicameral to abolish the Professional Practices Commission.

The NSSBA resolution said the commission was created to allow educators to police their own profession, but the State Board of Education does not have to abide by the commission's decisions.

It said the State Board of Education "has not been consistently responsive to commission recommendations."

State Education Commissioner Dr. Anne Campbell, and Max Drier, executive director of the Professional Practices Commission, said that in spite of a highly publicised case earlier this year, the state board has upheld 96% of the commission's rulings.

Seale Reappointed

Lincoln Superintendent of Building Inspections Charles G. Seale was reappointed to the research committee of the International Conference of Building Officials at its annual meeting in Anaheim, Calif.

Ex-Nebraska Woman Now Iowa Trooper

A Nebraska native is one of the first women to become an Iowa Highway Patrol trooper.

Jen Saunders, 24, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Saunders of Jackson, was sworn in Monday in Des Moines along with two other women and 29 men.

Miss Saunders, a graduate of Ponca High School and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln criminal justice program, was working as a security guard at the J.C. Penney store in Sioux City, Iowa, when she was accepted by the patrol.

There were 35 women applicants for the 750 openings on the patrol.

The female troopers will be dressed similarly to the male officer, a patrol spokesman said. The only difference will be women will wear side-zipper pants instead of traditional trousers.

Green Receives Almost 6 Years For 90 Minutes

For ninety minutes of freedom, Michael H. Green Tuesday received almost six more years of prison.

Green, 19, who escaped from the Nebraska Penal Complex June 5 and allegedly stole two cars, robbed a gun store, abducted a clerk and emptied a revolver at police, was sentenced to five years and eight months at the Penal Complex by Lancaster County District Court Judge Samuel Van Pelt.

Green had earlier pleaded guilty to escape from the Penal Complex, robbery and assaulting a law enforcement officer with a deadly weapon.

A kidnaping charge was dropped after the guilty pleas, according to District Court records.

Van Pelt handed down a one-year sentence on the escape charge, three years for robbery and 20 months for the assaulting an officer. The sentences are to run consecutively.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — "Uncle Jim joined up with an Illinois infantry regiment but they changed them into cavalry," said my grandfather. "He fought at Lookout Mountain and, after the war, he got a pension for his wounds."

Uncle Jim is buried in that sleepy Illinois town. There's a black iron star of the Grand Army of the Republic stuck in the green grass. The stone says he was a captain.

A cousin of mine found some family papers recently and sent me copies. "You will be interested in Uncle Jim."

Uncle Jim had a lot of correspondence with the War Department. It was not a Rebel bullet that laid him low. When his regiment was turned into cavalry, it gave him fearful hemorrhoids — an accupational hazard of the horse soldiers.

He hadn't been able to sit down comfortably since Lee's surrender.

The letters don't indicate whether he got the pension or not.

☆ ☆ ☆

While Uncle Jim was riding uneasily down Tennessee roads, somebody invented the safety pin. Remember that next time you diaper the baby. The safety pin came out in a very unsafe time.

The Romans invented the brooch pin. It was such a civilized advance that the secret was lost during the Dark Ages. People went back to using wooden skewers.

Fortunately for women we now have plastic pins. Thus Madame can get her hair set. Or hang wet underwear over the tub so that nobody can take a bath at a reasonable hour.

"Be careful in the bathroom! I've got some things drying!"

☆ ☆ ☆

Man is an inventive fellow. When I was nailing neighborhood cats with a BB gun, we lived next to an inventor. He was working on a hot water bottle.

I seldom see them these antibiotic days. But in those peaceful years, hot water bottles were as common as washing machines today. They were used to warm the lower end of the bed on winter nights.

☆ ☆ ☆

They were put on your stomach for stomach ache. They were made of rubber with a rubber stopper. They had one fault: The rubber got old and sprung leaks.

The inventor invented a coating which made the rubber watertight forever. He put it on a hot water bottle and hung the bottle on his porch. It hung and hung and hung.

It might have been hanging still. But one day I was passing by with the BB gun and I couldn't resist. I shot it. A fine stream of water sprang into the air.

The inventor's wife came out and screamed: "Max! Max! The water bottle!"

I went home and hid under the bed. I come from a family of reluctant heroes.

☆ ☆ ☆

"Uncle Jim had a cavalry moustache like Custer's," said my grandfather. "He carried a saber sharp as a butcher knife."

All men wore moustaches and beards. Lincoln's generals, photographed by Brady, show how they looked. Grant wore a bushy beard. Some, like Burnsides, shaved themselves into patterns: Sideburns or goatees.

There were no safety razors or special softening soaps or TV to advertise them. It was easier to let the beard grow.

☆ ☆ ☆

Uncle Jim had gone to his reward by the time I was setting off firecrackers by the courthouse where the bronze-green soldier leaned forever on his bronze-green rifle.

On Fourth of July, the veterans sat in the front row. Wearing the slouch hats of the Army of the West. Remembering how they rode down dusty southern roads with the far off thunder of cannon up ahead.

Troops Lined Up In Sahara Desert

RABAT, MOROCCO (AP) — Deep in the western Sahara, Moroccan and Algerian troops are lined up 20 miles apart, ready for a possible confrontation over 105,000 square miles of desert containing one of the world's richest deposits of phosphates.

Morocco and its southern neighbor, Mauretania, have lodged territorial claims to the Spanish Sahara, but Moroccan officials say the two countries have a secret "understanding" to partition the territory if and when Spanish rule ends.

There is no similar understanding with Algeria, which has only 35 miles of common border with the Spanish Sahara and has repeatedly stated that it has no territorial claim of its own to the largest part of Africa still under European colonial rule.

However, in the name of its "anti-imperialist mission," the Algerian government of President Houari Boumedienne helps to finance and supply a guerrilla movement known as the Front for the Liberation of Saquiet el Hamra and rio de Oro (Polisario), whose activities are directed mostly against Morocco.

Polisario backs the Spanish proposal for a referendum in which the 60,000 nomadic inhabitants of the territory would be allowed to choose outright independence.

The Moroccan government of King Hassan II has warned that it will not tolerate such a referendum in a territory it regards as having been subject to the rulers of Morocco for at least five centuries.

According to military sources, virtually the entire Moroccan army with its French and American-made tanks and artillery is deployed along the southern border facing the Spanish Sahara — and Algeria. In overall command of the Moroccan forces is Col. Ahmed Dlimi, King Hassan's security chief, whose clan, known as the Ouled Dlim, roams the barren hills of Rio de Oro, the southern part of the Spanish Sahara.

Thousands of men of the Soviet-equipped Algerian army are lined up in the southwestern tip of Algeria around the oasis of Tindouf. The area is closed to unauthorized travelers inside Algeria, and informed sources say the troops there are in a permanent state of alert.

Algerian officials say the troops are there to protect Tindouf, which at one time was claimed by the Moroccans. Moroccan sources reply that this claim was abandoned in 1963 in exchange for Algerian acceptance of Morocco's claim to the Spanish Sahara.

The Moroccans now accuse the Algerins of breaking their word by backing the idea of independence for the Spanish Sahara with a massive deployment of troops. Moroccan officials accuse Boumedienne of "expansionism" and say he is plotting to set up a Polisario-controlled puppet state which would give Algeria direct access to the Atlantic Ocean.

"Our Mediterranean ports are only a short distance from Gibraltar, so we don't need any access to the Atlantic," Boumedienne said in a recent speech refuting Moroccan accusations that Algeria seeks to dominate all of northwest Africa.

The Sahara dispute is at present before the United Nations General Assembly and the International Court at the Hague. Moroccan officials say they are not optimistic as to the outcome of the legal arguments because the issue has split the Third World along clearly ideological lines.

"The Russians are giving their full support to Algeria while we have no backing at all from the West," one Moroccan official said.

Some Western diplomats say they believe Boumedienne when he says he has no territorial claim in the Sahara. "But while he does not want it himself, he is determined Morocco should not have it either," one ambassador added. "Annexation of the Sahara would give Morocco a 2,000-mile Atlantic coastline and would challenge Algerian aspirations to supremacy in this region."

The fear expressed by many diplomats, he added, was that Spain could hand sovereignty to a Polisario regime which might promptly invite Algerian forces into the territory to protect it against Moroccan "expansionism."

The same diplomat described Polisario as a movement dominated by leftist extremists who aim to turn the Spanish Sahara into a bridgehead for subversion throughout West Africa, and who could be expected to offer the Soviet navy its most advanced supply base on the eastern shore of the Atlantic.

In a recent speech, King Hassan pledged to "enter into our Sahara by peaceful means or by force of arms" before the end of the year.

To Your Good Health:

Carrots, Vision Not Unrelated

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a young girl, a high school junior of 16, and I want to join the Air Force to be a pilot. I am told you have to have 20/20 vision, which I do not have.

Would carrots help to improve my sight? I know this may sound way out, but could you answer this? — Miss F. W.

Not really way out, just a widespread misconception.

Carrots are a good source of vitamin A, which occurs in carrots as carotene. The substance is present in other foods (sweet potatoes and egg yolk are examples) but carrots are particularly high in it. Also, vitamin A is important in night vision, which is dependent on the proper production of what is called "visual purple" in the retina of the eye.

The manufacture of "visual purple" begins the moment a person enters a dimly-lighted room, but without sufficient vitamin A, it will not be produced in proper amounts. The result is impaired night vision.

However, the body needs only a certain amount of the vitamin to produce the quantity of pigment required, and any in excess of that received in a good diet would not help vision. Munching carrots to excess can produce a yellowish tinge in the skin. An examiner might think you were jaundiced.

A deviation from normal daylight vision is usually the result of a refractive error, a physical problem that can be corrected by eye glasses.

You have an interesting career goal for a young girl, and I wish you great success. You have time before you reach the required age for enlistment, so go to an eye doctor and find out if your eye defect is correctible with lenses.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please give me some information about acute intermittent porphyria. That is my doctor's diagnosis, but no one seems to know much about it. Also, what are the chances that it can be inherited by my children? How dangerous are the attacks, and how can one avoid them? — M.S.T.

Porphyrins are pigments that give color to various tissues, such as the red of hemoglobin and the green of bile. Porphyria, the disease, is a disturbance in the body's metabolism of these substances The term, "acute intermittent," means that your attacks tend to occur with suddenness and at widely varying intervals.

The disorder is inherited, although persons carrying the defect in the genes need not necessarily display the symptoms of the disease.

An attack of porphyria brings abdominal pain, vomiting, weakness and nervousness.

Not much really is known about it except that use of medication such as barbiturates, sulfa drugs, estrogen (as in contraceptive pills) can precipitate an attack. Alcohol, too, seems to cause attacks.

Treatment consists mainly of tranquilizers. Small doses of the drug, reserpine, can be used as a preventive.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 71 years old. Two months ago I had a tumor removed, so they performed an hysterectomy. Should I take hormone and calcium pills? What good would they do for me? I feel fine. — A. B.

Ordinarily, hormone replacement is necessary if the ovaries are removed along with the uterus. But this applies usually to younger people.

You are 71, and your ovaries started to decline in hormone production at least 20 years ago, so your system has by now probably adjusted to the waning supply. Removal of the ovaries now would be no great shock to your system. You can get the calcium you need from high calcium foods.

I can see no point then in your taking either the hormones or the calcium, especially since you are feeling fit.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If you body retains fluid in the tissues and you take four diuretics a day to relieve it, and your blood chemistry is okay, is it the circulatory system that is at fault? Could it be a sluggish thyroid?

If it is the circulation at fault, how do you solve the problem? — Mrs. E. A.

The causes of water retention are many and varied. Excessive salt intake, of course, is one. Use of the contraceptive pill is another. The increase in estrogen production before a period can also cause a retention problem, and yes, a low thyroid activity can, as you suggest in your letter, be a factor. Liver disease is another possibility.

If it is a circulatory disorder your doctor should be able to detect that and prescribe appropriate medication — digitalis, for example.

Do you have varicose veins? This can be a cause, and if so, it can be corrected surgically. If it is the thyroid causing it, then thyroid medication can control the situation.

For starters, your doctor is trying to use the diuretics to see if this simple approach will be sufficient. However, I doubt that it would be a permanent solution unless your retention is only temporary, or one related to a recurrent event, as with your menstraul cycle.

That's a lot to think about, but water retention is a complex matter, and usually water pills are not the answer alone.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Color blindness affects about three per cent of the young boys in America according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

Color blindness should not upset a person as long as he knows he is color blind. There is nothing that can be done to improve color vision. As far as medical practitioners know, color blindness does not change.

The Nebraska Medical Association reports there are several varieties of color blindness. The most common is called "red-green" because the individual finds it difficult to distinguish red from green. Rarer types prevent differentiation of other pairs of colors. Total color blindness is very rare. Total color blindness means the individual distinguishes only shades of gray and black as in a photograph.

The Nebraska Medical Association suggests that a color blind person be guided into a trade or profession where color vision is not important to his work.

Regents To Hear Report On Tenure

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will hear a report on faculty tenure Friday, and will act on an amended capital construction request of more than $12 million for 1976-77.

The board will meet at 8 a.m. in Regents Hall, 3835 Holdrege.

Steven B. Sample, NU executive vice president for academic affairs, will present the report on tenure density — the number who hold guaranteed reemployment contracts relative to total faculty eligible — and related tenure questions.

Regents ordered the Sample study after voicing concerns that the tenure fraction (about 75% on the Lincoln campus) was too large.

No action on tenure policy is scheduled. Sample said he will propose the board study the report, allow the campuses to respond and take up any proposed policy changes in November.

Board approval of the amended building request will not increase the $12,194,800 sought in 1976-77, which regents approved last month, according to Robert J. Pazderka, capital construction coordinator.

Rather, Pazderka said the total project cost was increased from $56.5 million to $59.2 million, reflecting dollars previously appropriated to correct fire safety hazards, for renovation and repair projects, and design projects.

Funds to eliminate fire safety hazards won top regental priority last month, with $2,246,866 sought for all projects at the UNL, Omaha and Medical Center campuses. The 1976-77 asking is $400,000, with $300,000 of it pegged for UNL and $100,000 for UNO.

Total cost to correct fire safety problems is $1.71 million at UNL, $456,000 at UNO, and $80,000 at UNMC.

In order, other NU building priorities and the 1976-77 regents' requests for each (with total project costs in parentheses) are:

UNO Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building, $2.5 million ($6,692,880); UNL Plant Science Building, $3 million ($10 million); UNL South-Central Headquarters at Clay Center, $600,000 ($640,000); UNL outstate research irrigation system at Clay Center, $66,000 complete.

In sixth place is the controversial UNO Dwontown Education Center, $750,000 ($10 million), followed by UNMC radiology scanner-accelerator, $450,000 ($800,000); NU system renovation and repair, $2,561,000 ($8,971,000); system plan and design projects, $391,800 ($18,346,000).

Requests complete in 1976-77 include $145,000 for a UNL swine-beef facility; $505,000 for NU system land acquisition; $475,000 for a UNL Life Science lecture hall; $186,000 for system studies and program statement needs, and $165,000 for UNL underground oil storage.

In No. 8 priority, the repair and renovation projects, a $350,000 start will be sought to renovate UNL tunnels toward an estimated total of $1.45 million. Another $100,000 from the 1976 Legislature would go toward $300,000 for total environmental health safety improvements needed at UNL.

The No. 9 priority in 1976-77, plan and design projects, would channel $198,000 of the $391,800 requested into UNL remodeling: Bessey Hall, $55,000 ($1.6 million eventual total); Love Library, $35,000 ($1,589,000); Coliseum, $45,000 ($3.3 million), and Agricultural Engineering, $63,000 ($3.5 million).

Land acquisition proposals, the No. 11 priority, are $95,000 for UNL; $120,000 for UNL programs outstate; $200,000 for UNO, and $90,000 for UNMC.

For non-state funded NU projects, regents will be asked to approve a 1976-77 requirement of $680,430 for UNL dormitories improvements and fire safety; $50,000 for UNL stores system improvements; $5,000 for stadium and athletic improvements; $10,000 for the Curtis Student Center; $5,000 for the UNMC Student Alumni Center, and $25,000 for UNMC housing work. Costs are complete only on the first two UNL projects.

Among UNL academic affairs items that Interim Chancellor Adam C. Breckenridge will propose to regents, are assignment of equivalent rank to NU School of Technical Agriculture faculty at Curtis; teaching activity at the State Penal Complex, and a report on the Journalism School, a designated "Area of Excellence."

In UNL business items, regents will be asked to authorize:

—Acceptance of $36,880 in bids by O'Keefe Elevator Co. to replace the Andrews Hall elevator; $68,279 by Steg & Nelson Refrigeration to remodel the Filley Hall system; and $135,664 by Environmental Growth Chambers to replace plant pathology department equipment destroyed in the August fire in the Plant Industries Building.

—Proceeding with bids and contracts for the T Street steam tunnel renovation, and for Animal Health Research Center paving and fencing on the east campus.

—Acceptance of a $12,500 gift from Resources for the Future, Inc., and establishment of the Reuben Gilbert Gustavson Lectureship Fund.

UNO Chancellor Ronald Roskens will request regents' approval for a program leading to the bachelor of science degree in applied mathematics.

Other UNO business items include an agreement for $111,664 under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, with the City of Omaha.

Dr. Robert Sparks, UNMC Chancellor, will report on the $6,591,000 low bid for the Ambulatorium project by Lueder Construction Co.

Dr. Sparks will ask regents to authorize a $25,350 contract with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, for specialized instruction to serve community pharmacists; a $113,012 continuation contract with the Indian Health Service for otolarynology services at Pine Ridge, S.D. and satellite clinics; and a $282,000 continuation contract with the Nebraska Health Department for the Children and Youth Program. The projects run through June 30, 1976.

Special Report Slated On Leaves, Budget

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Faculty Senate will hear a special report Tuesday from Interim Chancellor Adam C. Breckenridge on sabbatical leaves, budget and general concerns of the UNL campus.

The senate will meet at 3:30 p.m. in Love Library auditorium, 13th and S.

Last May, the senate approved a resolution seeking establishment this fall of a periodic faculty leave program with half pay, to develop professional growth and improved competence.

On the budget, NU Regents have approved a record 1976-77 package requesting the Legislature to increase UNL salary funds from $65 million to more than $69.8 million. The action concurred with NU President D. B. Varner's stated No. 1 priority to move pay up to competitive levels with other institutions.

Another $800,000 increase will be sought for UNL program improvements, plus a $2.32 million boost requested for the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. UNL general fund (state tax) budget would increase by 25.7%, to almost $54.7 million.

In other business scheduled Tuesday, the Faculty Senate will hear a report from the Academic Planning Committee, which has been conducting a vanguard comprehensive review of all UNL academic programs. The committee cited excellent cooperation from Dr. Breckenridge and the UNL administration.

Members are working toward developing a long-range planning model, ultimately to assist in making recommendations about academic programs in line with UNL goals and objectives, structure, budget, and distribution of dollars.

Other committee reports to be presented to the senate include convocations, libraries, computational services and facilities, and nominees for election to the committee on committees.

Meat Production Said Off In Iowa

Des Moines (UPI) — Commercial meat production in Iowa hit its lowest monthly total in 10 years during August of this year, the Iowa Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reported.

Figures from the reporting service showed a 27% decrease in meat production from August, 1974. Cattle slaughter was 13% below the 1974 level, while there were 35% fewer hogs slaughtered.

Out For Test Run

Usually when a robot rolls down a street it attracts attention and it was no exception in Spanish Lake, Mo. Two high school seniors at North County Technical School, Jim Prost of Vinita Park and Lou Marino of Spanish Lake are building the robot as a school project. When the robot is finished it will be remote controlled, powered by two auto batteries and able to talk by means of a tape deck.

Robby The Robot Not Taking Over

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — Robby the Robot has a long way to go before becoming competition for the average American worker.

So say robot industry officials in an attempt to ease the worries of blue-collar workers concerned about losing their jobs to machines.

As one expert put it at the fifth annual International Symposium on Industrial Robots, "Robots show somewhat less intelligence than most insects."

The robots only have one arm, with limited use, the exhibits at the symposium showed. Of the dozen models of industrial robots on display at the Illinois Institute of Technology, all were mostly limited to lifting up an object and putting it down nearby.

There were no human-looking automatons that did everything but make coffee—just machines with one long arm, somewhat resembling a big gun barrel, with pincers that could lift and place, lift and place, lift and place.

Robots are doing jobs that people just do not want," said Joseph Engelberger, president of Unimation Inc. of Danbury, Conn. Engelberger said about 1,500 robots are now scattered throughout American industry — not exactly an invasion — with about 50,000 expected in 10 years.

That's a big jump, Engelbarger said, but 50,000 jobs only represent two-tenths of 1% of the entire U.S. labor force.

Robots are being built that can spot weld in auto assembly lines, for example, and others can load machine tools, forge and do other basic factory jobs, such as handling dangerous chemicals in a nuclear reactor.

"But that's still a far cry from a human being," Engelberger said. His firm is the largest manufacturer of robots in the world.

"I really don't think there's anything like a confrontation" between robots and the labor force, he said. Through seminars with various labor unions, he said, "we're working to make sure there isn't."

Test Pilot Inspiration For '$6 Million Man'

FALLON, Nev. (AP) — The "Six Million Dollar Man" is more than just another television series for Bruce Peterson.

He is the survivor of a spectacular crash of a space vehicle shown at the start of each segment of the show. Peterson narrowly escaped death in the 1967 accident, and he had to be partially reconstructed by teams of surgeons.

He inspired the show. But Peterson, 42, a former test pilot undergoing Marine Air Reserve training here, said his surgery didn't include the atomic-powered limbs that make actor Lee Majors the superhuman Steve Austin of "Six Million Dollar Man."

"I just got conventional surgery," Peterson said, laughing.

His skull was fractured, his forehead literally scraped off, right eye partially blinded, teeth and one hand broken.

Plastic surgery to rebuild his face took more than a year and a half.

"I don't think it cost any $6 million to put me back together," he said. In fact, he doesn't know what the actual cost was. His employer now and at the time of the crash, National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), footed the bill.

Peterson was a test pilot for NASA's flight research center at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., at the time of the crash of the M2F2, a wingless, experimental space shuttle.

Now he is director of safety and quality assurance for the research center, and a reserve lieutenant colonel in the Marine Air Reserve.

He remembers little of the accident in which the shuttle went out of control, then slammed into the desert.

"About what is seen on the TV screens every week is what I remember," he said. "That partial footage was taken by the cockpit cameras. I blacked out about the same time the cameras stopped working.

"I was landing, fighting a cross-wind which had sprung up, when I saw a helicopter in my way. I tried to avoid it, and the landing gear caught in the dry lake bed — and right there I thought that was it.

"The next thing I vaguely remember is being trapped in the vehicle upside down."

After Peterson recovered, he continued to fly on a restricted basis for NASA until 1971, doing test work on fighter planes. He is considered in top physical shape by the Federal Aviation Agency and the Marine Corps, despite his damaged eye. He wears a patch over it.

His training here included piloting a Cobra attack helicopter.

Peterson has met the star of the television series just once when they had dinner together. While Peterson was the inspiration for "Six Million Dollar Man," he and Majors have little in common.

Peterson served in the Marines from 1953 to 1957, earned a degree in aeronautical engineering from California State Polytechnic University in San Luis Obispo in 1960 and became a test pilot in 1962.

Majors was a star athlete who got a degree in education from Eastern Kentucky State College and then decided to try acting.

Buddha Statue To Be Golden

Hong Kong (UPI) — A landscape garden with a 150-foot golden statue of Buddha to be built on nearbv Lantao Island has been approved in principle by the governemnt.

But the Hong Kong Tourist Association notes the Po Lin Monastery which plans to build the giant Buddha will have to provide a public roadway from the monastery to the garden, plus free admission. Plans call for the statue to be covered with gold powder.

Las Vegas Strip Is Slowly Sinking

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Lush green golf courses, trees and manicured lawns carpet this desert gambling oasis, but there is a price to be paid for turning barren sand into a garden.

Las Vegas is slowly sinking and the famed Las Vegas Strip is going fastest of all.

Studies by the University of Nevada-Las Vegas and the Desert Research Institute show that the Las Vegas Valley is dropping by about two or three inches a year, almost five feet since 1935 when Las Vegas was just a small, parched speck of desert.

Las Vegas is still desert, but when the casinos moved in alongside the massive Lake Mead Reservoir behind Hoover Dam, something had to give and it was the land.

The force of about 12 billion tons of pressure created by Lake Mead combined with an ever accelerating use of the water beneath the desert floor accounts for the subsidence.

One of the major areas of subsdence in the area is the Las Vegas Strip, particularly between the Tropicana Hotel and the Desert Inn.

Experts agree there is no real danger. The faults will not cause earthquakes and most buildings will withstand the slippage.

But cracks have shown up in pavement around the area and in concrete walls and pavement near the strip.

Dr. George Maxey of the Desert Research Institute said the slippage would pose no danger to people living in the area but may cost them money for property damage repairs.

"We think it's important for the people to know about it," he said. "Some real estate agents might not want people to know about it because land values might fall."

The reason the major strip casinos were built on an area that is susceptible to slippage was that land there was cheap when the first hotels went up and the strip just developed around that section.

William Fiero, professor of geology at UNLV, says the biggest problem to face Las Vegas in the coming years is the cause of the slippage, not the slippage itself.

The area is simply running out of water.

"The most pessimistic estimates say we will begin to run out of water by 1990," said Fiero. "The optimistic figures put the dates at about 2020, but there are two things we can do to help: conserve water and import it from distant sources."

Las Vegas currently is implementing a regional water plan to pump water from Lake Mead into the valley, but the federal government restricts the amount of water each state may take, and Fiero estimates the area will begin having to look for other sources despite the project.

The Las Vegas Valley Water District estimates that about 70,000 acre-feet of water is extracted from the water table beneath the surface of the valley annually but only about 25,000 to 35,000 acre-feet is returned.

Fiero said there is also evidence that the entire Las Vegas region is tilting toward Lake Mead.

It would be eons before the first casino tumbles into the lake, but Fiero said there was evidence of some sinking in the immediate area around the man-made lake and some cracks in the earth.

Inquiry Launched Into Moon Church

NEW YORK (AP) — An official inquiry has been launched into operations of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church as a result of various incidents connected with it and complaints that it uses "mind-control" techniques.

One incident involved the manhandling of New Jersey's state insurance commissioner, James J. Sheeran, who says he is seeking a congressional investigation of the group. His three daughters belong to it.

"There is absolute evidence that a kind of brainwashing goes on with these youngsters," he told newsmen this week. He challenged the group to let a board of psychiatrists examine some of the members.

The group, which has repeatedly denied the mind-manipulation accusations, was started in this country in 1972 by Korean visionary Moon, and now claims about 30,000 American followers, mostly young people.

Many of them, called "the family," consider Moon a new messiah, who will start a line of people progressively freed of sin.

A Washington, D.C. court last month dismissed a case in which parents charged their daughter was held through mental-psychological pressures. Legal experts note laws are vague on such matters.

In some states, officials also have checked into activities of branches of the group, without any actions against it, citing constitutional guarantees of free choice in religion.

The new inquiry is in the headquarters territory of the organization in Dutchess County at Tarrytown and Barrytown, N.Y., north of New York City, where the group has acquired intensive land and buildings for training recruits.

Dutchess County Atty. Albert Rosenblatt said there have been "growing complaints from parents of denial of access" and the use of methods they call "brainwashing, mind control and psychological coercion."

He said there also have been various other incidents, including a suicide of one member, an attempted suicide of another and a "disproportionately high number of hospital admissions."

"It all may be perfectly innocent and we haven't concluded there is any wrongdoing," he said, but added that the accumulating incidents prompted the inquiry to determine if evidence should go to a grand jury.

"We want to find out whether the group's tactics do involve some kind of coercion and whether the law should or could intervene." Citing the First Amendment guarantees of free dissemination of ideas, he added:

"It's a delicate area. But we're moved by the outcries of parents that overreaching methods are being used in capturing minds."

The incident involving Sheeran occurred in the predawn hours of Aug. 28, when he went there to try to get a daughter. He claims he was assaulted by several members.

Joe Tully, director of the Barrytown Center, said Sheeran "entered the premises illegally," was loud and violent, hitting him and kicking several other members, but no one hit Sheeran.

Under questioning, however, Tully conceded that a half-dozen members held Sheeran, tied him up and gagged him, holding him until police came.

At a news conference, the three Sheeran daughters, Vicki, 25, Jaime, 24, and Josette, 21, all pretty and blue-eyed, said in a statement:

"The parents are so thoroughly convinced and afraid their children are brainwashed, it is impossible to communicate with them."

Jaime blamed "kidnapers," those who deprogram members, for the strain with parents, and said it was risky to go home "because we might be kidnaped."

Sheeran and his wife, excluded from the conference, waited outside on the steps, later telling reporters the group would not let them see their daughters except at a "neutral place," with the group's permission.

"It's obvious they're kept intensively programmed," he said. "It's like narcotics. Once they're hooked, you can't get them off without professional help."

At one point, church officials brought the daughters to the doorsteps and Sheeran pleaded with them to come home, but they declined.

"We'll call you," Vicki said, and the three withdrew inside.

EPA: Savings Can Be Found In Wastepaper

Washington (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency told the government it could save $10 million a year by recycling some of its own wastepaper.

Under the proposal, most government employes would be told to separate high-grade paper, such as computer printout paper, punch cards and ledger paper, instead of throwing it into the trash. The paper would be sold.

The agency said a program will begin this month at EPA headquarters and in one year initial programs will begin across the country.

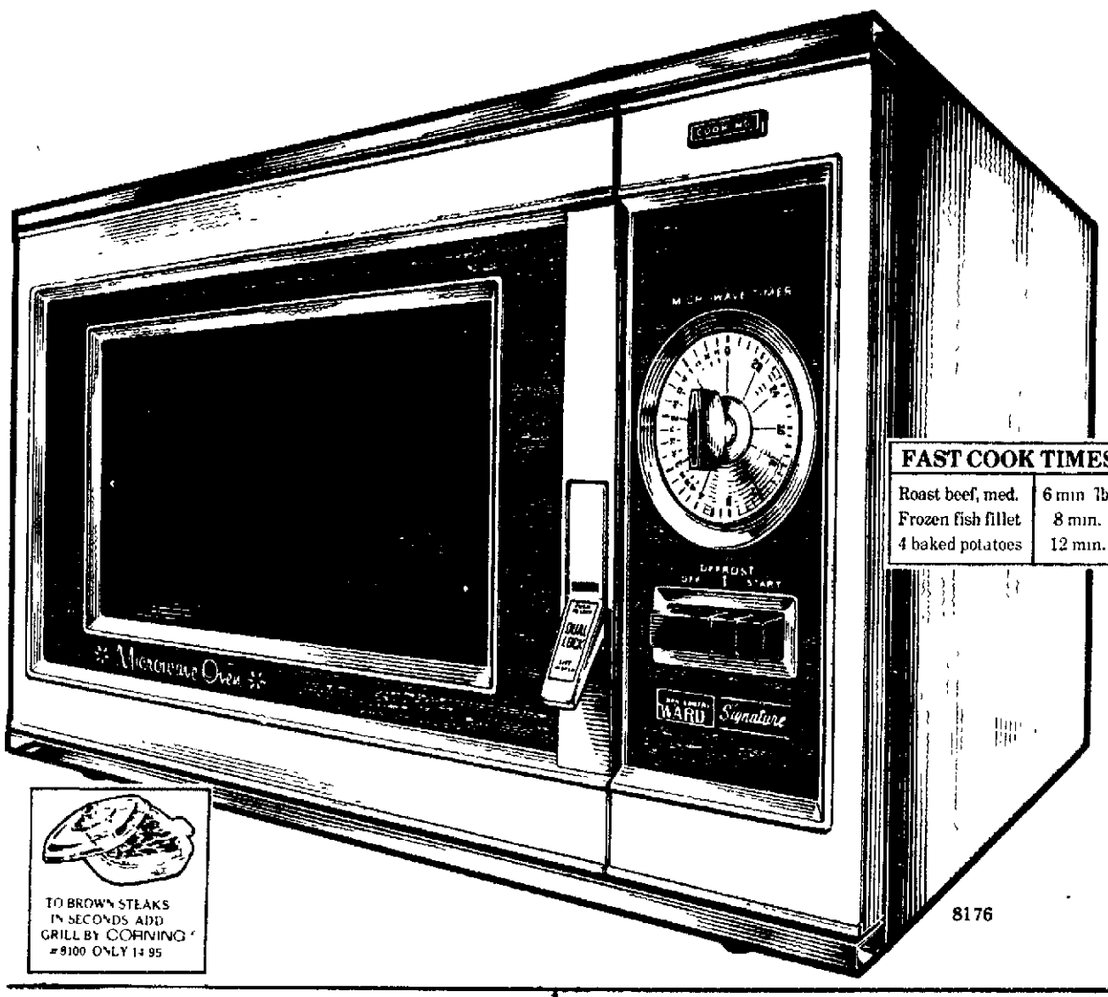

China Trade To Rise

Belgrade (AP) — China's foreign trade is expected to total $15 billion this year, or $1.3 billion more than last year, Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency, reported from Peking.

MONTGOMERY WARD

San Francisco — "Uncle Jim joined up with an Illinois infantry regiment but they changed them into cavalry," said my grandfather. "He fought at Lookout Mountain and, after the war, he got a pension for his wounds."

Uncle Jim is buried in that sleepy Illinois town. There's a black iron star of the Grand Army of the Republic stuck in the green grass. The stone says he was a captain.

A cousin of mine found some family papers recently and sent me copies. "You will be interested in Uncle Jim."

Uncle Jim had a lot of correspondence with the War Department. It was not a Rebel bullet that laid him low. When his regiment was turned into cavalry, it gave him fearful hemorrhoids — an accupational hazard of the horse soldiers.

He hadn't been able to sit down comfortably since Lee's surrender.

The letters don't indicate whether he got the pension or not.

☆ ☆ ☆

While Uncle Jim was riding uneasily down Tennessee roads, somebody invented the safety pin. Remember that next time you diaper the baby. The safety pin came out in a very unsafe time.

The Romans invented the brooch pin. It was such a civilized advance that the secret was lost during the Dark Ages. People went back to using wooden skewers.

Fortunately for women we now have plastic pins. Thus Madame can get her hair set. Or hang wet underwear over the tub so that nobody can take a bath at a reasonable hour.

"Be careful in the bathroom! I've got some things drying!"

☆ ☆ ☆

Man is an inventive fellow. When I was nailing neighborhood cats with a BB gun, we lived next to an inventor. He was working on a hot water bottle.

I seldom see them these antibiotic days. But in those peaceful years, hot water bottles were as common as washing machines today. They were used to warm the lower end of the bed on winter nights.

☆ ☆ ☆

They were put on your stomach for stomach ache. They were made of rubber with a rubber stopper. They had one fault: The rubber got old and sprung leaks.

The inventor invented a coating which made the rubber watertight forever. He put it on a hot water bottle and hung the bottle on his porch. It hung and hung and hung.

It might have been hanging still. But one day I was passing by with the BB gun and I couldn't resist. I shot it. A fine stream of water sprang into the air.

The inventor's wife came out and screamed "Max! Max! The water bottle!"

I went home and hid under the bed. I come from a family of reluctant heroes

☆ ☆ ☆

"Uncle Jim had a cavalry moustache like Custer's," said my grandfather. "He carried a saber sharp as a butcher knife."

All men wore moustaches and beards. Lincoln's generals, photographed by Brady, show how they looked. Grant wore a bushy beard. Some, like Burnsides, shaved themselves into patterns: Sideburns or goatees.

There were no safety razors or special softening soaps or TV to advertise them. It was easier to let the beard grow.

☆ ☆ ☆

Uncle Jim had gone to his reward by the time I was setting off firecrackers by the courthouse where the bronze-green soldier leaned forever on his bronze-green rifle.

On Fourth of July, the veterans sat in the front row. Wearing the slouch hats of the Army of the West. Remembering how they rode down dusty southern roads with the far off thunder of cannon up ahead.

Troops Lined Up In Sahara Desert

RABAT, MOROCCO (AP) — Deep in the western Sahara, Moroccan and Algerian troops are lined up 20 miles apart, ready for a possible confrontation over 105,000 square miles of desert containing one of the world's richest deposits of phosphates.

Morocco and its southern neighbor, Mauretania, have lodged territorial claims to the Spanish Sahara, but Moroccan officials say the two countries have a secret "understanding" to partition the territory if and when Spanish rule ends.

There is no similar understanding with Algeria, which has only 35 miles of common border with the Spanish Sahara and has repeatedly stated that it has no territorial claim of its own to the largest part of Africa still under European colonial rule.

However, in the name of its "anti-imperialist mission," the Algerian government of President Houari Boumedienne helps to finance and supply a guerrilla movement known as the Front for the Liberation of Saquiet el Hamra and rio de Oro (Polisario), whose activities are directed mostly against Morocco.

Polisario backs the Spanish proposal for a referendum in which the 60,000 nomadic inhabitants of the territory would be allowed to choose outright independence.

The Moroccan government of King Hassan II has warned that it will not tolerate such a referendum in a territory it regards as having been subject to the rulers of Morocco for at least five centuries.

According to military sources, virtually the entire Moroccan army with its French and American-made tanks and artillery is deployed along the southern border facing the Spanish Sahara — and Algeria. In overall command of the Moroccan forces is Col. Ahmed Dlimi, King Hassan's security chief, whose clan, known as the Ouled Dlim, roams the barren hills of Rio de Oro, the southern part of the Spanish Sahara.

Thousands of men of the Soviet-equipped Algerian army are lined up in the southwestern tip of Algeria around the oasis of Tindouf. The area is closed to unauthorized travelers inside Algeria, and informed sources say the troops there are in a permanent state of alert.

Algerian officials say the troops are there to protect Tindouf, which at one time was claimed by the Moroccans. Moroccan sources reply that this claim was abandoned in 1963 in exchange for Algerian acceptance of Morocco's claim to the Spanish Sahara.

The Moroccans now accuse the Algerins of breaking their word by backing the idea of independence for the Spanish Sahara with a massive deployment of troops. Moroccan officials accuse Boumedienne of "expansionism" and say he is plotting to set up a Polisario-controlled puppet state which would give Algeria direct access to the Atlantic Ocean.

"Our Mediterranean ports are only a short distance from Gibraltar, so we don't need any access to the Atlantic," Boumedienne said in a recent speech refuting Moroccan accusations that Algeria seeks to dominate all of northwest Africa.

The Sahara dispute is at present before the United Nations General Assembly and the International Court at the Hague. Moroccan officials say they are not optimistic as to the outcome of the legal arguments because the issue has split the Third World along clearly ideological lines.

"The Russians are giving their full support to Algeria while we have no backing at all from the West," one Moroccan official said.

Some Western diplomats say they believe Boumedienne when he says he has no territorial claim in the Sahara. "But while he does not want it himself, he is determined Morocco should not have it either," one ambassador added. "Annexation of the Sahara would give Morocco a 2,000-mile Atlantic coastline and would challenge Algerian aspirations to supremacy in this region."

The fear expressed by many diplomats, he added, was that Spain could hand sovereignty to a Polisario regime which might promptly invite Algerian forces into the territory to protect it against Moroccan "expansionism."

The same diplomat described Polisario as a movement dominated by leftist extremists who aim to turn the Spanish Sahara into a bridgehead for subversion throughout West Africa, and who could be expected to offer the Soviet navy its most advanced supply base on the eastern shore of the Atlantic.

In a recent speech, King Hassan pledged to "enter into our Sahara by peaceful means or by force of arms" before the end of the year.

Regents To Hear Report On Tenure

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will hear a report on faculty tenure Friday, and will act on an amended capital construction request of more than $12 million for 1976-77.

The board will meet at 8 a.m. in Regents Hall, 3835 Holdrege.

Steven B. Sample, NU executive vice president for academic affairs, will present the report on tenure density — the number who hold guaranteed reemployment contracts relative to total faculty eligible — and related tenure questions.

Regents ordered the Sample study after voicing concerns that the tenure fraction (about 75% on the Lincoln campus) was too large.

No action on tenure policy is scheduled. Sample said he will propose the board study the report, allow the campuses to respond and take up any proposed policy changes in November.

Board approval of the amended building request will not increase the $12,194,800 sought in 1976-77, which regents approved last month, according to Robert J. Pazderka, capital construction coordinator.

Rather, Pazderka said the total project cost was increased from $56.5 million to $59.2 million, reflecting dollars previously appropriated to correct fire safety hazards, for renovation and repair projects, and design projects.

Funds to eliminate fire safety hazards won top regental priority last month, with $2,246,866 sought for all projects at the UNL, Omaha and Medical Center campuses. The 1976-77 asking is $400,000, with $300,000 of it pegged for UNL and $100,000 for UNO

Total cost to correct fire safety problems is $1.71 million at UNL, $456,000 at UNO, and $80,000 at UNMC.

In order, other NU building priorities and the 1976-77 regents' requests for each (with total project costs in parentheses) are:

UNO Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building, $2.5 million ($6,692,880); UNL Plant Science Building, $3 million ($10 million); UNL South-Central Headquarters at Clay Center, $600,000 ($640,000); UNL outstate research irrigation system at Clay Center, $66,000 complete.

In sixth place is the controversial UNO Dwontown Education Center, $750,000 ($10 million), followed by UNMC radiology scanner-accelerator, $450,000 ($800,000); NU system renovation and repair, $2,561,000 ($8,971,000); system plan and design projects, $391,800 ($18,346,000).

Requests complete in 1976-77 include $145,000 for a UNL swine-beef facility; $505,000 for NU system land acquisition; $475,000 for a UNL Life Science lecture hall; $186,000 for system studies and program statement needs, and $165,000 for UNL underground oil storage.

In No. 8 priority, the repair and renovation projects, a $350,000 start will be sought to renovate UNL tunnels toward an estimated total of $1.45 million. Another $100,000 from the 1976 Legislature would go toward $300,000 for total environmental health safety improvements needed at UNL.

The No. 9 priority in 1976-77, plan and design projects, would channel $198,000 of the $391,800 requested into UNL remodeling: Bessey Hall, $55,000 ($1.6 million eventual total); Love Library, $35,000 ($1,589,000); Coliseum, $45,000 ($3.3 million), and Agricultural Engineering, $63,000 ($3.5 million).

Land acquisition proposals, the No. 11 priority, are $95,000 for UNL; $120,000 for UNL programs outstate; $200,000 for UNO, and $90,000 for UNMC.

For non-state funded NU projects, regents will be asked to approve a 1976-77 requirement of $680,430 for UNL dormitories improvements and fire safety; $50,000 for UNL stores system improvements; $5,000 for stadium and athletic improvements; $10,000 for the Curtis Student Center; $5,000 for the UNMC Student Alumni Center, and $25,000 for UNMC housing work. Costs are complete only on the first two UNL projects.

Among UNL academic affairs items that Interim Chancellor Adam C. Breckenridge will propose to regents, are assignment of equivalent rank to NU School of Technical Agriculture faculty at Curtis; teaching activity at the State Penal Complex, and a report on the Journalism School, a designated "Area of Excellence."

In UNL business items, regents will be asked to authorize:

—Acceptance of $36,880 in bids by O'Keefe Elevator Co. to replace the Andrews Hall elevator; $68,279 by Steg & Nelson Refrigeration to remodel the Filley Hall system, and $135,664 by Environmental Growth Chambers to replace plant pathology department equipment destroyed in the August fire in the Plant Industries Building.

—Proceeding with bids and contracts for the T Street steam tunnel renovation, and for Animal Health Research Center paving and fencing on the east campus.

—Acceptance of a $12,500 gift from Resources for the Future, Inc., and establishment of the Reuben Gilbert Gustavson Lectureship Fund.

UNO Chancellor Ronald Roskens will request regents' approval for a program leading to the bachelor of science degree in applied mathematics.

Other UNO business items include an agreement for $111,664 under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, with the City of Omaha.

Dr. Robert Sparks, UNMC Chancellor, will report on the $6,591,000 low bid for the Ambulatorium project by Lueder Construction Co.

Dr. Sparks will ask regents to authorize a $25,350 contract with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, for specialized instruction to serve community pharmacists; a $113,012 continuation contract with the Indian Health Service for otolarynology services at Pine Ridge, S D. and satellite clinics; and a $282,000 continuation contract with the Nebraska Health Department for the Children and Youth Program. The projects run through June 30, 1976.

Special Report Slated On Leaves, Budget

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Faculty Senate will hear a special report Tuesday from Interim Chancellor Adam C. Breckenridge on sabbatical leaves, budget and general concerns of the UNL campus.

The senate will meet at 3:30 p.m. in Love Library auditorium, 13th and S.

Last May, the senate approved a resolution seeking establishment this fall of a periodic faculty leave program with half pay, to develop professional growth and improved competence.

On the budget, NU Regents have approved a record 1976-77 package requesting the Legislature to increase UNL salary funds from $65 million to more than $69.8 million. The action concurred with NU President D. B. Varner's stated No. 1 priority to move pay up to competitive levels with other institutions.

Another $800,000 increase will be sought for UNL program improvements, plus a $2.32 million boost requested for the UNL Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. UNL general fund (state tax) budget would increase by 25.7%, to almost $64.7 million.

In other business scheduled Tuesday, the Faculty Senate will hear a report from the Academic Planning Committee, which has been conducting a vanguard comprehensive review of all UNL academic programs. The committee cited excellent cooperation from Dr. Breckenridge and the UNL administration.

Members are working toward developing a long-range planning model, ultimately to assist in making recommendations about academic programs in line with UNL goals and objectives, structure, budget, and distribution of dollars.

Other committee reports to be presented to the senate include convocations, libraries, computational services and facilities, and nominees for election to the committee on committees.

Meat Production Said Off In Iowa

Des Moines (UPI)— Commercial meat production in Iowa hit its lowest monthly total in 10 years during August of this year, the Iowa Crop and Livestock Reporting Service reported.

Figures from the reporting service showed a 27% decrease in meat production from August, 1974. Cattle slaughter was 13% below the 1974 level, while there were 36% fewer hogs slaughtered.
